High Truck Prices? "NEGATORY!" PETER POLLEN FORD

Dog Days Over

Sane dogs and Victorians will be able to venture out safely in the mid-day sun.

Announcing the official end of the area's heat wave-cum-drought, weatherman Bob Morris said today: "The high ridge just went, bingo."

But Morris said there's a good chance that more rain will follow.

"We're now back in the flow of upper westerlies and the weather will be more like normal. A new system will come through. It'll clear up for a couple of days and then another will move in."

OMBUDSMAN TAKING OVER

Bennett Ends Funding Of City Action Group

Premier Bill Bennett today told the Victoria Community Action Group it will no longer be funded by the provincial government because B.C.'s ombudsman — soon to be appointed — will look after people in trouble.

The group had received a grant of $36,000 for the fiscal year which ended March 31.

Bennett's announcement brought protests from community workers who said one ombudsman cannot possibly give personal help to hundreds of Victorians simultaneously.

The Community Action Group last year had 50 full-time and volunteer workers helping people in trouble because of alcohol, marriage break-up or mental breakdowns. The group will now shrink to five people working part-time because of the lack of funding.

The Victoria Council of Churches and the Community Action Group had jointly asked the premier to overrule Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm's decision to end the CAG grant.

Vander Zalm said he would not authorize funds for any group that advocated changes in government policies. The CAG had campaigned for increases in provincial welfare rates.

Bennett, in a letter to CAG worker Sharon MacBain, said he supports Vander Zalm's decision to end funding.

The premier said legislation has been introduced to set up an ombudsman and the appointment will be made soon.

"I am confident the all-party committee (of the legislature) will have the new ombudsman in place to carry out the important functions you suggested were carried out by your group," the premier's letter said.

William Mundy, chairman of social action for Victoria Council of Churches, said: "I regret very much that this important community group is being plowed under and I am uneasy about the control being centralized in (Vander Zalm's) department."

He said he is skeptical an ombudsman could begin to handle all the problems that come into the Victoria community office.

The CAG had a peak caseload of 350 clients and was answering more than 1,000 telephone calls per month.

Mundy said the council will make new representations to the premier unless it can be demonstrated that the ombudsman will be granted a large enough staff to handle a Victoria caseload of that size.

Meanwhile, MacBain said the premier's decision against funding "Is another case of putting bucks before human needs, which is becoming typical of the Social Credit government."

She said social workers had praised the services of the group because the CAG took time to talk to people in trouble and referred them to agencies where they could get additional help.

MacBain said the Social Credit government has adopted a policy of "sweeping the poor and afflicted under the carpet because these problems are offensive to the wealthy, who are Social Credit supporters."

She said the group will try to carry on at its office upstairs from 551 Fisgard from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekdays with a small volunteer staff.

Rhodesian Terror: 16 Slain

SALISBURY (AP) — Security forces are hunting a band of black-nationalist guerrillas that attacked the black living quarters on a farm in eastern Rhodesia and slaughtered 16 men, women and children.

Some of the victims were herded into a circle and shot, others bayoneted, and one was burned to death when the guerrillas set fire to the compound, officials reported.

Another 15 to 20 persons were injured in the raid Saturday night.

"It was a terrible sight," said the white owner of the farm, Marius Sleigh. "There were men, women and children lying in the bushes nearby — some of them dead and some were screaming with pain."

A pregnant woman was among those killed.

Sleigh said a security fence around the compound was to have been completed by today.

"I rather think they were after the fencing gang," he said.

A spokesman for the security forces said the guerrilla band numbered about 26, carried automatic weapons and apparently planned simultaneous raids on Sleigh's residence and the black quarters about one-quarter of a mile away.

Sleigh said he had gone to bed when the guerrillas arrived at the black compound during a beer party and demanded to see the black foreman. When one of the farmhands told them the foreman was away, the guerrillas started beating him with sticks.

"The rest of the people in the compound, mainly women and children, obviously panicked and tried to run away," Sleigh continued. "It was then that the terrorists opened up on them from behind with the women and children screaming to get away."

On the political front, meanwhile, Elliott Gabellah became the fifth leading black nationalist to resign from the the United African National Council led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa. Informed sources said Gabellah will join forces with Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole of the African National Council, who returned to Salisbury last month after two years in exile.

Both Muzorewa and Sithole are considered moderates and are jockeying to be recognized by Smith in negotiations for the transfer of power to the country's black majority. But neither they nor their associates have any influence with the black guerrillas.

S. Africa N-Bomb Set

PARIS (UPI) — French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud said today France has information that South Africa is preparing a nuclear explosion.

Such an explosion would endanger all prospects for a peaceful settlement of the problems of southern Africa, he said.

"We have warned South Africa that such an explosion could have grave consequences on the relacions of our two countries," he added.

$200,000 Yates Blaze

Three pumpers and two aerial ladders from Victoria and an aerial ladder from Oak Bay were called in to quell the flames which burst out at 2:45 a.m.

Gusts of wind caused some problems prompting fire and police officials to evacuate the Kings Hotel and a discotheque on Johnson Street as a safety measure.

Flames shot up the exhaust duct system of the Meatmarket Restaurant and spread to the fourth floor and roof of the building after a torch used by a construction worker on the exhaust duct system caught residual grease in the duct work, deputy Chief Mike Heppell said today.

The renovations were being carried out late at night so business at the restaurant would not be interrupted.

Loss is estimated at $200,000, and Heppell said no estimate has been made for the loss of its contents.

The restaurant and other lower floor businesses suffered heavy water damage.

Later Sunday, View Royal firefighters responded to a barn fire on Cheltenham Road in which the barn and about four tons of hay were destroyed.

SLIME TIME has arrived and mothers everywhere are shuddering. New product, which is kind of a (yech!) runny playdough, is an unfortunate green in color, cold and clammy to touch and oozes through the fingers. SPORTS

Victoria Shamrocks have been following a perilous pattern in the Western Lacrosse Association final, building up a comfortable lead and then having to fight for survival in the closing stages. They did it again at Memorial Arena Sunday night before grabbing a 10-8 triumph over Vancouver Burrards for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series. Page 12.

Victoria Bates have added pitching strength for their bid to retain the national men's softball championship, picking up Glen Langset, a former Victorian who now resides in Trail. Page 14.

Victoria Dolphins perhaps deserved a better fate Sunday, but their three-season winless streak in the B.C. Big Four Junior Football League was extended by a 26-13 loss to Renfrew Trojans. Page 14.

Powerful forehand was big weapon Sunday for Elvira Kapus as she won women's singles title for second time in annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis Tournament. (Story and pictures on Page 12)

U.K. Air Controllers To Stage 4-Day Strike

LONDON (AP) — Assistant air traffic controllers demanding a pay raise voted overwhelmingly today to begin a four-day strike at midnight Thursday night, threatening a total shutdown of all British airports.

The British Airports Authority, the government agency that manages London's Heathrow and Gatwick and five other major airports, said more than one million passengers would be affected by the walkout of 850 controllers.

The strike would continue through a Bank Holiday weekend, one of the busiest travel periods for Britons. The Bank Holiday is Monday and the strike would end at midnight Monday night.

"The strike will bring the airports in this country to an absolute standstill," said Ken Thomas, general secretary of the controllers' union.

The air traffic control assistants work at Britain's two major air control centres—at West Drayton just outside London and at Prestwick, Scotland. Their control areas cover all airports in the country.

For the last week, 220 union members at Heathrow and Gatwick have engaged in a work-by-rule slowdown to press the pay demands.

The Civil Aviation Authority, which governs all civilian flying, said it has drown up contingency plans to get as many planes in the air as possible.

Union members, whose average annual pay is the equivalent of $4,250, are demanding that the government lift its anti-inflation curb on pay increases so they can get an $850 raise agreed on in June, 1975. The union said the agreement was reached before the wage ceilings went into effect.

ANTIQUE CRASHES, COUPLE INJURED

Mel Price is in intensive care with a broken jaw and other facial injuries and shoulder injuries. His wife, Mary, received minor injuries when their 1929 Monocoach stalled while circling a field for an emergency landing and crashed through the trees.

The Prices, of 1695 Dean Park, were en route to the Evergreen Air Show for antique planes in Portland, Ore.

The crash occurred as the plane was being brought in for an attempted landing at the small Apex Airport about 10 miles north of Bremerton.

Dave Brophy, a mechanic at the airport and a longtime friend of Price, said there was low fog and drizzle at the time.

He said he thinks Price lost the airstrip and was trying to make a landing on the beach about three-quarters of a mile from the strip when he saw a wide-open field.

CUPW WANTS TALKS

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) has written to the federal government about resuming contract negotiations, but contents of the union's letter are being kept secret.

The 22,000-member union said in a news release today executives of CUPW "decided last week to contact the employer in writing on this issue and will wait for the employer's reply before taking further action."

"We decided not to make a public declaration concerning our decision so that the employer can carefully weigh the implications of his reply," said CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrot.

New CUPW leaders, elected in July at the union's national policy convention in Halifax, met all last week to decide bargaining strategy.

At the convention, delegates dug in for a long, tough battle with the government by giving CUPW leaders authority to call a country-wide strike if union demands are not met.

A key demand is that the government withdraw all disciplinary action taken against CUPW members for union-related activity.

Pets Blamed for Spreading MS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rover and Tabby may be causing multiple sclerosis in their masters, a study reported today in the Journal of the American Medical Association indicates.

Dr. Seymore Jotkowitz of Hackensack, N.J., reported a study of 50 multiple sclerosis patients found 46 of them — or 92 per cent — had been in close contact with a household pet prior to the onset of the illness.

"The incidence of the contact with sick dogs in the multiple sclerosis series was impressive," he said. "Several patients reported that a diagnosis of distemper was acutally made for their dog within several years of the onset of their illness."

Jotkowitz said his findings are similar to those reported earlier this year by two British doctors.

In that study, he said, 26 of 29 individuals with multiple sclerosis owned small dogs and two others owned cats, he said.

In both studies, he said, large dogs which spent a significant amount of the time out of doors appeared to have no relationship to the disease. Only small, indoor dogs were implicated.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the nervous system, which produces loss of muscular co-ordination, speech defects and other symptoms.

Spacecraft Looks Good After Shaky Start

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Voyager 2 spacecraft is speeding toward Jupiter, Saturn and beyond while scientists try to analyse its shaky start and the problems that threatened the mission.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here ordered the spacelab, equipped with television cameras, to turn several of its instruments on and off late Sunday night to test them.

They were to analyze the results of those experiments today. But the scientists said the Voyager 2 appears to have overcome its earlier troubles and was sailing smoothly to the outer planets and eventually out of the solar system.

Most troubling of the Voyager 2's apparent problems was the possible failure of a boom containing cameras and scientific tests to project itself away from the craft's body. But engineers now believe the boom did extend and is within one degree of its proper position.

That diagnosis was made Saturday night when mission controllers ordered a sun sensor on the boom to turn toward the sun so it could absorb solar rays. That command was obeyed, said mission controller Jerry Stilwell, and data fed back to earth began showing the absorption of solar heat.

The Voyager's problems, including an unstable gyroscope — used to keep the craft on course — and a malfunctioning computer, began about an hour after its launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla., Saturday morning.

Cape Canaveral spacecraft manager John Casani met with his engineers on Sunday to make sure the Voyager 2's twin, Voyager 1, doesn't have the same kind of problems when it is launched Sept. 1.

Voyager 1 is scheduled to arrive at Jupiter before Voyager 2 because it is travelling a more-direct route.

Voyager 1 was taken to its launch pad Sunday and Stillwell said Voyager 2's problems have not caused any delay in its blast-off date. Should delays develop, it could be launched anytime through Sept. 23, when the right planetary positions will exist for the craft to swing past its assigned planets.

Forest Fires In Idaho

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Fire crews Sunday continued to battle three major western forest fires while smoke jumpers and air tankers attacked a number of small new blazes set by lightning, the Boise enteragency fire centre said.

The largest of the major fires was the hog fire in the Klamath National Forest in northern California which had grown to 44,900 acres, said Teressa Moen, fire information officer.

More than 5,000 persons were assigned to the fire and officials were trying to round up relief crews, Ms. Moen said. Crew members must walk through rugged terrain for four to five hours to reach the fire lines.

The Kirkham Hot Springs fire in the Boise National Forest about 70 miles northeast of Boise had consumed between 700 and 800 acres, Sunday, the centre said. Special forest service air teams and about 400 firefighters were assigned to the blaze.

72 REPORTED DEAD IN QUAKE

JAKARTA (AP) — The death toll in the Indian Ocean earthquake and tidal waves in the Lesser Sunda islands of Indonesia has risen to 72, Social Affairs Minister M. S. Mintareja reported today.

Mintareja said there were 52 dead on the island of Sumbawa, 18 on Lombok and two on Bali. He said nothing about any missing persons, but the head of the Sumbawa government, Hassan Usman, reported more than 65 persons missing earlier.

Tidal waves as high as 16 feet crashed over villages on the coasts of Sumbawa and Lombok and demolished more than 150 homes. Mintareja said he believes hundreds of persons were injured.

The quake Friday afternoon was centred between Indonesia and Australia, about 930 miles southeast of Jakarta. Earth tremors rattled buildings more than 1,000 miles away in Perth, Australia, and aftershocks buffeted Indonesian islands for the rest of the day.

Soccer Clashes Erupt

LONDON (AP) — The English Football Association is ready to lend its support in an attempt to quash the sort of violence which broke out Saturday during the opening day of the English League soccer season.

Ted Croker, secretary of the association, said Monday:

"There is no limit to the sanctions we could take, but any decision would be taken in conjunction with the league.

"The trouble continues, something must be done. We have not discussed it with the league yet. We have not seen full reports of what happened last Saturday, but if we agree there was an excess of trouble, we would have to discuss what action to take."

One of the worst of Saturday's incidents was at a cafe on a main roadway at Leeming in Yorkshire, where several hundred Leeds and Sunderland fans clashed.

"We have little authority outside of grounds, but we could take action against the clubs and stadiums concerned," Croker said. "In the past grounds have been closed for spectator misconduct. It is quite common in European soccer, but not in the Football League."

Scotland fans will find themselves fenced in, should the World Cup qualifying game against Wales be shifted to London's Wembley Stadium.

An official limit of 14,050 spectators has been put on the Ninian Park stadium at Cardiff and if this is not raised to a minimum of 25,000 the Welsh FA will be forced to switch the game to Wembley.

Old Guard Solid in China

U.S. Secretary of State Vance with China's Huang Hua in Peking

Times News Service

PEKING — China announced Sunday the election of a new ruling Politburo composed almost entirely of old soldiers and bureaucrats known to favor experience and discipline, and to disdain the youth movements that have disrupted Chinese politics over the last decade.

The Politburo of the Communist Party Central Committee is in effect China's central legislative-executive organ, so the new 23-member body — all men and nearly all over 60 — is expected to effect nearly every aspect of Chinese life for the next several years.

Peking Radio's reports on the election by the party's new 11th central committee brought hundreds of thousands of demonstrators into the streets of this capital city to hail the decision. Drums and firecrackers boomed, and traffic was almost hopelessly snarled.

The appointments gave China a fully manned and legitimate leadership for the first time since deaths and political feuds began to break down Peking's decision-making processes shortly after the last Politburo was appointed in 1973.

The new veteran leaders took their posts on the eve of the arrival of U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance for negotiations on the stalled move toward full U.S.-China diplomatic relations, a five-year-old policy goal considered important by both countries.

Vance opened talks with Chinese leaders today by emphasizing the two countries' common political interests in various parts of the world.

In a sitting room in the Great Hall of the People, Vance began his first meeting with a Chinese team headed by Foreign Minister Huang Hua by saying there are areas where the two countries have "mutual interests."

One of these areas is Africa, where both the United States and China are eager to blunt Soviet penetration.

ALASKA PIPELINE RESUMES PUMPING

VALDEZ (UPI) — Oil tankers are taking on their cargo of Alaskan crude for the first time since "human error" shut down the Trans-Alaska pipeline nearly a week ago.

The Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. began pumping 430,000 barrels of North Slope oil into the Overseas Alaska on Sunday night as the Exxon New Orleans prepared to move into the Valdez terminal berth when the Alaska finishes loading today.

Five other tankers waited at anchor, at a cost of $1,000 an hour, in Prince William Sound for their turns at the terminal. Alyeska officials expect to load an average of one tanker a day.

The oil is flowing at a rate of better than 500,000 barrels a day through the pipeline. The pumps were started again Saturday after a four-day shutdown, but it took pipeline workers several hours to "pack" the line and bring it up to full pressure. The thick crude is pumped at Valdez into huge storage tanks which had to be partially filled before loading could start again.

The pipeline was shut down Aug. 15 for the seventh time since the operation began when three drain valves were accidentally left open at Pump Station No. 9, south of Fairbanks, spilling 30 barrels of crude oil into the pump house.

During the shutdown Alyeska officials ordered a modification in the drainage system along the entire 800-mile pipeline route.

"It was a good system environmentally, but safety-wise it was not a good design," said Jack Turner, head of the Interior Department's Pipeline Office in Anchorage.

the weather

Cool moist air from the Pacific has brought an end to the hot dry weather of the past few weeks in B.C. On Sunday measurable rainfall was recorded in Vancouver for the first time in over three weeks and the afternoon maximum temperature failed to reach 20 degrees for the first time in just over a month. A Pacific disturbance will bring more rain to the coast and continue inland. A few showers or thundershowers will develop in eastern areas. This cool unsettled weather will continue on Tuesday as another disturbance reaches the coast.

Thumb Made from Finger

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two young children born without thumbs got new ones recently when their index fingers were moved and converted into thumbs at Vancouver General Hospital's new hand injury clinic.

In another case, a man severed all four fingers and was able to recover one of them, which the clinic replanted as his index finger.

"With a clean-cut injury we can put anything back on," says Dr. Graham Lister of Louisville, Ky., here recently to help with operations at the clinic.

Dr. Lister said an operation is done if it will improve function and, in the case of women, if it will maintain a good appearance.

Dr. Peter Gropper, one of Dr. Lister's students, recently returned here from Louisville where he studied microsurgery and replantations — replacing severed limbs using an operating microscope to see the tiny blood vessels and nerves which must be sewn together.

Dr. Lister said people are not always aware that the replanted member won't function as well as it did before coming off.

He said in ideal situations, where the cut is clean and surgery is done within six hours, the survival rate for the replanted member is 95 per cent. The finger often has a greater chance of survival, said the doctor, because it has no muscles and muscle tissue is the first to die in a severed limb.

He said it also helps to keep the severed finger or limb on ice.

The degree of returned function varies, Dr. Lister said, with children having the highest rate.

In salvage cases, where a limb is damaged or surgery takes place long after the accident, survival rate is more than 40 per cent, he said.

Salvage surgery is done when a thumb or a hand or more than two fingers are off, he said, adding it's always done with children because results are always good and the child may really need the limb when it grows up.

Work Helps to Combat Old Age, Study Finds

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Institute of Gerontology, in a search for the secret of long life, has found that almost all of 40,000 old people interviewed for a study continued working to an advanced age.

The results of the study, published Sunday in Communist party newspaper Pravda, concluded that "work is an invaluable remedy against premature old age."

Soviet gerontologists also recommend getting married, living in high places, eating moderately, drinking well water and talking a lot.

The Pravda article cited the effects of "pension illness," the quick deterioration suffered by old people when they retire, and said: "Old age is not a time to be sedentary but to be active."

In an interview in the newspaper Socialist Industry, the institute's director, N. D. Mankovsky, referred to the study and said: "Their (the old people's) solution to the question of long life was a simple one—not one of them was lazy."

He cited the examples of a 124-year-old vineyard worker, a 128-year-old carpenter and a 131-year-old shepherd, all of whom continue to work.

The Soviet Union claims to have 19,304 centarians as of the 1970 census, or eight per 100,000 population, compared with a reported 1.5 per 100,000 in the United States, for example.

The highest recorded age claimed by the Soviet Union is 167, attained by Shirali Mislimov before he died in 1972. But none of the many Soviet claims of extreme old age has been proved to the satisfaction of Western scientists.

In Soviet Georgia 5,000 centenarians were reported in the last census.

SWINDLES AID TERROR

BELFAST (Reuter) — Declining funds from North America have forced Northern Ireland's warring guerrilla organisations to turn to organized crime for money to finance their respective causes, Roman Catholic sources said Sunday.

Police said they believe that between them the warring Roman Catholic and Protestant groups who hold sway in the rival ghettoes take about $2 million a year through organized crime.

But this estimate appears extremely low. One swindle involving contracts for rebuilding shattered parts of Belfast is officially believed to have netted about $2 million.

Protection rackets are rife. Persons operating within the ghettoes are forcing members of their won religion with corner shops, taverns and bigger businesses to make weekly "political contributions."

Shopkeepers pay on average $35 a week to avoid devastation by gasoline bombs or grenades while tavernkeepers pay about $85 and owners of bigger businesses up to $350.

Victim's Sweater Found

AGASSIZ (CP) — RCMP investigating the Ferry Island slayings of three young people have recovered a necklace and sweater belonging to a fourth young person missing since the shooting.

Police said the articles, belonging to Leola Gulliker, 16, were located in the area of the murder scene on the Fraser River banks near this community 60 miles east of Vancouver, but refused to disclose when and in what condition the items were found.

The whereabouts of the girl are still unkown over a month after a gunman came out of the bushes firing a rifle at a party of five teen-agers.

One of the youths, Ed Menger, 15, of nearby Clearbrook, escaped when the shooting began.

Police found the bodies of Egbert Menger, 19, Evert Den Hertog, 19, and his brother, Jan Den Hertog, 16, but searches of the Fraser have failed to turn up the girl's body.

The killer is still at large.

RCMP Sgt. Dave McLay, Agassiz detachment head, confirmed that a green cardigan sweater and "bits of necklace" were found "in different areas in close proximity to the scene of the murder."

Bullpit Hard To Enter

VANCOUVER (CP) — He's a naughty old vicar from England.

He'll tell fibs, bend rules and dodge the law if he can.

Why? Because he wants to turn in his dog collar for a horse collar. Or, as he puts it, "exchange the pulpit for the bullpit."

And he's having trouble doing it because of Canada's immigration "rigmarole." It's apparently swaying him slightly from the straight and narrow.

Rev. Peter Birkett, 64, is giving up his graceful Georgian rectory adjacent to a medieval church in Somerset to become a cowpoke and live on a ranch near a mountain stream in B.C.

A second World War chaplain in the Royal Air Force, Birkett says he's experiencing a little frustration with Canada's immigration laws.

In a telephone interview from his home in Holford, Birkett said he simply "loathes" filling in forms.

Women Applaud Verdict

VANCOUVER (CP) — The conviction of Vancouver businessman George Pappajohn for the rape of a 37-year-old real estate saleswoman last August "is a step toward justice for women," a spokesman for a Vancouver women's group said.

"If she had not persevered, and had the courage to take the abuse that most rape victims do, this case would never have come to trial — like most rape cases," said Ellen Frank of Rape Relief.

"The woman is always on trial in a rape case, and in this particular instance, it was not that he was convicted so much as that she was found not guilty."

Pappajohn, 38, was sentenced to three years in penitentiary by B.C. Supreme Court Justice Samuel Toy soon after the nine-man, three-woman jury delivered its verdict Saturday.

The jury deliberated for 10 hours, coming back Saturday after having failed to reach a verdict by 10:30 p.m. Friday.

Frank called it "an utterly classic rape case," saying that statistics show that 75 per cent of rapes occur between casual acquaintances meeting voluntarily at his home or hers.

"Very few are of the animal-in-the-bushes stereotype, yet it is almost always only this kind of case that comes to trial and brings about a conviction," she said.

The trial attracted widespread public interest, particularly among representatives of women's rights groups. Also in attendance at various times were Liberal MP Simma Holt, New Democratic Party MLA Rosemary Brown and Vancouver Aldermen Bernice Gerard and Darlene Marzari.

Inflation Controls

If the federal Liberals aren't offering up prayers of thanks to the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) today, they really should be. The CLC has neatly solved one of the trickiest problems facing Prime Minister Trudeau and his cabinet — whether they could or should allow early removal of the anti-inflation program in hopes of stimulating the economy and reducing the soaring levels of unemployment.

The business community has recently been putting pressure on the government to end the controls quickly, saying the country's other economic problems (which are certainly serious) will never be solved as long as profits are held down and investment is discouraged through the continuation of controls.

The Liberals obviously were impressed by these arguments and began planning for an early end to controls. Earlier this month they told the CLC and business leaders that controls could end as early as this October if both sides agreed to three proposals — trilateral talks on the future of the economy, approval of a wage and price monitoring agency, and voluntary controls by both labor and business.

If both sides had agreed to the terms, the Liberals would have had to go ahead with the removal of controls. That might have put them in a dangerous position, both economically and politically. Even with the controls, the inflation level is creeping upwards again, running two per cent and more above the level Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said would be acceptable for 1977. Also, there is no guarantee that an easing of the controls would lead to less unemployment, more investment, or an improvement in the position of the Canadian dollar.

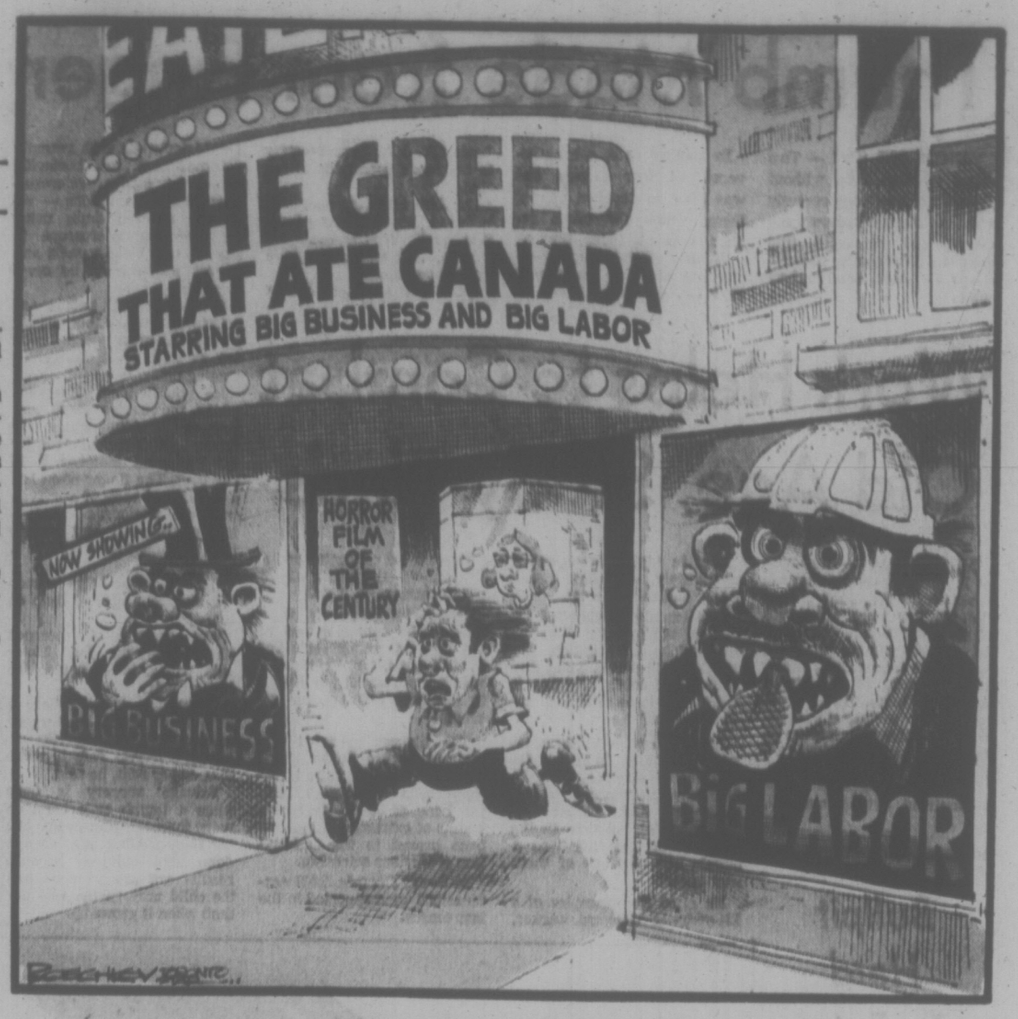
There is, however, a virtual guarantee that a rush of inflation after removal of controls would further weaken Canada's position in international markets and thus would make the country's other economic problems even worse.

Politically, the ordinary citizens of Canada seem to be slightly in favor of retaining the controls. But that slight feeling would become immensely more intense if the controls were removed and inflation came galloping back, putting householders and wage-earners back in the cost-price spiral of 1974 and 1975.

All in all, Trudeau would have been taking a considerable risk in removing the controls early, even with the appropriate promises from business and labor. If all had gone well, if inflation had stayed at a reasonable level and other facets of the economy had improved, he would have been a hero. But if inflation had risen while the rest of the economy remained stagnant, he would have become a political villain par excellence to Canadians.

Now Trudeau no longer has to worry about taking that risk. The CLC has rejected all three proposals, and no politician in his right mind would remove controls without some assurances of co-operation from the union movement. Moreover, when businessmen complain about controls, the prime minister need no longer be the scapegoat: he can always point his finger at those wicked unionists who wouldn't even talk about voluntary controls or monitoring.

We always knew the CLC was good for something.



Peter Pollen in Parliament?

Cynics might read of former Victoria mayor Peter Pollen's latest tilt at the political windmill and wonder to themselves where the political gadfly supreme summoned up the nerve to present himself to local voters yet another time in yet another set of borrowed principles with a brand-new party membership.

"Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds," would be the retort from the man himself, a favored quotation from Ralph Waldo Emerson. The former Liberal turned Conservative who ran for the Socreds provincially in 1968 and tried to in 1975 wants to be Tory member of parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich.

It may be a difficult job to get the nomination from the incumbent, Donald Munro, who maintains a profile so low he could be called the invisible man of Victoria politics. If he can keep a civil tongue about his opponent, Pollen's probably a good chance.

But if it's like his last disastrous attempt at seeking election, when he insulted the outgoing Socred MLA then asked his supporters to nominate him as stand-in, Pollen won't get off the ground. If he can check his natural inclination to fire off exactly what he's thinking, he will do well.

Pollen is smart, and is not shy of telling people so. A man with more tact may have been kinder to associates and underlings but surely wouldn't have accomplished as much as Pollen did. His impatience and abrasive style rubbed a few bureaucrats raw, but he could have been mayor of the city for as long as he wanted the job, such was his popularity at the polls.

He came in like a March sou'easter, challenging old accepted practices and blowing the cobwebs off the polite gentlemen's club that city council had become. But there was no one more conservative at bottom when it came to preserving Victoria's nineteenth century charm against the clutches of some developers.

But Peter Pollen in parliament? The irresistible force meets the immovable object. His style is suited to opposition politics, which is what he'll be practising if he's elected, judging from all the indicators of the parties' relative strengths.

Is Ottawa ready for a deeply conservative (in the true sense of the word) populist who is also a very successful capitalist with a strong social conscience? And who's joined or flirted with every major political party? One thing's certain—mix Pollen with politics again and there'll be few dull moments.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Will Kissinger Return?

It had a nice singsong ring to it. Relations with the rest of the world "ought to be based on the fact that we are right and decent and honest and truthful and predictable and respectful," he said.

This would become the fine print on Henry Kissinger's walking-papers. Though a brilliant mind and a crafty negotiator, Kissinger was too secretive and self-willed for Carter's liking.

Installed in the White House, Carter promptly pulled foreign policy out of the shadows. To the horror of the state department mandarins, he actually discussed evolving policy in public speeches, bringing the Middle East and the Soviets' disregard of human rights into the open forum.

He unleashed Andrew Young on the world, unmuzzled and provocative. And his key policy adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, made it clear that he intended to remain as obscure and unapproachable as possible in a city that yearns for high profiles.

Henry Kissinger, according to what passes here for conventional wisdom, was on a one-way street to obscurity. He would draft his memoirs, take up the presidency of a major university or drift into the relative anonymity of the corporate world. Maybe, decades from now, somebody would erect a statue of him or name a building in his memory.

Out of Shadows

But this was not to be. As a supposed "ghost" from another era of American politics, Kissinger has been showing a lot of substance recently.

A few days ago, during a luncheon at the White House, President Carter pulled out his new Panama Canal treaty and asked: "Well, Henry, what do you think?" Kissinger gave it his blessing.

Shuttle diplomacy may be a relic, but the man who invented it still commands international respect. Every foreign minister who has visited Washington since Carter's inauguration, including most recently Israel's Menachem Begin, has hunkered down with Henry and they weren't just social calls.

Administration sources admit that Kissinger meets "frequently" with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and judging by Vance's unqualified failure in his mideast swing recently, he needs all the "backgrounding" he can get.

The Middle East, where Kissinger demonstrated all his great strengths and weaknesses during the Nixon and Ford administrations, still gets his careful attention. The Saudi Arabian ambassador here, it is said, gets so many calls from Kissinger that he tells his friends he is baffled by the attention.

Kissinger still meets with his favorite journalists, making sure his views of foreign policy filter out to a public that remains uncertain about the directions Carter is taking. It is all very civil and unobtrusive.

In his speeches, he warns about the perils of Eurocommunism and the dangers of the oil cartel, careful not to leave the impression of an old, retired warhorse lecturing the men who are trying to fill his shoes.

"He could still come crashing back if he chose to do so," a politically-attuned lobbyist here recently told the Washington Post.

The central question of course, is whether Kissinger will continue to play this cautious behind-the-scenes rope indefinitely, or spring back into government in some official capacity.

The answer could lie in Carter's foreign policy track record in coming months. There are no real grounds for optimism in the Middle East, and relations with the Soviets remain frosty.

There are also signs, small, perhaps, but nonetheless significant that the Carter program of openness and predictability in world affairs may be so much mouthwash:

• That shocking Evans and Novak column recently about the U.S. being ready to concede "one-third of West Germany to a Soviet invasion rather than seek increased defence spending" whipped up a storm here, leading observers to ask just how forthright the administration was being with its European allies.

Mouthwash

• In a Chicago speech, Attorney-General Griffin Bell alluded to possible steps the U.S. might take against countries that don't co-operate with American antitrust investigations. He was clearly referring to Canada and the dispute over the now-defunct uranium cartel, which Ottawa organized in the early 1970s. But by its very vagueness, and its implied threat, the speech harmed Canada-U.S. relations.

• The silly blunder of sending Rosalynn Carter as an unofficial emissary of the U.S. government to South America still rankles here. How "right and decent" was her generally uncritical tour of military dictatorships, observers are asking.

No one is suggesting that the U.S. needs another round of Kissinger diplomacy to orchestrate its foreign policy. However, what it does require, in the minds of many, is some finesse and style, and no one else with the qualifications and expertise of Henry Kissinger has yet emerged, or is likely to.

Cannabis Use

The headline for your cover story, Illicit Drug Use Rising Rapidly (Victoria Times, Aug. 15) does not give an entirely accurate picture. By 1975, three years after the LeDain commission's final report, surveys done by the non-medical use of drugs directorate of the ministry of health and welfare indicated that at least 2.3 million Canadians had tried cannabis at least once, and 1.4 million were regular users. However, according to Health Minister Marc Lalonde, "more recent surveys indicate that cannabis use continues to increase, but at a much lower rate than in the past. This suggests that use may be levelling off, though admittedly at a high level of use.

Studies done in Oregon, where cannabis was decriminalized almost four years ago, show that cannabis use did not increase significantly after more liberal laws were passed, and that usage has stabilized. The majority of Oregonians have continued to favor the present law which makes simple possession of cannabis a civil offence akin to a parking ticket.

The federal government has admitted that lumping marijuana (cannabis) and hashish (a derivative of cannabis) with drugs such as heroin under the Narcotic Control Act is inconsistent. The Canadian Medical Association, consisting of 90 per cent of all practising doctors in Canada has said that "cannabis is not a narcotic . . . the simple possession of a psychoactive drug for personal use should not be punishable by a jail sentence. The jail sentences and criminal records that users receive, as the result of being convicted of being in simple possession of the drug, frequently have far more deleterious effects than the use of the drug."

Your story informed us that there were 33,281 convictions last year for cannabis and only 438 for heroin. The greatest danger to society associated with drug use is the parallel crime (that is, crimes such as theft, murder and assault committed by addicts desperate for the money to purchase drug). Yet the LeDam commission clearly showed that there was no parallel crime associated with the use of cannabis. So why have convictions for cannabis increased and those for heroin decreased? As long as cannabis remains against the law the police will always find it easier to arrest cannabis users because any college student arrested with a single joint can be chalked up as a captured narcotic offender. The time is long past for the government to stop talking and start legislating to decriminalize cannabis. I suggest that all supporters of decriminalization write immediately to their MPs in Ottawa and make their views known, and also contact the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws in Canada. (NORML Canada, HI East Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5T 1W1). —Carol A. McGrath, 3730 Press Avenue, Victoria.

Book Offered

This decade will be remembered for its focus on the origins of the Canadian people. It's a time when the voices of our native peoples have spoken strongly of their territorial and cultural rights — especially at recent pipeline hearings.

This year, to celebrate Canada's 110th birthday, we have had the pleasure of collaborating in the publication of Ikarut Silakkut (Bridges-Over-The-Air) by Canadian author Rod Chiasson, a research advisor to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC).

The aim of this limited edition publication is to make the north present in Canadian consciousness. It outlines a broadcasting concept, using short wave radio, for the Inuit people to create a common meeting ground. We at Multilingual Television have a particular affinity for the book's concept since it touches the roots of native cultures. It is a positive step towards meeting the objectives of Inuit cultural survival. The book will be of interest to all Canadians who truly care about the survival of one of our basic cultures: that of the Inuit people.

A number of these books have been forwarded to opinion leaders, institutes and universities across Canada and throughout the world. We shall be delighted to make copies of a second special edition (2,000) available to those readers, on a "first-come" basis, who will write to us as follows: Bridges-Over-The-Air c/o Multilingual Television (Tor.) Ltd. 1000 Lawrence Avenue West Toronto, Ontario M6A 1P2 — Dan Iannuzzi, President, Multilingual Television (Toronto) Ltd.

Phrodo Q. McDuck

Where is our elected MLA Lyle Kahl?

Cutting ribbons at a Sooke beer hall. Cutting ribbons at a new pub in Langford. Lobbying for a $750,000 (plus upkeep) park on Triangle Mountain that nobody wants. Lobbying for the lagoon spit to be included into Ford Rodd Hill. Worrying about the size of a fish contest. What miasma, Kahl.

Does he care about a western community plan no one wants, forced upon us by two directors and a chief planner? Saanich is still working on their plan after 10 years and 188 amendments. If Saanich aldermen forced a plan upon their citizens, as is being forced upon us, the western community, the citizens would tar and feather them.

Does he care about a raw sewage outfall off Esquimalt Lagoon? Not a whimper, why?

Where are his views and comments, and why the silence on these important issues? Perhaps another effigy hanging to include our MLA would make him realize the citizens are livid with his non-actions.

If your popularity increases anymore than it is now, Mr. Kahl, I would sit out my term, and disconnect the phone.

As Gordon Gibson stated, Phrodo Q McDuck, (Q is for quack) which is for you an effort. — Frank Heinrich, President, Concerned Citizens of B.C., 3504 Happy Valley Road.

Price Restraint

While appreciating the beauty and good qualities of this land which adopted me, it is nevertheless sometimes fitting to reflect upon the traditions on the land of one's origin Permit me therefore to inform your readers that today is "The Glorious Twelfth" (August 12): so called because it is the opening of the shooting season on the grouse moors of Scotland.

I, however, propose with your kind permission, to deal with a grouse of a different sort: may I acquaint you with the fact that in Duncan the price of 144 tea bags has gone up from $2.49 via $2.69 to $4.19 all in the space of two weeks.

As I write, I can see the Union Jack (which I am flying in response to Jubilee Day) snapping bravely in the breeze. I fear that this flag and what it represents will soon be no more. The British Empire was fuelled on tea: if I read the signs right there is a conspiracy afoot to price the empire out of its fuel!

I am serious about this. I would mention that in spite of my name (the sort unfortunately associated with casual bomb throwing in these unhappy days) my greatgrandfather was in the service of the queen from whom your fair city takes its name. My grandfather, my father, myself have also served king and country to a greater or lesser extent — this apart from a residual predilection for tea.

Now I have mentioned this matter (albeit without much hope) to the chairman of the AIB. This organization, noted for its briskly efficient rollbacks to the designated eight per cent of all those exaggerated wage settlements, with which we are so beset nowadays, nevertheless seems powerless then to protect the purchasing power of its unwilling clients from attack by the merchants. Everybody today can find from his or her own experience examples similar to the one I quote, of the erosion of our assigned purchasing power by the minutiae of price increase. Death by the thousand cuts is just as final (and even more painful) than that by the single sword thrust.

It is my firm belief that the vast mass of my fellow Canadians is willing to accept restraint for the common good. They are reasonable people. Unhappily, "unreasonable" wage demands arising from anger and frustration rather than from acquisitiveness will continue to plague our society until the entrepreneurial and merchant class to which I am told the country owes much of its progress, learn to moderate their acquisitiveness and expectations — also for he common good. I would be the last person to deny these men the reward for their efforts, the first to allow that many people benefit from their activities. But to their responsibilities I would add two more: not to take out rewards disproportionate to their services, and above all to give good example of restraint, by holding prices where they are. We will all be the better for it — P. E. O'Carroll, 55 Rolmar Crescent, RR 2, Cobble Hill.

Hydro Dinosaur

Who complains about mild weather and people conserving energy? B.C. Hydro, that's who. At least these are the "explanations" provided by B.C. Hydro for their $13 million loss so far this year. Are we to assume that rotten weather, a lowering of insulation standards, and a total neglect of energy conservation should be the goals for this crown corporation? Of course not.

Let's face it, there's a lot more at stake than the simplistic answers provided by B.C. Hydro. This same crown corporation has been borrowing record amounts of capital in anticipation of high demand projections into the indefinite future. Just this year alone, the provincial government increased B.C. Hydro's borrowing power by $650 million. If this approach goes unchanged, B.C. Hydro will conclude that sooner or later virtually every river in this province will have to be dammed and every valley flooded.

There's only one problem — the universe is not unfolding according to B.C. Hydro's timetable. Demand is far less than the eight to nine per cent predicted by their "experts." The public is starting to conserve energy, industry is shopping around for alternate energy sources like waste wood, and governments are increasing insulation standards.

All this leaves B.C. Hydro choking on its own debt. Over 40 per cent of its revenue which is your electricity bill and mine now goes to pay its bond holders. That totals $250 million per year. No wonder Hydro is losing money.

B.C. Hydro will keep on losing money under its present rate structure unless it ends its excessive borrowing policy, plans on reasonable demand projections, and really starts pushing energy conservation for all its users. A lot of people are now asking: "Is B.C. Hydro capable of reading the writing on the wall or are they like the dinosaur, unable to adapt?"—Graham Farstad, Chairman, McGregor Action Group, Prince George.

When, if Ever, Should a Murderer Be Freed?

By MICHAEL DAVIE
London Observer

According to a well-connected professor of our acquaintance, Mrs. Valerie Eliot, the widow of the poet, T. S. Eliot, not long ago encountered Lord Longford, the chairman of Sidgwick and Jackson, the publishers, and prison visitor. Lord Longford conversed, as he often does, about his prison visits to Myra Hindley, the murderess, and repeated his well-known view that she was genuinely rehabilitated. Indeed, she had been reading some of the work of Mrs. Eliot's late husband. Oh, said Mrs. Eliot, and what was that? "Murder in the Cathedral," he replied.

Lord Longford's unawareness of the reactions or natures of ordinary people was on display again recently in the BBC TV program about Myra Hindley. He seems to find it hard to understand why other people feel less charitable towards Hindley than he does himself. The program discussed the possibility of releasing Hindley, who has now been in prison for 11 years. During the program, the mothers of the children murdered by Hindley and her associate, Brady, said they would like to kill her. Next morning, the Daily Mirror's main front-page headline read: MYRA HINDLEY TV FURY.

In campaigning for Myra Hindley's release, Lord Longford helps to keep fresh the public memory of the Moors Murder case, which in any case would not easily fade. In May 1966, Hindley, then 23, was found guilty with her lover, Ian Brady, of killing two children, and of being an accessory to the murder of a youth. Hindley and Brady were sentenced to life imprisonment.

Her future presents the state — society — with a special problem. Because the case was particularly repugnant, people at large are particularly interested in Hindley's fate; and the possibility of her release, as advocated by Lord Longford, keeps up the tension. Her sentence was indeterminate. If you don't have capital punishment — it was abolished in Britain in 1965 — how do you decide when a person like Hindley has been sufficiently punished? Again, to what extent should the evident public feelings of extreme hostility towards Hindley — and the strong possibility that she would be torn to pieces if she were released — affect the thinking of those responsible for her future?

Hindley was admitted to Holloway prison, in North London, on May 7, 1966. At first, she spent much time petitioning the prison authorities for permission to see Brady, which they refused. She asked Lord Longford to help her; she began a regular correspondence with him.

Hindley had been brought up a Roman Catholic. Two years ago, Lord Longford released for publication letters from Hindley to himself in which Hindley, in 1970, had described her religious feelings: "I don't think I could adequately express just how much it means to me to have been to confession and to have received Holy Communion . . . I feel spiritually reborn."

In 1972, the governor of Holloway Prison, Mrs. Dorothy Wing, drove Hindley to Hampstead and took her for a walk on the Heath. Prison officers have a hot line to Fleet Streeet, and the story, next day, was front-page news; the Home Secretary publicly rebuked Mrs. Wing, and ordered that Hindley should not be taken out again.

In April 1974 Hindley was back in the headlines when she was convicted at the Old Bailey (and given a token one-year sentence) for conspiring with two women — another prisoner and a prison officer — to effect her escape from Holloway. Hindley and the prison officer, it emerged, had struck up a lesbian relationship.

Because of this back-history Myra Hindley now is a special case. The total number of "lifters" in U.K. jails is 1,237. Of these, 33 are women. Hindley has served the longest. Only 31 lifers have been in jail longer than she has, the longest serving lifer has done 24 years, so far.

When Myra Hindley was imprisoned, the Parole Board did not exist. Prisoners were or were not released on the prerogative of the Home Secretary. The Parole Board started work on April 1, 1968; at first it did not deal with lifers, only with those on fixed-term sentences.

But since 1973, there has been a special procedure for the release of lifers. The Parole Board consists of 39 members (11 of them are women) appointed by the Home Secretary. This board has a sub-committee, the Joint Review Committee which consists of the Chairman of the Parole Board — Sir Louis Petch, a former Treasury official who is regarded as sound, humane, and orthodox; the Vice-Chairman (a High Court judge); a psychiatrist; and Home Office officials.

This body automatically reviews the future of lifers after they have served three or four years in jail.

The idea is that during this time they will be observed, classified, and thier prison "careers" planned. Towards the end of this period, their cases come up before the Joint Review Committee.

The JRC considers only whether the case is to be considered by other bodies: their proceedings are "talks about talks." If there are strong mitigating factors — e.g., a mercy killing — then the committee might decide that a lifer's case for release should be considered quite soon. In other cases, it might defer consideration for a number of years. It can defer a case indefinitely.

If the JRC decides that a case should be considered, it goes before a Local Review Committee; there is one such committee for each of the 16 lifers' prisons.

Suppose that the case of Myra Hindley came before the local committee at Durham Prison, where she is now incarcerated. The committee could not release her. It could recommend either that her case should be examined by the Parole Board itself, or that she should stay inside for longer.

Suppose it was decided that her case should go to the Parole Board. The board is now so busy and so huge — judges, psychiatrists, criminologists, probation officers, etc. — that it operates in panels of five. The panel that would consider Hindley would consist of the chairman of the board, a judge, a psychiatrist, and two other board members.

They could recommend the release of Hindley to the Home Secretary. He would then have to consult the Lord Chief Justice and the Moors Murder trial judge, Sir Fenton Atkinson, who is still alive but retired. The Home Secretary need not accept the advice either of the board or of the judges; but he could not release Hindley off his own bat, without a Parole Board recommendation.

LONGFORD
. . . seeks her release

One jargon-word that causes muddle is "parole." A lifer is not "paroled." "Parole" applies only to released prisoners with determinate sentences; if a prisoner sentenced to eight years is released after four years, his parole ends after another four years and he is then a free man. A lifer is released not on "parole" but on "licence" — and remains on licence for the rest of his or her days.

Home Office-watchers think that Hindley must have been up at least twice for review. But no recommendation for her release has been made; or, if it has, the Home Secretary has vetoed it.

The questions arise: How long should she serve? How do you judge the risk of releasing her?

The answer to the first question is anyone's guess. The retributionists say, "Her life sentence should mean a life in prison," regardless of whether she has been 'rehabilitated' or not. But this position can be sustained only if you rule out the possibility of rehabilitation.

Suppose, though, that you accept the idea (on which the justification of our prison system is partly based) that any criminal, however atrocious a crime, can repent and can be reformed — what then? How do you decide when a murderer has been punished enough? On what basis do you choose one span of years rather than another?

Opinions differ about Hindley. Lord Longford and his associates —, including Janie Jones, the singer-turned-madam — evidently believe that there would be little or no risk to the public if Hindley were released. Others are not so sure. One well-informed source told me: "Hindley has survived remarkably well in prison. She is very much intact. She is very self-possessed, highly competent and very intelligent. For someone who went into prison at the age of 23, she is quite exceptional.

"She is also highly manipulative. She showed as much in the escape plan. She has been behind a lot of scheming in her prisons. She has shown herself capable of dominating other prisoners and even prison staff.

"People say that, as a very young girl, she was wholly dominated by Brady. I suspect that notion is wholly untrue. If she were like that, would she have survived so well in prison? The view may well be taken that she is a highly dangerous woman who presents a continuing risk. In a sense, of course, it could be true that she has both rehabilitated herself and that she is still a risk."

Experts seem to agree a Home Secretary would have to be very bold to release her now, even if the Parole Board recommended it. There would be a public outcry; and her life would be in danger. It is unimaginable that she could be safely released back into the community she came from. Could she not change her name? Every reporter in the country would try to unmask her; and what then?

Could public opinion change, with the passage of time? Hindley has a public relations operation in being. It might help if she could be seen to be doing things that demonstrated repentence. Lord Longford, several people remarked to me, would be doing her a favour if he stopped talking about her, which helps to keep her in the spotlight.

There is another point: What more can be done to help the relations and friends of victims, and society as a whole to deal with vengeful feelings? It is not up to the rest of us to criticize the parents of Hindley's victims because they still, after 11 years, want to kill her. We many note, though, that no one has succeeded in helping them to defuse their anger and pain. Perhaps we should pay as much attention to that fact as to the case of Myra Hindley.

'Brave Experiment' Comes to an End in Peru

By HUGH O'SHAUGHNESSY
London Observer

MORALES . . . financial squeeze

Last month saw the death, after a long and debilitating illness, of a political phenomenon which was once as powerful in Latin America as Nasserism was in the Arab world. "Peruanismo" or Peruvianism was born in the last months of 1968 after a military junta toppled the civilian government of Peru and its leader Fernando Belaunde Terry, a dreamy upper-class architect with a penchant for populist politics.

To the surprise of most observers in 1968 the military, who soom came under the leadership of the army commander General Juan Velasco Alvarado, did not start setting the clock back and instituting a repressive right-wing government as previous Peruvian military government had done. Instead they opted for a line of nationalism which led them to take over United States companies and come into conflict with Washington.

They also attempted to put through a policy of change and modernization of the often feudal conditions reigning in Peru. Proclaiming that they were neither capitalists nor Communists, they decreed measures which put greatly increased power into the hands of employees while limiting the hitherto limitless power of Peruvian employers.

The novel and refreshing attitudes of the Peruvian military soon became widely known and admired outside Peru itself, all the more so since the Velasco administration set great store by the idea of Third World solidarity and Peruvian diplomats soon became prominent in Third World gatherings. Velasco, nicknamed El Chino, the Chinaman, was on terms of intimacy with President Allende in Chile.

Though it was not clear at the time, the mortal illness of Peruanismo started when General Velasco was overthrown in August 1975 by his colleague and former Finance Minister, General Francisco Morales Bermudez, who seized office in a bloodless coup staged appropriately enough during the conference of non-aligned countries being held in Lima.

General Morales progressively revealed himself as a man of more conservative principle than his predecessor. But his natural conservatism was greatly reinforced by the deteriorating economic and financial circumstances that Peru found itself in. From last year onwards falling prices for Peru's main exports and a growing scarcity of fish in the country's processing factories meant falling export revenues. At the same time imports were still at a high level as the government struggled to finish major investment schemes in mining and oil production. A good deal of money too was spent on armaments. This year the financial squeeze on the government has become almost insupportable as it fights to pay its bills from emptying coffers.

Early in the year it went to the International Monetary Fund in Washington for emergency assistance The Fund, made up of highly orthodox officials who had little patience for any lingering Peruanismo, roughly told Morales to chop back on such things as government subsidies on food, a measure of welfare which stops many Peruvian families from starving to death. They also told him to put up the price of petrol, a move which meant increasing still further the inflation already being caused by last year's decision to devalue drastically the sol, Peru's monetary unit.

The conditions the Fund imposed in exchange for help became the subject of intense debate in Lima and it is not clear yet how far the government's decsion to adopt them is to be implemented.

What is clear is that Morales is not going to tolerate any challenge to his rule. Recent union protests against the Fund conditions were rejected and the government has told employers that they can dismiss those of their work forces who led last month's anti-government strikes.

Now he has announced that the armed forces' term of office is to expire without fail in 1980, after a constituent assembly is called together in the second half of next year. Morales has said that the social advances brought about since 1968 will be protected in future. But wheteher that assurance will be carried out is matter for some speculation. A brave experiment seems to have come to an end for ever.

The Sunburn Index

russell baker

It was inevitable that sooner or later we would have the sunburn index. Scientists of the index industry had always known a sunburn index was theoretically possible, but the zealots among them had been restrained from creating it.

For one thing, Universal Index Inc., the giant of the index world, was totally absorbed in other high-priority tasks. It had to construct the Consumer Price Index to prove that life was too costly to be indulged in. It had to produce the temperature-humidity index to persuade doubters they were truly miserable on hot, muggy days.

* * *

Then it was asked to turn out an index to give earthquake victims mathematical assurance that they were in bad shape. Its solution: the famous Richter scale, providing people who had been ruined or killed by an earthquake a satisfying mathematical measure of the quake that had done the job.

The Richter scale had scarcely come off the production line before hotheads began clamoring for a crash program to build the dreaded sunburn index. They were led by the brilliant Dr. Heinz Plumbaum, known as "the father of the foreign-policy-speech index."

The ingenuity with which Plumbaum had solved the difficult problem of assigning mathematical weight to foreign-policy speeches had made him an awesome figure in the industry. For years his colleagues had wrestled with the problem of rating these speeches on a scale of 1 to 9, or 1 to 20, without luck. Then Plumbaum, with characteristic brilliance, abandoned the mathematical line entirely.

The solution, he pointed out, was quite simple. All foreign-policy speeches could be indexed as "major," since Presidents and Secretaries of State, the only persons who ever gave them, would never deliver a minor foreign-policy speech, and since everybody would laugh at them if they gave a maximum foreign-policy speech.

Since then, every foreign-policy speech delivered in the United States has been major. Plumbaum has never been satisfied with this triumph of indexing. The task of a good index, he reasons, is to make the world a more dismaying place, not to help politicians inflate their egos.

Thus, the Consumer Price Index depresses everybody once a month, as systematically as a fine clock, with precise evidence that we are all getting poorer. The temperature-humidity index oppresses you with indisputable mathematical evidence that you are miserable, even though you feel fine. The air-quality index reminds you that death is approaching faster than you suspect.

* * *

What Plumbaum wanted was an index that would take the joy out of a perfectly lovely day — a day when the temperature-humidity index was delightfully low, the air-quality index delightfully fresh and the Consumer Price Index still two weeks from publication, a day when there wasn't a single earthquake rumbling anywhere at all, a day when nobody was even planning a major foreign-policy speech.

On such a day, Plumbaum reasoned, what was needed was a sunburn index. Handed to radio stations and broadcast to a happy people, a sunburn index would dry up their happiness juices in jig time and keep the nation in a posture of incipient psychosis necessary to protect it from the threat of contentment.

No longer would people wander happily out of doors and come back murmuring, "It's hot out there in that sun." Now loved ones would plead with them not to risk immolation, pointing out that the sunburn index was 9 on a scale at which 10 meant instant incineration.

* * *

Plumbaum moved quickly to produce the sunburn index two years ago. It was a crash program aimed at ruining the Bicentennial summer of 1976, but Universal Index Inc. postponed production until this spring. Not because it wanted people to enjoy the summer of the nation's birthday; its business, after all, is to raise the national misery index.

Its factory, however, was tied up producing the brand-new wind-chill factor in time to intensify the misery of the winter of 1977. Thanks to a production-line miracle, it had the wind-chill factor on the market in time for thousands of misery dispensers to assure people that though the thermometer read only 5 degrees below zero, the wind-chill factor would make them feel as if it were 60 below.

The next index is already on the planning board. Its nature, of course, is secret, but company officials wink happily when they talk about the future, which probably means that if we think there is nothing more they can do to spoil our day, we are living in a fool's paradise.

Major Fight Over Canal Begins

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Conservatives began a major letter-writing and advertising campaign Sunday designed to block congressional approval of the administration's new Panama Canal treaties.

The campaign began on a day when Sens. Strom Thurmond (Rep.—S.C.) and Jesse A. Helms (Rep.—N.C.), who last week visited the Panama Canal Zone, went on national television to denounce the treaty proposals as harmful to American economic and defence interests and as a capitulation to "blackmail."

Helms, who appeared on Meet the Press (NBC) with Thurmond, also promised there would be a Senate filibuster against ratification of the treaties. "You can count on it," he said.

Carter administration strategists believe they now have about 50 of the 67 votes needed in the Senate to ratify the treaties, but that they will have to go through a gruelling national debate to win the other 17.

Even if the administration is correct in its present count of pro-treaty Senate votes, there is little likelihood the treaties could be ratified this year.

Sen. John Sparkman (Dem.—Ala.), the committee chairman, reportedly is "open-minded" about the treaties. But groups like the American Conservative Union, which launched its newspaper advertising campaign Sunday, are hoping to win over Sparkman.

"In our ad campaigns, we are concentrating on the South," said ACU spokesman Fran Griffin. "As far as the treaties go, if the southern Democrats remain with us on this issue, we could defeat it in the Senate," she said.

Griffin said her organization plans to spend $50,000 this week on newspaper advertisements, mostly in southern states.

Money to pay for the ads came from an ACU letter appeal conducted in May, she said. She said nearly all of those funds would be spent this week, but that the ACU is counting on the ads to generate more funds.

ACU ads appearing Sunday in newspapers in Jackson, Miss,. bannered the conservative position on the Panama Canal issue:

"There is no Panama Canal. There is an American Canal at Panama. Don't let President Carter give it away," the ad said.

The ad warned that America's international image would be hurt if it went through with the agreements, which would grant Panama control over the Panama Canal and the Canal Zone by the year 2600 but also would give the United States the right to defend the waterway indefinitely.

Cheaper Pipe Favored

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger says the Carter administration may favor an overland pipeline through Canada for Alaskan natural gas, if it would be cheaper for U.S. consumers than a pipeline through Alaska.

The Alaskan route would require costly tanker shipments to the West Coast. U.S. and Canadian representatives are discussing the pipeline question.

Schlesinger said in an interview he may enter negotiations with Canada in time to permit a policy recommendation by President Carter soon after Congress reconvenes next Sept. 7.

The National Energy Board of Canada has recommended construction of a pipeline along the Alaska Highway for moving the natural gas to the U.S.

As the first U.S. energy secretary, Schlesinger also said he will take a close look at the jacking up of world uranium prices by an international cartel, and the possible involvement of U.S. energy companies.

DROUGHT THREATENS TO WIPE OUT SHRIMP

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The West Coast's two-year drought is pushing the 10-legged California fresh-water shrimp near extinction.

Biologists said Sunday the shrimp cannot be found in their usual habitat — the salmon streams running into San Francisco Bay. The streams have dried up, leaving only stagnating pools.

The shrimp have been around a million years and could have "toughed it out" if man in recent years had not pumped out so much water from the streams, Dr. Joel Hedgpeth said.

To save the species, biologists scooped up a hundred shrimp last April. Half were put in a tank at the Oakland Museum.

The tank was supposed to be sterile, but hiding in the vegetation were eggs of the Japanese coy carp. The carp hatched, and ate the shrimp.

Appalachian Coal Miners Defy Companies, Union Bosses

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Appalachian coal miners are turning deaf ears to their union leaders' pleas to end their wildcat walkout, now entering its ninth week.

Arnold Miller, United Mine Workers (UAW) president, called an emergency meeting of the international executive board in Charleston today to try to resolve the stike that focuses on cuts in the union's medical benefits.

The strike has been concentrated in West Virginia, where 60,000 of the state's 65,000 miners have walked out, closing all but a few mines. Walkouts by 20,000 other miners have shut some mines in Kentucky, Ohio, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Alabama.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall told the West Virginia Press Association during the weekend that there is little the federal government can do to end the strike.

The key to resolving the walkout lies in Charleston's 24,000-member District 17, where miners have rejected back-to-work motions twice this month, said Vernon Massey, district executive board representative.

"If we get it resolved in 17 we can go back to work," Massey said. "I still say that our enemies are the BCOA (Bituminous Coal Operators Association) and the dirty, stinking coal companies, and that is who we should be fighting instead of fighting among ourselves."

Miners from District 17 have vowed to spread the strike, and most of those on strike in other districts say they would return to work if there were no pickets at their mines.

The reduction in union health care benefits was announced June 20, less than a week after Miller was elected to a second five-year term.

Since the funds were established 30 years ago, health benefits have covered all medical costs.

'Big Mess' Oil Spill In Maryland

OCEAN CITY, Md. (UPI) — A major oil spill of unknown origin has blackened six miles of shoreline along the broad, sandy beaches of this resort city during the height of the summer season.

U.S. Coast Guard officials said they learned Sunday night that smaller slicks were reported off the coast at Rehoboth Beach, Del., about 30 miles to the north, and at Assateague Island, which begins just south of here.

"We've got a big mess," said a spokesman at the Maryland State Police office in Ocean City. "We're trying to keep people off the beaches."

Lt. Randolph deKroney of the Coast Guard's Marine Safety Office in Baltimore said more than 10,000 gallons of Bunker C fuel oil, used in ships, started washing up on shore at Ocean City about noon Sunday. "We still don't know where it came from," he said early today. "We still have oil coming in. It's a slick one-quarter mile wide running the length of the beach."

The Coast Guard was checking all ships that moved along the sea lanes off Ocean City in the previous 24 hours.

Sky Experiments Return to Earth

WASHINGTON (UPI — Scientists expect experiments from four nations including the United States to return to earth aboard a Soviet satellite Thursday in another instance of international co-operation in space.

The experiments, including seven biological experiments sponsored by U.S. scientists, will undergo initial processing in Moscow at the Institute for Biomedical Problems before being returned to the United States for more study.

In addition to American scientific apparatus, Cosmos 936 carried experiments from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and France. Scientists from the United States, Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany, Poland and Romania will participate in post-flight processing and a study of he biological specimens.

The experiments were sent into space Aug. 3 from Plesetsk Base in the Soviet Union. The spacecraft, a modified Vostok of the type that Yuri Gagarin flew in 1961 in the first manned orbital space flight, will parachute to a soft landing in Siberia.

The mission is the second in which American life science experiments have flown in a Soviet biosatellite as part of a co-operative effort between the two nations to learn more about how space affects people, animals and plants.

Among the items placed on board were containers of fruit flies and 30 rats.

The first such Soviet-American biosatellite mission was in 1975 when four U.S. experiments flew in a Cosmos mission. NASA carried out much biological research in the Skylab space station in 1973 and 1974 and in earlier unmanned biological satellites.

The space agency plans to resume biological research in space on its own in the space shuttle rocket plane scheduled to start flying in orbit in 1979. Russian scientists are expected to participate in those missions.

PLANE HIJACKED TO SALT LAKE

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Passengers on Western Airlines Flight 550 to Denver first learned something was amiss when pilot Dave Bender announced: "We're passing Las Vegas and we have a passenger who would like to get off in Salt Lake."

Actually, the man who burst into the cockpit 10 minutes after takeoff from San Diego on Saturday had given Capt. Bender a choice of destinations — Mexico, Kansas City and Milwaukee in addition to Salt Lake.

"My first thought was, this can't be happening to me," said Bender, who had never been hijacked in 22 years of professional flying.

"He told us it was a hijack, that he has a bomb and we were going to Salt Lake," Bender said in an interview Sunday. "He told us he'd blow us all up.

"I asked him to let us continue on to Denver, but he said again Salt Lake. Then he mentioned a couple of other places he had in mind — Mexico, Kansas City, Milwaukee. I told him Mexico would be the last place he would want to be, so we went to Salt Lake.

"He didn't seem to be very rational; he told us not to turn around, to look straight ahead," said Bender.

New Trident Protests Set

BANGOR, Wash. (AP) — A summer-long series of anti-Trident protests is ending, and organizers plan another series for this fall.

More than 50 persons have been arrested on misdemeanor charges since the first major demonstration took place at the Trident nuclear submarine base site here July 4 when 29 persons were arrested for trespassing.

The protests and the arrests were peaceful. There were no injuries. Tempers never boiled to overflowing. The demonstrators' main strategy was handing out leaflets at the base gates. To get arrested, they trespassed on base property.

Members of the Vancouver-based Pacific Life Community and Greenpeace Foundation, two major groups organizing the protests, say they feel the half-dozen summer demonstrations were successful, though their main goal — closing the $1 billion-plus Trident base — was not achieved.

Scattered arrests were made last year at the base, but when construction geared up early this summer, so did demonstrations.

Most of the action was day-by-day smaller-scale efforts to distribute leaflets and buttons, some saying things such as "better active than radioactive."

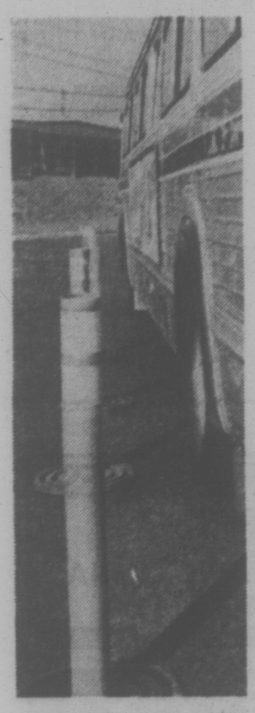
35 Drivers In Bus Tests



It was rodeo time Saturday for 35 B.C. Hydro bus drivers who had to drive as close as possible to traffic cones without hitting them.

The event, open to bus drivers who have not had an accident during the past 12 months, measured skill and safety techniques in a test situation. Winner was Ray Rombough, who will go to the B.C. Hydro provincial finals next month.

Picture at lower left shows that another driver has come close to the cones without hitting them. Drivers lost points if they strayed more than three feet from the cones during manoeuvres.

All participants also took a written quiz and were tested on inspection skills.

B.C. Hydro drivers must make a thorough inspection of a bus before taking it on a run and, in the test situation, some defect was deliberately created to check the driver's concentration to detail. The defects included making a clearance light inoperative or removing one of the tiny licence plates on the vehicle.

A feature of the rodeo was a sharp turn in crowded quarters.

The drivers also had to bring the bus correctly into a simulated bus stop and points were lost if the bus was too far from the curb or stopped outside the stop area.

The tests were conducted on B.C. Hydro property at the Garbally Road depot.—(John McKay photos.)

Yachtsman Girdles Globe Despite Loss of a Leg

Losing a leg in the Second World War hasn't stopped Lawrence Nathan from doing what he likes to do best — sailing.

On Friday the boat reached Victoria, the third major stop in a trip that so far has covered more than 7,000 miles. The other two stops were Tahiti and Hawaii.

Nathan plans to remain here until Tuesday, then begin a month-long tour of the Gulf Islands before sailing south to San Francisco to visit a daughter. Then he heads through the Panama to the West Indies and on to the Mediterranean to visit another daughter in Italy. He hopes to end the trip by sailing via Australia where—you guessed it — he has a third daughter.

He estimates the odessey will take two years. He's in no hurry, he says.

Nathan, who owns a large family business including hotels and grocery stores in New Zealand, says the biggest problem in organizing the trip was finding a compatible crew with sailing experience and time to spare.

He found it, he says, in the four he selected Wally Stuhlman, 39, a boat builder; Simon Gundry, 25, a concrete contractor; Doug Black, 21, a butcher, and Penny Whiting, 27, a sailing instructor.

Only Penny has been in Victoria before. She raced in the Swiftsure a couple of years ago, crewing on the 12-meter Endless Summer.

Stuhlman is skipper, navigator and cook; Gundry is deck and watch captain; Whiting is quartermaster and sailmaker and Black is engine mechanic.

To his crew, Nathan is the PBO, the Poor Bloody Owner. But despite having only one leg — he disdains using an artificial leg -- he still handles his share of the chores and takes a six-hour watch at the helm each day when at sea.

The Kahurangi (it's a Mauri word meaning precious possession) was built for Nathan 25 years ago. He has raced her extensively in races off New Zealand, Australia, New Coledonia and Fiji.

Modelled after a 12-metre sailboat, the vessel's mast is 72 feet high and can put out nearly 9,000 square feet of sail. The largest spinnaker is 4,500 square feet. The boat weighs 25 tons, including nine tons of lead in the keel, and draws nine feet, three inches.

Made entirely of native New Zealand wood, mainly kauri, it has a top speed of 11 knots under sail, nine knots under motor power.

Stuhlman says there are enough supplies to last one month, ample considering it took only 14 days to cover the 2,400 miles between New Zealand and Tahiti, 16 days for the 2,500 miles to Hawaii, and 15 days, 10 hours for the 2,700 mile crossing from Honolulu to Victoria.

"We're doing what so many people dream about but never do," Nathan says, adding "there's only one word for it . . . fulfilling."

Power Cut By Fires On Poles

Three pole-top fires caused some Saanich and Oak Bay residents to be without electricity up to three hours on Sunday.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said today the fires were triggered by Sunday morning's light rainfall causing arcs in insulators which spread to the poles.

There were two pole-top fires on Beach Drive and another at Shelbourne and Feltham.

$1.5 Million Mortgage Called

The holder of the first mortgage on a redevelopment project at Bay and Government has successfully brought a $1.5 million foreclosure action to a conclusion.

This means in effect Westcoast Savings Credit Union now owns the former B.C. Hydro electrical substation renovated for offices by Victoria developer J. A. Mace, Westcoast lawyer Dean Wilson said today.

The foreclosure action was initiated last fall and six months ago the B.C. Supreme Court gave Mace Homes and Investments Ltd., Bay Village Ltd. and Victoria Centre Ltd. six months to square financial problems with the mortgage holder.

The mortgage was not redeemed within this time period and the Supreme Court granted the final foreclosure order 10 days ago.

Miracle's Boisterous

Miracle, the injured killer whale calf, is making such good progress that she's proving a somewhat boisterous patient.

"We're having some trouble slowing her down to have a medical," Sealand owner Bob Wright said today.

"She's eating well, swimming well and interested in everything. She looks very, very strong."

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Is cancer mortality rising? If a person is exposed to a chemical spray which can cause cancer, how long does it take for the disease to manifest itself? B.M.D.

A. Cancer mortality has been rising about one per cent a year. After initial exposure to a pollutant or a chemical spray, it may take more than 15 years for cancer to show up. In some cases, 30 years, depending on many factors.

Q. Are the cougar and the bobcat the same animal? D.B.L.

A. No. The bobcat is a smaller animal belonging to the cat family. Bobcats only occur on the mainland, not on Vancouver Island.

Q. I have some property in Nova Scotia which I would like to offer for sale in that province. To what department of the provincial government should I address my letter? — P.A.M.

A. Address your query to the department of lands and forests, Dennis Building, 1740 Granville St., P.O. Box 698, Halifax.

But We've Never Run Out of Children

One of these evenings, I hope to accept an invitation from a friend. Michael has decided that my chances of catching a fish will be improved if he rows me a few yards out from the home beach in his Dad's dinghy.

Naturally, Michael will require parental permission for this venture into guiding. I've been informed, too, that we both must wear lifejackets — a concession to smallboat safety that I haven't the slightest intention of protesting.

We'll have a fine time. We may even catch a fish. Whether we do or not, we can count on a later glass of milk or mug of coffee, according to our tastes, with the women folk on the shore.

Michael is six years old, brown as a hazelnut from a summer's sun, and looking forward with mixed feelings to starting Grade One in September. To Win and me, he and his sister, Karen, represent one of nature's happier dispensations to the couple whose own children have insisted on growing up.

They are the most recent additions to that elastic, growing, changing company which has paced our years, and without whose lively presence, life would be less interesting than we find it.

These are the Kids Next Door.

Even if you like children and want them, parenthood is a form of slavery. It imposes duties and a swarm of responsibilities. Parents are anxious people, especially those who make conscientious efforts to do a sound job of child-rearing.

I won't claim that it's impossible to enjoy the friendship of your own child or children. They may be the occasional paragon among parents, all-wise, superhumanly worry-proof, calm and tolerant., who makes the grade.

But friendship is a state based on freedom of choice and on equality, and the parent-child relationship that assumed equal status on the part of those caught up in it would be in trouble before you can say, 'Go clean up that bedroom!'

Somebody has to be the boss . . . and well for the family if it's the parent.

Luckily, no such strictures exist when it comes to our dealings with Kids-Next-Door. Even if we were so inclined — which no one with a grain of sense would be! — they are not ours to to order about. We are free merely to enjoy those casual and fleeting associations that children may choose to bestow on grownups outside their family groups.

Looking back along the lengthy file of Kids Next Door whose visitations we've enjoyed, names and faces emerge. I can claim with pride that a young man who is now one of Canada's most brilliant athletes shared the freedom of Win's cooky-jar, and helped me with a project that absorbed us for a number of summer hours.

Between us, we reconstructed an ailing outboard motor. It was a fine, greasy job, one that involved endless consultations and experiments, disappointments and triumphs. I would like to claim that the shared venture contributed to Tommy's later success. But it didn't: it merely taught me that some tasks are better left to the experts.

Another of the Kids Next Door demonstrated that these transient companionships between child and adult may be remembered on both sides by looking us up a few months ago.

Now grown to man's estate, he was far removed from the harum-scarum little boy we remembered . . . the kid who would have forgotten his head if it weren't fastened on tight.

Or so we thought until the visit ended, and the boy transformed by time into a man of presence and dignity turned to his car.

The key was in the ignition switch. The engine was purring softly, as it had been for the past several hours. And the doors and windows were locked.

It occured to me while we went to work with pliers and a coathook that though much had changed, nothing had changed. Chuckle-headed Ken was in a jam again, and it was up to his friend the Guy Next Door to help him out!

A Drink of Water Anything but Easy

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

If you've ever tried to get a group of people involved in a project and found it hard going, consider Dr. Myer Cohen.

His job is to get countries involved.

For three years he's been trying to get underdeveloped countries interested in improving the quality of drinking water and sanitation in rural areas.

Even though he's operating under the umbrella of the prestigious Canadian International Development Research Centre (IDRC), the task has been anything but easy.

Frustrating is the way Cohen puts it. Downright frustrating.

Not that the 59-year-old New York economist expects it any other way.

He has worked on the international scene for more than 33 years, mostly with the United Nations Development Program. There you learn it takes a while to get things done.

Progress comes slowly no matter how important the issue, Cohen said in an interview. He's in town vacationing — his first visit here — and meeting old friends like Dr. Hugh Keenleyside.

Take the problem of water, he says.

It's an established fact that 80 per cent of the people who live in rural areas of Third World nations don't have safe drinking water, let alone adequate sewage facilities.

The rub is convincing people to do something about the problem.

"It's tough to get people excited. The subject is so . . . undramatic," he says. "It just doesn't have much news appeal."

There's another difficulty, too — politics, not only the politics of the countries concerned but that of the international bodies set up to deal with such problems, he says.

The bigger the group, the greater the interference of political views over matters of primary economic or social concern.

Cohen says the IDRC, which is funded by the Canadian International Development Agency, became interested in the water problem and asked him to head a special committee that would act as a catalyst to get action.

The committee comprises experts from the World Health Organization, the World Bank, the UN Environment Program, the UN Development Program, UNICEF, and the Food and Agriculture Organization.

But ever since its inception three years ago, the committee hasn't quiet worked out how the various agencies and countries should co-ordinate their efforts.

The concept of working together is a difficult one to foster, Cohen says.

He points to the world water conference held in Argentina last March, as an example.

"All we got from that were some resolutions and good intentions, but nothing really got off the ground."

Cohen says the committee will meet in Geneva next month. He expects members will agree to establishing a secretariat to co-ordinate the study of safe drinking water problems around the world. The secretariat will be attached to one of the agencies, probably WHO.

He says he doesn't expect any immediate results. You never do working on the international scene.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed Monday, trying once again to reverse the slide of the past month.

Numerous banks across the country today joined in a ¼-point increase in the prime rate to seven per cent.

Analysts pointed out that the rise in the basic rate charged by banks on blue chip loans had been expected because of a recent surge in open market money rates.

But they said investors still seemed concerned that the upward trend would continue in the months ahead.

Ponderosa System, the most active NYSE issue, gained 1¼ to $13¼

Lost Trawler Search Resumes

HALIFAX (CP) — Ships and aircraft headed out again today to resume the search for the missing Newfoundland trawler Cape Royal, two days after rescue authorities called off the hunt.

A request by External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson that the search be continued brought renewed efforts over a broader area to find the vessel, missing for almost two weeks with eight men aboard.

A spokesman at the Canadian Armed Forces search and rescue centre here said today that two helicopters, a Buffalo aircraft and a tracker aircraft were the first four military planes sent out. Another Buffalo and another tracker were to follow later today.

Three Canadian Coast Guard vessels, the cadet training ship Mikula and the cutters 114 and 107, as well as the transport department vessel Cape Harrison and the federal fisheries craft Nonia also struck out to join the search today.

Fog patches and scattered clouds were reported in the area this morning.

AIRCRAFT STILL MISSING

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A search Sunday by 12 aircraft has turned up no trace of a Cessna 175 with two men aboard which disappeared on a flight from Edmonton to Kamloops eight days ago.

Major Vic Keating of Edmonton search and rescue said in a telephone interview that the search is being concentrated between Edmonton and Jasper, because given the aircraft's range and the pilot's flight plan, that is the area in which the plane likely went down.

B.C. Used as Youth Camp Model

SASKATOON (CP) — Most people have no conception of what it's like to work with hard-core delinquents, according to the former director of the Ranch Ehrlo Society's Northern Wilderness Challenge Camps.

Neill Armitage of Lumsden, Sask., who took over supervision of the camps in 1974, told a judicial inquiry last week that extensive research and investigation into similar operations was conducted before the society's now-closed camps began operation.

Armitage said a model for the Ranch Ehlro camps was worked out after studies were made of programs in British Columbia, the United States and Great Britain.

The inquiry, headed by district court Judge J. H. Maher, is investigating alleged brutality the camps as well as the concept of wilderness camps as treatment centres for severely delinquent boys.

Armitage said the program relied on an isloated setting, a forced personal relationship with adults and a gradual building of trust between the delinquents and staff to produce befavioral and attitudinal changes in the boys.

He said boys accepted by the camps typically had been charged with between 30 and 60 break and enter offences before the age of 16. Some had committed violent assaults on family members and one had shot a farmer in an apparently premeditated act.

Many of them, the former director testified, learned through repeated experience to mistrust adults and would go to extraordinary lengths to test their sincerity.

Many also lacked basic organizational skills required for personal hygiene or taking care of clothes and found the successful sharpening of an axe a rare experience of success.

During his testimony, Armitage also reacted to specific criticisms made by department of northern Saskatchewan workers about the camps.

He said a major achievement of the program was getting the boys to recognize and conform to an ordered daily routine for housekeeping chores in response to allegations about lack of programming.

Egg Board Bilking Consumers Despite 2-Cent Rollback—CAC

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) has renewed its attacks on the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) with charges the agency has bilked consumers on the price of eggs.

The attacks come on the heels of a two-cent rollback in the price of a dozen eggs by CEMA last month on the orders of the National Farm Products Marketing Council, the government-appointed body which oversees the producer organization. This followed a thorough review of the CEMA pricing formula.

Created in 1972, CEMA controls the supply and farm-gate price of eggs under authority granted through the marketing council.

The CAC argues that marketing boards such as CEMA result in higher prices to the consumer.

The association forced a hearing into the agency's pricing practices in March, 1976. In particular, it attacked a complex cost production formula used by CEMA to determine the price paid to producers for a dozen eggs.

The consumers' association charged that the formula, which includes such things as the price of feed, average yearly egg production of a hen, labor costs and return on capital investment, resulted in a price about 10 cents higher than justified by actual costs.

The marketing council said at the end of the hearings that the consumers' association had not proved its case, but it ordered a thorough review of the production cost formula.

It was this review that led to the two-cent reduction. The reduction was ordered after a revaluation of the amount of feed needed to produce a dozen eggs as well as an increase in the estimated average number of eggs produced yearly by a hen to 20 dozen from 19 dozen.

The CAC says the reduction proves the association was right in criticisms of the formula but called the price rollback "half-hearted and overdue."

CAC president Ruth Lotzkar said in a release that prices should be rolled back further to compensate consumers for the excess price they have paid up to now.

"It is difficult to believe in the fairness of a regulatory process which, through negligence and delay, can permit endless bilking of consumers' dollars," Mrs. Lotzkar was quoted as saying in the release.

James Boynton, vice-chairman of the marketing council, said the rollback had nothing to do with the charges made by the CAC at the 1976 hearings.

He said the formula "gets a good going over" every two years.

"All we do is survey the situation as it moves along," he said. "If there are changes in efficiencies and they can be passed along, the formula is changed."

He disagrees with CAC assertions that marketing boards mean higher prices to consumers.

"I would like to be able to buy an automobile knowing the price was based on the cost of production," he said.

SWIMMER FAILS TO CROSS STRAIT

NANAIMO (CP)— Warehouse manager John McDermott, 32, of Burnaby failed Sunday in his bid to become the fourth person to swim Georgia Strait.

McDermott covered about 10.5 miles of the 18-mile distance from Neck Point near here and Mission Point near Sechelt.

He was in the water for seven hours and 7 minutes before he was forced to give up because of cold and the four and five-foot waves he had been battling since he entered the water.

He had actually covered about 15 miles but currents swept him off course. McDermott had originally expected to cover 25 miles in 12 hours to make the swim.

Quebec Unity Groups Tie Up with Liberals

By JULIET O'NEILL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government has started forging links with many of the citizens' organizations that have been crusading against Quebec independence since election of the Parti Quebecois last fall.

The federal government's main vehicle is the committee on Canadian unity, set up last month and headed by former federal industry minister Jean-Luc Pepin and former Ontario premier John Robarts.

Committee members start a series of private meetings this week with representatives of citizens' groups. This follows a recent closed joint meeting between committee members and representatives of 20 unity groups.

The national unity committee is reported to have a budget of about $3 million and some citizens' group spokesmen say privately they hope to get money for save-Canada projects.

But Reed Scowen, executive director of the committee, said that despite his agency's mandate to help non-government crusaders, it will not become a source of money for them.

Exceptions could be made for a very tempting project, he said, but "it would be done only very rarely and on special occasions."

On the other hand, some groups are emphatic about their financial independence from the government.

"We're not lusting after government money," says Allan Lawley, a 42-year-old Toronto businessman and co-founder of Commitment Canada, which already is in debt.

Commitment Canada is pushing for establishment of pro-unity groups within existing organizations such as junior chambers of commerce and Kiwanis clubs.

The Canadian Council on National Unity, a more formal organization, recently held a conference to develop recommendations for overhauling the British North American Act, cornerstone of the country's constitution.

The discussions at the meeting were reported to represent debate across the country.

Nydia McCool, spokesman for the Committee for an Independent Canda, said the pro-unity button campaigns advocated by some people are like "putting a band-aid on when you're bleeding to death."

But she said there was merit in telling the government through the committee that "all the regions feel very alienated and isolated from all other regions, especially from the federal government."

"What we see in Quebec is a reflection of what is happening in the rest of the country," she said.

The national unity committee has avoided making any policy decisions until a Quebec member is found. Members representing every region of the country but Quebec have been appointed by Prime Minister Trudeau.

3 DIE AFTER COPTER CRASHES AND BURNS

CHASE (CP) — Three persons were killed Saturday when their helicopter crashed and burned at Upper Harbor Lake, about 37 miles north of this community 30 miles east of Kamloops.

Ontario Provincial Police in Blind River, Ont., identified one of the victims as pilot Jean-Marc Pigeon, 24, of Blind River.

Nearby fishermen spotted the downed helicopter and got out word of the crash. RCMP and transport ministry personnel recovered the bodies Sunday, but said the identities of the other victims would not be released until next of kin are notified.

There were no further details.

Rocks Survive Another Squeaker

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Victoria Shamrocks are two games up on Vancouver Burrards in their Western Lacrosse Association best-of-seven final series, but Burrards appear far from ready to roll over and play dead. Not off their latest thriller.

The Shamrocks had to survive a tense finish Sunday night at Memorial Arena before squeaking out a 10-9 victory over Burrards after leading 7-1 at one time. And that was almost a carbon copy of the first series game.

Shamrocks won that one 11-10 in Vancouver Friday, with Ron MacNeil scoring the winning goal with only 33 seconds to play Shamrocks led that one, 6-1.

And it was MacNeil who was to get the winner again Sunday.

The late Sunday battle followed almost the same lines as the opener. The Rocks got away first and were on top 3-0 after the first period and had run the score to 7-1 at 12:31 of the second before things started to happen, most of them bad for the Irish.

"Stupid penalties," coach Nirmal Dillon called them, and they certainly weren't the smartest plays in the world.

Norm Baker got an unsportsmanlike penalty and when he slammed the penalty box gate, he got two minutes more. Taki Vohalis, more or less neutralized Baker's penalty but, with both teams shorthanded, Ron Pinder scored Burrards' second goal and the league champs were on their way back.

Mike Beaulac of the Shamrocks was called for a legitimate penalty a minute later, but he took another needless one before he got to the box. And, while he was off, Dave Tasker of Burrards scored two power-play goals and Burrards suddenly were within hailing distance at 7-4.

Dave Thomson for slashing and Baker, for a delay of game call, were off for the Irish as the period ended and Pinder rapped in his second goal at 22 seconds of the third period to bring Burrards within two goals at 7-5.

Rookie Doug Angrove, up from McDonalds' juniors, put the Rocks back on track with a well-earned solo effort at 7:24 and Beaulac on a breakaway made it 9-5 at 9:38, but that wasn't enough.

Burrards were coming alive.

Rico Bellusci got his second at 12:35. MacNeil replied for the Rocks at 13:18 in their final tally and then came the fireworks.

Bellusci scored again at 14:18 and with two minutes and 48 seconds to play coach Ross McDonald of Burrards lifted his goalkeeper, Dave Evans. It worked. Not once but twice.

Tasker got his third at 17:36 and Bellusci his fourth at 17:59 and nobody was leaving the place even though it was approaching midnight.

Fortunately, the Shamrocks came out of the defensive shell long enough to hold off Burrards the rest of the way or it would have been an even later night and maybe not a s pleasent for Victoria as it was.

The start of the game was delayed one houd and 45 minutes because of two malfunctions of airplanes scheduled to bring Burrards here. They did not arrive until after 9 p.m. Scheduled start was 8 p.m. The game started at 9:45.

WLA commissioner Roy Burton apologized for the incident and said he appreciated the tolerance of the fans for patiently waiting through the delay.

The Shamrocks were far more ready than Burrards when the game did get started.

They got the jump and kept Burrards off balance.

Chris Hall got the go-ahead goal after missing an excellent chance earlier and then Ivan Thompson put on one of his patented four-goal performances.

With both teams a man short, he took a pass from Angrove to race in and beat Evans cleanly and less than three minutes later he again sneaked behind the Burrard defence to get his second.

He got his third in the second period on a power-play and then got the Shamrocks out of a jam at 13:31 when he scored a brilliant short-handed goal with Terry Sanderson off for slashing.

That made it 7-1 when Burrards decided to do something about a game that was just about out of reach.

McDonald said the Rocks repeated what they had done in Vancouver — got away fast and he feels Burrards must get into their game plan much more quickly in the remaining games of the series.

"Thompson," he said, "just had a super game."

McDonald didn't think the refereeing was that good. "It was just a battle of power plays," he said. As it was Burrards scored five goals with the odd-man advantage and two with their goalie out for seven in all.

Shamrocks scored only two despite twice having a two-man advantage for two minutes.

Other goal scorers for the Rocks were Norm Baker and Dave Thomson.

Goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer and his rival Dave Evans each played well with Smeltzer the busier, particularly after the first period and a half when he blanked the visitors for a total of 28 minutes and 45 seconds.

Third game of the series will be played at Vancouver's Kerrisdale Arena, Tuesday night, with the fourth game at Memorial Arena, Thursday.

AMELITA MANDAP

Tennis Champs Crowned

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Hungarian-born Elvira Kapus proved ont thing Sunday: she is beyond doubt the No. 1 woman public parks tennis player in Greater Victoria.

Stroking the ball beautifully and hitting with all the power of her devastating forehand, Mrs. Kapus defeated arch-rival Peggy Glegg, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2 to win the women's singles title when the summer-long, fourth annual Victoria Times Public Parks tennis tournament would up at Oak Bay's Henderson Park.

Then Mrs. Kapus, who plays regularly with friends at Stadacona Park, took the court with partner Alex Shane and downed Peggy and husband Alastair Glegg in a three-set thrilling mixed doubles final.

The one-time provincial champion and tennis instructor in her native Hungary won the Times title two years ago but didn't defend it last summer as she was having a baby. She is the only player to win two titles in the tourney, which this year attracted 250 players, since it began four years ago.

Former club and tournament player Greg Booth easily won the men's singles title, demolishing a nervous though stylish Chris Forster, 6-2, 6-0. Booth, a 20-year-old tennis and soccer star who was impressive while a member of the Island Indoor Tennis Club, never let his less-experienced 18-year-old opponent get settled down and controlled the match throughout with his solid array of strokes.

But the best match of the day featured flamboyant Perry Evans, who certainly lived up to his boast that he would "win the whole thing."

Evans, still trying to live down his new nickname "Penny" after we mis-read his entry form and put him in the girls' singles draw, just had too much confidence and determination for promising Robert Shane in an excellent boys' singles final. Perry, who had a large cheering section from his home park courts stretched along the sideline, won in straight sets — though he needed to come from behind and take a tiebreaker in the second set to do it.

In a much less energetic though long junior girls' final, Kathy Meredith lost a three-set battle to young Amelita Mandap to finish as runner-up in the event for the second year in a row. Last year she was beaten by Kathy Graham in the girls' final.

The semi-finals were played Saturday and in all it was a great weekend of tennis, in direct contrast, in fact, with last year's finals, which were rained out at Henderson Park and had to be played in the bubble out at Island Indoor.

JEFF SERIOUS WHEN NEEDED

TORONTO (CP) — If there is anything Jeff Borowiak likes better than winning, it may be trying to convince the world he doesn't take tennis seriously.

The tall Californian was the picture of nonchalance for all but the last few minutes of his match Sunday as he upset No. 8 seed John Alexander of Australia 6-4, 3-6, 7-6 to advance to tonight's men's singles final at the $160,000 Canadian Open tennis tournament.

He will meet sixth-seeded Jaime Fillol of Chile who gained the other final berth with a 6-3, 6-3 drubbing of Australain Phil Dent, seeded seventh.

For the first two sets, played under threatening skies Sunday, Borowiak appeared quite loose and relaxed, and even managed to smile when he blew points he should have made.

Only after a brief, but heavy shower interrupted the final set—just after Borowiak won his service 40-0 to take a 5-4 lead — did the 12th-seeded player look as if he cared about the outcome.

The key point in the match came at 6-6 in the third-set tiebreaker with Borowiak serving.

He missed his first serve which wasn't a promising sign, but rather than go for the percentage serve to the backhand, Borowiak laced a serve wide on the forehand. The ball skidded of the line for an ace and he won the next point to win 6-6.

"I was just lucky that shot didn't miss by an inch," Borowiak said following the match. "I knew I'd been serving well up until that point and hadn't double-faulted once. He was expecting a serve down the middle."

Fillol was buoyed with confidence from his victory over second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain on Saturday.

"After beating Orantes, I feel I can beat anyone," said the 31-year-old Chilean.

In a lopsided women's doubles final, the top-seeded South African team of Linky Boshoff and Ilane Kloss outrallied the second-seeded pair of American Rosie Casals and Evonne Goolagong of Australia 6-2, 6-3.

In men's doubles semi-finals, the top-seeded team of Bob Hewitt of South Africa and Raul Ramirez of Mexico earned a berth in tonight's final with a 6-4, 6-2 win over the third-seeded pair of Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia and Poland's Wojtek Fibak.

They will meet the fourth-seeded American duo of Sherwood Stewart and Fred McNair who downed fellow countrymen Bill Scanlon and Hank Pfister 6-3, 7-6.

On Saturday, Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia beat South Africa's Marise Kruger in the women's singles final. Both players were unseeded.

Brill Gets Silver, Cubans Set Records

SOFIA (CP) — Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., captured Canada's first medal of the World University Student Games on Saturday and said she was satisfied with her silver medal in high jumping.

"The Student Games ranks as one of the best track and field competitions in the world — right up with the Olympics and the World Cup," she said.

Brill was narrowly edged by Sara Simeoni of Italy, who finished second to Rosemarie Ackermann of East Germany at the Montreal Olympics a year ago.

"There is no doubt Ackermann is the best in the world right now," Brill said. "I think Simeoni is good, too, but I don't automatically concede that she's better than I am."

Brill, who is entered in the World Cup at Duesseldorf, West Germany, Sept. 2-4, cleared 1.90 metres compared with Simeoni's winning leap of 1.92, a Games record. The previous record was 1.88 metres.

"I didn't get a good jump in my three attempts at 1.92," she said. "There is a tiny flaw in my run-up and any flaw is likely to magnify under pressure."

Even for the Canadian delegation here, Brill's effort was overshadowed by the display of two amazing Cubans — Alberto Juantorena and Alejandro Casanas — who set world records.

Juantorena won the 800-metre race in 1:43.43, one-tenth faster than the old world record he established at the Montreal Olympics. Casanas captured the 110-yard hurdles final in 13.21 seconds, erasing the standard of 13.24 set at the 1972 Olympics in Munich by Rod Milburn of the United States.

No Canadians were entered in either final.

The Canadian track and field team had a dismal weekend with nobody but Brill close to medals. However, the men's and women's basketball teams improved their chances by qualifiying in the championship bracket.

The women defeated Poland 80-52 in what several players agreed was their best game in a long time, while the men bounced Hungary 79-59.

Centre Sylvia Sweenedy had 23 points and guard Liz Silcott 21 as the women's basketball team posted its first victory after four narrow defeats.

Lars Hansen of Coquitlam, B.C., had 24 points to lead the men. Jim Zoet of Port Perry, Ont., dominated both backboards and had 18 points, while Jamie Russell of Niagara Falls, Ont., contributed 19.

The two Canadian volleyball teams were eliminated Saturday.

U.S. Skater Rallies

ST. GERVAIS, France (CP) — Robert Wagenhoffer of the United States won the men's freestyle event at the Grand Prix international figure skating championships Sunday.

He finished with 141.38 points and nine ordinals to beat Brian Pockar of Calgary, who had 139.50 points and 13 ordinals. Kevin Hicks of Windsor, Ont., was fourth with 133.04 points and 29 ordinals.

Carol Fox and Richard Dally of Detroit won the dance competition Saturday night.

Meanwhile, Cathy MacFarlane of Calgary placed third in the short program of the women's event but dropped in the over-all standings to sixth place from fifth.

Kim Scott of Kamloops also missed a jump in her short program but managed to hold onto fourth place with 75.12 points.

Good News, Bad News For Bucs

By The Associated Press

Tampa Bay's exhibition victory over Green Bay Packers, the first of the Buccaneers in 19 National Football League games, was like having a life preserver thrown to a drowning man.

But coach John McKay now may be going under water for the second time.

"It was not an artistic triumph but it was bouyant and we had to have it," said a happy McKay after Saturday night's 10-7 pre-season victory over the Packers. "We couldn't hear any more about how many we had lost in a row."

But McKay's mood changed Sunday when it was learned that his brightest hope for a turn-around season, following last year's disastrous 0-14, quarterback Mike Boryla, will be out for the season with a knee injury suffered in the Tampa victory.

Team spokesmen at first said Boryla only had a sprained right knee, but tests Sunday revealed that he suffered torn ligaments. That probably means Gary Huff will be the starter this year.

Other Saturday night games saw Denver Broncos beat Atlanta Falcons 10-2, New Orleans Saints down Buffalo Bills 20-17, Chicago Bears edge Houston Oilers 14-10, Miami Dolphins top Dallas Cowboys 20-14, San Diego Chargers outscore New York Giants 29-17 and Pittsburgh Steelers defeat New York Jets 26-13.

On Sunday, Cincinnati Bengals held on for a 17-13 triumph over Detroit Lions and San Francisco '49ers whipped Los Angeles Rams 23-14 as Jim Plunkett ran for one touchdown and passed for another.

"Several quarterbacks had topnotch performances Saturday night.

Miami's Don Strock, Bob Griese's backup, had a 36-yard touchdown pass play to Nat Moore in the first half and beat the Cowboys in the fourth quarter on a 69-yeard scoring swing pass to Moore.

Terry Bradshaw completed 13 of 18 passes for 125 yards and two touchdowns as the Steelers breezed past the Jets. Four of the completions and one of the touchdowns were to Lynn Swann.

James Harris threw two touchdown passes, a 45-yard bomb to Charlie Joiner and a 31-yard toss to Johnny Rodgers, who played last year with Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League. Don Goode scored on a 34-yard interception return for the Chargers.

BEAUCHEMIN TIES FOR SIXTH PLACE

'Nobody Wanted It' Except Barr

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Barr of Kelowna needed only an even-par 71 Sunday to win the $20,000 British Columbia Open, the last stop on the 1977 Canadian golf tour.

Barr, who admitted he did not play very well, didn't have to extend himself as most of the contenders in the 54-hole tournament suffered through a string of bogeys in the final round.

Barr, who won the Quebec Open in June and the Alberta Open last week, sank a two-foot par putt on the final hole to defeat amateur Doug Roxburgh of the host Marine Drive golf club and Rick Acton of Seattle, Wash., by one stroke.

"Coming down the stretch, it just seemed like nobody wanted to win it," said Barr. "I was lucky to just have a chance to get it down in two on the final hole."

Roxburgh, who started the day as a co-leader with Barr and Ken Ellsworth of Sun City, Calif., ran into trouble on the final two holes as he three-putted the 17th and rimmed the cup from three feet for another bogey on 18. He finished the day with a 72 or a 54-hole total of 205, seven-under par.

Barr earned $4,000 for the win and an additional $2,500 for finishing the tour as the top point scorer. He also became the first player to win three events and also qualified for a spot on Canada's 1978 World Cup golf team with George Knudson of Toronto.

Acton, who was playing ahead of Barr and Roxburgh, made a bid for the lead on the back nine with three consecutive birdies but he bogeyed the final hole for a 68 and finished in a tie for second with Roxburgh.

* * *

Another shot back at 207 were Mike Ford of Tukahoe, N.Y., who had the day's best round, a 66, and Norm Jarvis, an assistant pro from Vancouver who shot a 69.

Ellsworth, who like Roxburgh had a pair of 67's in the first two rounds, blew to a three-over-par 74 Sunday in a round that included five bogeys and an eagle three on the par five 13th.

He finished in a four-way tie for the sixth place with Bob Beauchemin of Victoria, who had a 67, Dan Talbot of Beloeil, Que., a 72, and amateur Jerry Minor, of Clackamas, Ore., a 73.

Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., a two-time winner on the tour this year, fell to a 74 and finished in a tie for 12th spot at 216.

Another Victorian, John Morgan, also made it into the finishing with a 213 total.

Defending champion Cec Ferguson of Victoria suffered a big disappointment Saturday by failing to make the 36-hole cut. After opening with an even-par 71 Friday, he struggled in with a 76 Saturday and missed the 146 cutoff figure by one stroke.

Ferguson, who turned pro a few weeks after winning the B.C. Open last year, said his problem is weariness. He has been playing steadily since last September.

B.C. BELTS P.E.I. 27-2 IN FINALE

BRANDON (CP) — British Columbia hammered Prince Edward Island 27-2 Sunday to capture the Canadian senior baseball championship.

Russ McKee, formerly of Victoria, led the B.C. batting parade with three singles, a triple and a grand-slam home run in five times at bat. He had a total of eight runs batted in.

The grand-slam homer came in the second inning when B.C. broke the game open with six runs. B.C. had another big inning in the fourth, when they got six more runs, and in the sixth, when they collected nine runs.

Dave Schwab of B.C. had four hits in five times at bat, while third baseman Rick Bultitude was three-for-three and batted in four B.C. runs.

HERMAN

Nothing Like Success To Lift Andy's Spirits

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Andy North almost skipped the tournament that provided him the breakthrough into the winners' ranks of the pro golf tour.

"I was so discouraged after the PGA, really down, I didn't know if I'd even come here," North said after winning his first pro title by two strokes in the rich Westchester tournament.

"This is the screwiest game there's ever been," the six-foot-four, 27-year-old North said. "You can play two rounds exactly the same and shoot 65 one day and 80 the next. It's just the difference of the ball bouncing right or wrong, making a putt here and there.

North, who missed three cuts in a row when he was playing well and feeling good, came to suburban New York with an aching back and some reluctance. And he became the ninth first-time winner this season, shooting a final-round par-71 over the hilly, 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course.

His 12-under-par total of 272 was two strokes better than former Masters champion George Archer, who came out of the pack and took second with a final-round 67.

"I never really got that close," Archer said. "He (North) made a couple of key putts to save par on the 13th and 14th. That left him four in front with four to play and I didn't have much chance after that.

"He knew he had it won and got a little careless at the end. I really made a charge at him, but he never lost control."

North started the mild, hazy final round with a three-stroke lead and wasn't really challenged. His closest pursuers took themselves out with a variety of problems, a double bogey-bogey start by Leonard Thompson, double bogey-bogey by Howard Twitty on the eighth and ninth holes, and a double bogey by Tom Weiskopf on the 11th.

Weiskopf, however, hung on for third at 72-276, four strokes back of the winner, with George Burns, 66, and Andy Bean, 69, next at 277.

Masters and British Open champion Tom Watson was another shot back after a closing 71. He beat Jack Nicklaus, who had a closing 66, by one stroke.

TWO IN A ROW FOR AUSTIN

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Debbie Austin sank a three-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Sunday to hold off a challenge from Hollis Stacey and win the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA golf tournament.

Austin led the tournament from the start of play Friday and avoided a playoff with Stacey with the birdie on the par-five 450-yard 18th hole.

Winning her fifth tournament of the year, Austin shot a two-under-par 70 Sunday to win by one stroke over Stacey, who fired a five-under-par 67 in Sunday's final round, after standing four shots behind Austin when play started Sunday.

Austin from Florida has now won three of the last four LPGA tournaments, including consecutive victories the past two weeks in Long Island and Wheeling.

Austin, increasing her yearly earnings to more than $75,000 in a season in which she and leading money-winner Judy Rankin have combined to win ten tournaments, had to hold off challenges from several other players to win.

LPGA glamour girls Laura Baugh and Jan Stephenson both had shares of the lead during the front nine, but Baugh missed a bundle of birdie putt opportunities to wind up with an even-par 72, and a three-day total of 71-70-72 — 213 to finish in third place.

Stephenson, who shot herself out of contention with a bogey on the 355-yard, par-four 16th hole and a double-bogey six on the par-four, 360-yard 17th hole, wound up in fourth place with a 74-69-72 —215.

ATHANS CAPTURES THREE GOLDS, TITLE

KELOWNA (CP) — Greg Athans of Kelowna, won three of four gold medals in the open men's division at the Canadina national water skiing championships during the weekend.

Athans finished first in the jumping and slalom events Sunday, which gave him the over-all championship.

Athans jumped 169 feet, unofficially tying the Canadian record held by Bruce Reid of Selkirk, Man. Joel McClintock of Mississauga, Ont., won the open men's tricks event, preventing a clean sweep by Athans in that division.

Athans, Reid, McClintock, Gregoire, Messner and Brian Ashley of Kelowna, who finished second over-all in the open men's division, will represent Canada at the World water skiing championships in Milan, Italy.

Rutherford Wins Handily

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Johnny Rutherford cruised to victory in Sunday's Tony Bettenhausen 200-mile race for Indianapolis cars after inheriting a huge lead when Al Unser dropped out 27 laps from the finish.

Rutherford led the final 26 laps en route to his second victory of the season at the one-mile Wisconsin State Fairgrounds Speedway.

The victory earned him almost $20,000 and 400 points toward the national championship. He is in second place, more than 600 points behind Tom Sneva. Sneva failed to finish Sunday.

Rutherford led Pancho Carter, who was subbing in injured Mike Mosley's car, by more than a lap at the end. Wally Dallanbach was third, followed by Tom Bigelow and Rick Mears.

Rutherford ran second to Al Unser most of the race, after pole position starter Danny Ongais lost that position when his engine blew on the 57th Unser, whose brother Bobby also retired because of mechanical problems, jumped Ongais at the start and led—except for pit stops—until he was black-flagged for spraying oil on lap 173. He stopped immediately but was unable to get going again.

Capital, Castle Advance to Final

Capital Builders and Castle Properties cleared semi-final hurdles in the Heywood Men's Softball League but a deadlocked game at Central Park Sunday has stalled the Stuffy McGinnis League's final.

Sooke Merchants and Seaboard Construction battled to a 1-1 draw in a game called after eight innings because of darkness. With Seaboard leading the best-of-five semi-final 2-1, the game will be replayed Tuesday night.

Athletics eliminated Colony Inn in the other McGinnis semi-final on Friday.

Catcher John Thompson scored the winning run in the top of the eighth inning as Capital Builders edged Remco Office Supply 2-1 to sweep their best-of-five semi-final 3-0.

Castle made it more decisive. They struck for 14 hits to trounce Century Inn 20-4 and wrap up that semi-final round 3-1. Bob Martin and Ray Adams both went four-for-four. Martin's total included two homers and Adams had one.

Castle and the Builders open the best-of-five final Tuesday at Heywood Avenue Park.

Rookie Camp Under Way Day Earlier

Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League will launch their rookie camp a day earlier than originally scheduled because of prior commitment for the Nanaimo Arena.

Cougars' week-long rookie camp at Nanaimo was scheduled to start Aug. 28. Because the arena is not available, coach Jack Shupe will start looking at the rookie prospects on Aug. 27.

About 50 prospects, the majority from British Columbia who have not yet played tier two hockey, are expected.

The camp's top players will return to Victoria for the start of the regular camp on Sept. 5.

Victoria-area players invited to the rookie camp are reminded the team bus will leave the Memorial Arena parking lot at 2:30 p.m. on Aug. 27.

Overtime Battle

BURNABY — Dan Wilson fired four goals, including the winner in overtime Saturday night, as Burnaby Cablevision dropped New Westminster Salmonbellies 15-14 to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League playoff final.

Dolphin Miscues Mar Solid Effort

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Victoria Dolphins' coach Frank Hindle predicts "better days are coming" for his Big Four Junior Football League charges and it would not be unreasonable to suggest he may be getting close to the truth.

Winless for the past three seasons, the Dolphins suffered their third straight defeat of the 1977 campaign when they dropped a 26-13 decision to Renfrew Trojans at Royal Athletic Park on Sunday.

The Dolphins deserved a better fate.

The Dolphins came up with what Hindle felt was their best offensive game in two years but Sunday's difference were three Renfrew touchdowns that bordered the "gift" variety.

Trojans broke a 7-7 tie with a questionable touchdown in the second half. Mark Miller took a screen pass from quarterback Dan Therrien to score on a five-yard run.

There was doubt about the legality of the major because Dolphins and many of their supporters felt Miller had stepped out of bounds as the play developed but was back on the field in time to catch Therrien's throw.

Third-quarter touchdowns by Miller and Dan Huclack, putting the game on ice for the Trojans, were the result of defensive lapses by Dolphins.

Miller scored his second major on a third-down gamble from Victoria's 15-yard line. Ready to be buried by a strong Victoria rush, Therrien threw the ball wildly as he was falling. Miller caught the ball and hotfooted it into the end zone.

Another breakdown in coverage enabled Huclack to return a kick 100 yards later in the quarter. It was the game's most spectacular play and another result of overeagerness by the Dolphin defenders.

Mark Krucel scored Renfrew's first major, giving the Trojans a 7-0 first-quarter lead after the convert by Jim Crowley.

Hard-working John Buxcey, climaxing a 13-play Victoria march with a one-yard plunge, and quarterback Mark Townsend, on a six-yard option sweep, scored Victoria's majors.

Despite the glaring miscues that hurt, Victoria's defence did have many bright moments. Especially outstanding was linebacker Dennis Crawford, who appeared to be in on at least half of the Victoria tackles.

Defensive backs Bob Fee and Rob Cowan and end Wayne Stadnyk also played solidly.

More impressive was Victoria's attack. It started slowly but gained momentum. Dolphins held Trojans deep in their own territory for most of the third and fourth quarters.

Therrien's passing, aided by the breakdowns in Victoria's deep coverage, gave Trojans thir biggest edge on the statistical sheet. The Renfrew thrower's eight completed passes accounted for 257 yards, or an average of 32 per throw.

Buxcey, the rookie Townsend, fullback Iggy Kadar and tight end Bob McKeachie were the standouts of a Victoria attack that grossed 266 yards.

Dolphins were beaten 17-14 by Surrey Rams and 18-6 by Blue Bombers in their first two starts.

City Sides Chalk Up Tour Wins

Two touring sides from the Vancouver Island Rugby Union chalked up victories Saturday.

James Bay Athletic Association scored a comeback 16-6 victory over Montreal Wanderers at Montreal and Castaways edged Hilversum 4-3 in Amsterdam.

MILLER WINS AGAIN

Victoria hobby-stock driver Al Miller seems to have the hot hand after winning his second consecutive "A" main event before a turnout of 2,434 fans at Western Speedway on Saturday.

Piloting a 1956 Ford he purchased from 1976 hobby stock champion Billy Hitchcox, Miller moved into the lead on lap nine of the 25-lap event was never headed.

Miller won the feature race and set a track record for hobby stocks the week before at Oyster River Speedway near Campbell River, thanks largely to a new 289-cubic inch motor he installed in his car.

He nearly missed the main event Saturday after a turn-two pileup knocked him out of the fast heat with a damaged front end and right front wheel. However, he borrowed a wheel spindle and was able to make the starting 35-car grid for the feature.

The 20-lap "B" main event went to Lloyd Wilson while Dave Morris, a Nanaimo driver who holds Western's lap record for hobbies, was voted the Ted Birtwhistle Trophy for the best display of driving sportsmanship.

The crowd was treated to a sample of the demolition racing scheduled Wednesday night at Western when a field of 40 to 45 cars will take part in trophy dashes, heat races, cat-and-mouse chases, a main event and a possible powder puff derby beginning with time trials at 7 followed by racing at 8.

In Saturday's abbreviated show, Paul Theberge won the 10-lap heat, Don Nichols took the two-lap heat run in reverse, Lou Theberge captured the three-lap "A" dash and also survived the required two minutes as the "mouse" in a four-car cat-and-mouse race.

Results:

Stingers Are Champs

Dwayne Ferguson blasted three goals to lead a well-balanced attack as Victoria Strathcona Stingers tripped Saanich E. J. Hunter 11-9 Sunday in the final of the British Columbia junior "B" lacrosse championship tournament at Pearkes Arena.

Stingers had advanced to the final Saturday with an 18-10 win over Richmond Roadrunners while Hunters downed Vancouver Blue Angels, 9-4.

Pete McCreesh scored twice to lead Saanich, which had a 3-1 advantage at the end of the first period but fell behind 7-6 going into the final 20 minutes. Saanich singles were added by Rich Gurney, Len Cardiff, Terry Gibbard, Dave Prette, Paul Sharples, Murray McLaren and Bill Van Buskirk.

Bill Bendall blocked 46 shots in the Victoria net while Bill Thomas and Don Metcalfe combined to make 40 saves for Saanich.

Ferguson and Bryant scored five goals each to lead Stingers past the Roadrunners and McCreesh counted three while sparking the Saanich victory over Angels.

In the penalty-marred consolation final Sunday, Angels tripped Roadrunners, 15-9. A total of 179 minutes in penalties were called during the extremely rough contest.

Oak Bay Takes a Pair

Oak Bay, with only one defeat in the competition, tripped Albion on Sunday and Incogs on Saturday at Windsor Park.

Sandy Colquhoun scored 49 runs, not out, to lead Oak Bay to 148 for seven Sunday while David Billingham added 29 and Tim Brierley scored 26. Albion was all out at 142 for eight with John Callender scoring 66 and Brian Heaps contributing 29.

On Saturday, Oak Bay held Incogs to 74, all out, and then scored 75 for eight.

Cowichan took first knock and scored 204 for five with Tim Lord leading the way at 80 and Malcolm Ringham adding 53. Castaways were all out for 176 with Tony Quarless scoring 75.

Albion scored 157 for six and then held on to beat Alcos, who came up with 156 for seven.

NINA LOSES TWO FINALS

She dropped a 6-1, 6-4 decision to Claire Lardner of Toronto in the under-18 singles final and, along with sister Jennifer, was topped in the doubles by Lardner and Helene Pelletier of Quebec City.

LIONS SIGN SUNTER

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Lions of the National Football League have signed placekicker Ian Sunter, who formerly played with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Bates Pick Up Glen Langset

Victoria Bates have picked up an additional pitcher for next week's trip to the Canadian senior men's softball championships but Stan (the Colonel) Kern may put a restriction on the "new guy's" service.

That was the impression Kern left Saturday after a return to old-time form during Bates' sweep of a two-game exhibition series with Stuffy McGinnis League teams.

Bates clipped Seaboard Construction 9-3 and then blanked Sooke Merchants 7-0 behind the perfect performance of Kern.

Bothered by a back injury for much of the past season, Kern put some old-time fire in his throws as he mowed down the Merchants in order in a four-inning starting stint. The Colonel struck out seven of the 12 batters he faced.

Watching the performance at Central Park was Glen Langset. The one-time Victorian, who played briefly with Bates, has been declared the additional pickup allowed the B.C. champion.

Langset, now living in Trail but a member of Vancouver Eldorados for the past season, was added to the roster by Bates manager Joe Patterson. Only the formality of approval by Eldorados and the B.C. Amateur Softball Association, remains.

Bates leave for Hull, Que., and the Canadian tournament next Monday.

Patterson said Sunday that Langset was "delighted and ready" to join Bates.

Bates had some early problems with the McGinnis League teams but put both games on ice with last-inning explosions. The defending Canadian champions scored six runs in the seventh against Seaboard and scored give in the final frame of the game with Sooke.

Ontario Golfer Reigns

BOISBRIAND, Que. — Cathy Sherk of Fonthill, Ont., shot a women's course record 72, one under par, for a 72-hole total of 302 and won the Canadian women's amateur golf championship Saturday.

Sherk's four-round total was 10 over par on the par-73, 6,015-yard Hillsdale Golf and Country Club course 20 miles northwest of Montreal.

Stacey West of Thornhill, Ont., the Canadian junior champion three of the last four years, shot a 75 in the final round and finished second, two strokes behind Sherk at 304.

Tied for third place were Cheryl McConnell of Kingsville, Ont., Marilyn Palmer and Gail Harvey Moore of Vancouver, all at 306.

McConnell and Palmer closed with 74 and Moore had a 75.

Moore had set the course record with a 73 in the third round Friday but Sherk shattered it with nines of 37-35. She bogeyed the fourth and seventh holes and had birdies on the third, 14th and 17th.

Valerie White of Vancouver shot a 79, bringing her total to 315, while two other Vancouver golfers, Lynn Cooke and Paula Phillips, finished with totals of 316 and 319, respectively. Cooke shot a 78 and Phillips an 82 Saturday.

Sherk put together rounds of 77, 76 and 77, good for second place after three rounds behind West. Then she went out and attacked the course in the final round.

"I thought that I'd have to shoot 72 today to win," she said.

She was Ontario match-play champion in 1976 and was a member of the Canadian national team.

West, an 18-year-old who won the junior title last week at Manotick, Ont., had a one-stroke lead over Sherk after three rounds but couldn't hang on to win.

TREVINO, PATE SPARK IMPRESSIVE TEAM WIN

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP) — Lee Trevino and Jerry Pate swept the United States to an overwhelming victory in the Double Diamond World Team Classic golf tournament Saturday.

Trevino, the 37-year-old Canadian Open champion, produced a spectacular reminder of his superlative skill in beating Australian Greg Norman 2 and 1 while Pate, the champion, finished with the only clean record as the Americans routed Australasia 3½ to ½ in the final. Pate beat Ian Stanley 4 and 3.

In the morning's mist and rain the U.S. had beaten the Rest of the World by the same margin.

Easy Victory For Rutledge

The Mid-Island winner in 1975, Rutledge carded a two-under-par 106 for 27 holes to finish four shots ahead of Stu Winchester of Comox. Nanaimo's Ian Harper finished third with 122.

Jamie Harper of Nanaimo captured the juvenile crown with an 18-hole total of 81, one stroke better than Hugh Gallinger of Campbell River. Mark Callan of Uplands was third with an 83.

Junior Squad Pours It On

Winners of the first match by a 12-3 score at Uplands the previous weekend, Victoria's juniors tripped Vancouver 11-4 at Quilchena to win the home-and-home series 23-7.

Successful Start For B.C. Bowlers

EDMONTON — British Columbia representatives, including Jessie Kinnaird of Victoria, won five out of six games as the Canadian lawn bowling championships got underway here Sunday.

Kinnaird, with Marie Sage and Flora Martin, all of the Burnside club, topped Freda Roney of Saskatchewan 25-15 in the women's triples competition.

Another Victorian, Carol McGregor, had trouble finding the right weight and dropped a 21-15 decision to Jean Black of Saskatchewan in singles play.

In women's pairs, Selina Silva and Dorothy Macey of Vancouver tripped Eleanor Moon and Elizabeth Blandford of Quebec, 19-8.

Tom Jarvis bounced Bill Malin of Alberta 22-13 in singles play; John Henderson and Lou Sousae trounced George Clark and Ron Swaine of Manitoba 31-11 in the pairs competition and the Graham Jarvis rink (Dave Duncalf, Wayne Hopwood, Bert Corcoran) pummelled Tom Thomas of Manitoba, 26-9.

The men's and women's championships, each a seven-game, round-robin affair, wind up Wednesday.

Ab McBride of Vancouver was elected secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council at the annual general meeting of the body Saturday night.

John Hey of Halifax was elected president and John Carlin of Montreal was voted in as vice-president.

Why do you smoke?

If you're a smoker, you know that smoking a cigarette can be one of those rare and pleasurable private moments.

And the chances are you don't want to give up any of that.

Which brings us to Vantage.

Vantage is the cigarette for people who don't entertain the idea of giving up cigarettes because they find cigarettes too entertaining.

Vantage gives you the taste you want. The full, rich flavour of Virginia tobaccos. But the big difference is the Vantage filter. It's based on a new design concept that gives you so much of what you want in a cigarette, with a lot less of what you don't want.

Vantage is not a heavy drag cigarette. The smoke comes through easily, without a lot of hard work on your part.

All in all, Vantage is a cigarette that has real meaning for any thoughtful smoker.

GIFTS MISSING

WASHINGTON — The U.S. state department wants permission to examine crates of Nixon materials to determine if they contain "missing" gifts given the Nixon family by foreign leaders, the Washington Post reported today.

Poor record keeping may account for some of the unaccounted gifts in the Government Services Administration collection, but officials believe the Nixon family retained custody of some of the presents, the newspaper said.

Federal law requires the president and his family to give the government foreign gifts worth more than $50.

Evan Dobelle, chief of protocol for the Carter administration, is scheduled Wednesday to ask federal court Judge Aubrey E. Robinson for permission to pick through some 200 packing crates of Nixon materials in government storage, the Post said.

TRUDEAUS REUNITED, in a manner of speaking, aboard a government aircraft flying from Vancouver to Ottawa. They left in limousine from Ottawa airport for the prime minister's official residence. "We will be staying together in Ottawa for awhile as father and mother—not husband and wife at the moment," Margaret Trudeau said. The couple separated last May and Margaret went to New York.

NO MOURNING FOR GROUCHO

LOS ANGELES — They paid their respects to Groucho Marx, but they did not mourn him — he would have despised that.

Marx, the wisecracking comedian and master of the one-liner, died Friday evening at the age of 86.

About two dozen friends and relatives gathered Sunday at the Bel Air home of Groucho's son Arthur for an informal memorial service.

"We talked about the good times," Arthur Marx said. "We are so pleased that we did it this way rather than at a church or a synagogue where it would be a cold service conducted by somebody who didn't really know him.

"He wasn't religious," Arthur said, "but he was a really good person."

Marx had joked about wanting to be buried "near a straight man," but a family spokesman said Groucho had instructed that he be cremated. Officials at Groman Mortuary declined to say when that would occur.

Erin Fleming, the red-haired, 37-year-old ex-showgirl who was Marx' constant companion and secretary for the past seven years but was locked in a legal battle with Arthur for conservator of Groucho's estate, was absent.

Aides Claim Hughes Drugged

AUSTIN, Tex. — Aides to Howard Hughes have testified under oath that the late billionaire took large amounts of pain-killing drugs near the end of his life and that he was moved from one tax haven to another as part of a power struggle within Summa Corp., a Texas official said Sunday. "We are talking about soluble codeine, taken by hypodermic, Empirin Compound No. 4 and Valium," assistant attorney-general Rick Harrison said. ". . . He was taking all three of those frequently and regularly over the last 10 to 15 years of his life."

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — "Amber Jim" Hunt, the 11-year-old girl boxer befriended by murderer Gary Gilmore, has her next big matches in the courtroom: fighting a ban on boxing for girls and battling a charge of assault on a pregnant supermarket checker. Her fight to continue boxing is with the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union's Junior Olympic Committee, which instructed Salt Lake AAU boxing officials last April to prevent Amber from fighting. The letter from Jerry Dusenberry of Portland, Ore., chairman of the Junior Olympic Committee, cited possible danger to girls' breasts or reproductive organs as reasons for the ban.

ARCADIA, Calif. — The prognosis for singer Mary Ford, who has been in a coma since Aug. 8, is guarded and her coma has not eased since her admission, a hospital spokeswoman said Sunday. Miss Ford, who sang with guitarist Les Paul in the 1950s, remained seriously ill in the intensive care unit at Methodist Hospital of Southern California.

Son of Sam Secretly Taped

NEW YORK — Prison officials have begun an investigation to find out how 10 hours' worth of statements by "Son of Sam" suspect David Berkowitz could have been taped secretly in the suspect's bare room at a Brooklyn hospital.

On Saturday, literary agent Scott Meredith said someone connected to the case was trying to sell him the tapes purportedly made in the hospital where the suspected .44-calibre killer is being held under heavy guard for psychiatric observation.

Berkowitz already has been indicted in three of the "Son of Sam" ambushes and was expected to be indicted for the remaining three this week.

A correction department spokesman said Brian Malone, the agency's inspector general, went to the hospital Sunday to begin the tape investigation.

"We have records of everyone who's had access to him (Berkowitz)," the spokesman said, "and we're checking all of those."

The spokesman also expressed doubts about the authenticity of the tapes.

"I suppose if I went out there on a security check I could bring a tape recorder in and get something — but 10 hours?" It's hard to believe anyone could record 10 hours worth," he said.

Meredith said a person "close to" the case — whom he would not name — gave him transcripts of a tape accompanied by a handwritten statement signed by Berkowitz authorizing use of the tapes.

Three Titles For Gummer

Miss Gummer won the 100-metre sprint in 12 seconds, clocked a personal best of 24.6 while winning the 200 metres and anchored the Esquimalt team to victory with a time of 48.6 in the 4x100 relay. Other members of the relay squad were Debbie O'Connor, Arlene Mariotte and Joanne Roger.

Miss Campbell won the 400 in 57.5 and the 800 in 2:11.6 while Griffin collected laurels in the 800 (1:53.0) and 1,500 (3:48.0).

Dave Weicker of Athletics won the 3,000-metre steeplechase in 8:54.5.

All the other Victoria-area winners were from Victoria Track Club. Raul Estrada cleared 4.86 metres for a personal best, while winning the pole vault. Brent Fougner captured the triple jump with a leap of 14.39 metres, Murray Keating won the hammer throw with a heave of 65.16 metres and Brian Hawksworth claimed a victory in the 400-metres hurdles with a 54.6 clocking.

Smiley's Dream Wins Rich Longacres Derby

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — Smiley's Dream charged home on the outside to overtake longshot First Purchase in the final strides and captured the $62,600 Longacres Derby, the richest three-year-old race in northwest history Sunday afternoon at Longacres.

Smiley's Dream covered 1⅛ miles in 1.45 to earn $38,100 for the Jawl Brothers of Victoria. First Purchase is owned by another Victorian, Neil DeMacedo.

Jocky Ken Skinner, content to lay behind the leaders for nearly six furlongs, moved Smiley's Dream along the rail in the turn, then moved to the middle of the track for the drive. Smiley's Dream pulled alongside First Purchase inside the 16th pole and prevailed by a neck. It was five lengths back to Ack Ack's Back in third.

The Jawl Brothers acquired Smiley's Dream from Smiley Adams, trainer of Run Dusty Run, in private purchase last month. Enroute to the Fasig-Tipon yearling sales, the Jawls visited Chicago's Arlington Park while at a layover at O'Hare airport.

They bought the Kentucky-bred son of 1970 Kentucky Derby winner Dust Commander for $50,000 the next day. The Derby victory gave Smiley's Dream two stakes wins in his first two starts for the Jawls.

The winner paid $10.90, $7.50, and $11.80. Ack Ack's Back returned $13.70.

A record derby day crowd of 12,904 set a record derby race handle of $204,902 and a record derby day handle of $1,322,880.

Meanwhile, Run Dusty Run, was No. 2 for the seventh time this season, this time on a disqualification.

The Golden Chance Farm colt, who had finished second six times in 10 previous starts this year including the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes, reached the finish line a nose in front of Jatski in the $113,600 Travers Stakes at Saratoga, N.Y. on Saturday.

But the stewards pulled down Run Dusty Run, ridden by Darrel McHargue, for bearing out and impeding during the stretch run.

At Oceanport, N.J., Majestic Light, owned by Ogden Mills Phipps, equalled the track record for 1¼ miles in winning the Amory L. Haskell Handicap at Monmouth Park in 2:00 2-5.

Majestic Light moved out to an eight-length triumph over Capital Idea, with Peppy Addy another four lengths back in third. Early pacesetter Honest Pleasure finished last in the field of six three-year-olds and up.

Private Thoughts, owned by Joseph Sanders of Detroit and trained by his son Greg, won the $150,000 Arlington Invitational in track-record times at Chicago's Arlington Park.

Private Thoughts, ridden by Ramon Perez, went the 1¼-mile race in 1:59 2-5 after defeating Pay Tribute by a head.

Sounders Down Aztecs

Times News Services

Seattle Sounders and New York Cosmos won the opening games of the North American Soccer League semi-final playoff series Sunday.

Sounders scored three-second-half goals to defeat Los Angeles Aztecs 3-1 at Los Angeles in the opener of their home-and-away series while the Cosmos edged Rochester Lancers 2-1 as a crowd of 20,005 jammed tiny Holleder Stadium.

Jimmy Roberston, Steve Buttle and Mickey Cave scored for the Sounders who will meet the Aztecs in the second game in Seattle, Thursday. Bobby McAlinden beat goal keeper Tony Chursky of Seattle for the Aztecs' only goal in the first half.

Steve Hunt scored the winning goal for Cosmos from a mixup in front of the Rochester goal with two minutes remaining in the first half. Rochester had gone ahead at the 16-minute mark on a goal by Mike Stojamovic. Pele set up Giorgio Chinglia for the equalizer 22 minutes later.

The two teams will meet Wednesday at Giant's Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. in the final.

Winners of the two series will meet in the Soccer Bowl in Portland, next Sunday.

SVERIGE OUSTS GRETEL

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Sverige, with designer Pelle Petterson at the helm, eliminated Gretel II from the America's Cup challenge Sunday and moved into the final against another yacht from down under— the Australia.

Sverige, which represents the first Swedish challenge in the Cup's 126-year history, took Gretel II out of the challenge by winning the final race in the best four-of-seven series by one minute and 58 seconds.

They were tied at three victories apiece going into Sunday's match.

Gretel II challenged once before, losing to Intrepid 4-1 in 1970.

Australia earned her berth in the final by beating Baron Marcel Bich's France I in four consecutive races.

In the U.S. defender trials, rival sailmakers Lowell North of Enterprise and Ted Hood of Independence swapped victories Sunday with Hood finishing the day with the better record for the series.

Hood again took the lead in the second, briefly fell behind, regained the lead and then widened his advantage at each mark.

AMC Gremlin.

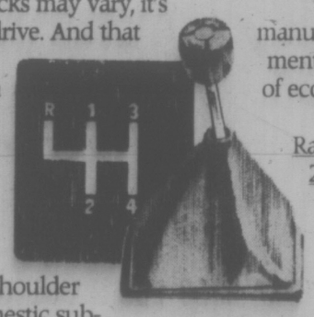
For some folks, it's the way Gremlin zips in and out of city traffic and cruises on the highway with ease. Still others just get a kick out of scooting around in a neat looking car, sitting on their optional Levi's styled seats.

While individual kicks may vary, it's just one heck of a car to drive. And that makes us feel good too, because we built Gremlin to be that way.



Gremlin is wider than most small cars—so it's unusually roomy inside. In fact, Gremlin has more front hip room and more front and rear shoulder room than any other domestic subcompact. And its wide track makes for a smooth, stable ride.

Gremlin comes standard equipped with a responsive 232 CID 6 cylinder engine. An optional 258 CID 6 cylinder engine is also available. But the exciting news this year is the new Gremlin Custom 2 Liter 4 cylinder. This new model with its perky 4 cylinder engine and 4 speed manual transmission as standard equipment, gives you a noteworthy blend of economy and performance.

Transport Canada Fuel Economy Ratings are 40.1 MPG Highway/25.5 MPG city. The fuel economy figures shown should be used for comparisons between various makes and models only. The fuel economy you obtain will vary depending upon such factors as the type of driving done, weight of the car, options fitted to the car, road and weather conditions, how well the vehicle is maintained and the driver's individual driving style.

The 1977 Gremlin is also backed by the exclusive AMC Buyer Protection Plan II which includes a 2 year/24,000 mile warranty on engine and drive train and a 1 year/12,000 mile warranty on all other parts of the car except tires; from the date of delivery or first use, whichever comes first.

So, if you're not driving a Gremlin don't miss out on the fun any longer. Head for your local American Motors Dealer today and test drive a Gremlin of your choice.

Certain items illustrated are optional at additional cost.

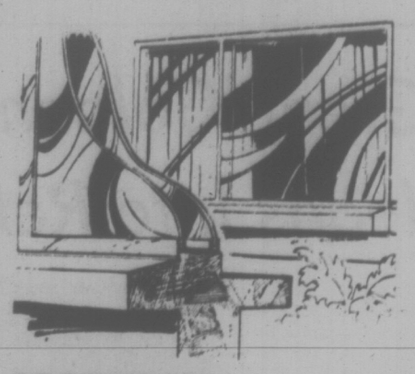
the INSULATION experts

Between-wall foam-in INSULATION

Through-the-wall heat losses can be drastically reduced by the injection of a revolutionary foam insulation material into the wall cavities (between the studs) and this material is fire-retardant, odour-free, resists mould, fungus, insects and will not settle or break down with age.



SECONDARY WINDOW SYSTEM

Designed to be the most efficient insulation with an air gap of at least 1" between your existing window and the inside glass. This is called the secondary window system. Drafts are eliminated right around the window because the aluminum secondary inserts are weather stripped and fitted in the inside. Double glazed windows are also available.

BLOWN-IN LOOSE-FILL ATTIC

INSULATION

Flows into cracks, irregular "hard-to-get-at" areas and covers ceiling joists. A warm 8" blanket reduces heat losses up to 30%. Increased insulation is one of the best blue chip investments available.

Farewell For Brooks

Rated as greatest third baseman in modern major league baseball, Brooks Robinson waves farewell to fans at Bloomington, Minn., Sunday after it was announced that he was officially retired as player after 23 years with Baltimore Orioles. Robinson will remain with Orioles as coach at least until end of this season. (AP Wirephoto)

Carlton Great Contributor

By The Associated Press

Steve Carlton is the winningest pitcher in the major leagues, but it is his hitting that has provided Philadelphia Phillies with an added dimension.

The big left-hander smashed his second home run of the season while hurling a four-hitter Sunday night for his 18th victory as the Phillies defeated Houston Astros 7-3, raising their National League East Division lead to 6½ games over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Carlton struck out 14, the single-game high in the league this year, and tied a club record for left-handers as the Phillies posted their 17th victory in their last 18 games.

Carlton homered leading off the sixth inning, extending his hitting streak to six games. He has had nine hits in his last 15 trips to the plate for a .625 average.

Philadelphia manager Danny Ozark said Carlton's pitching performance "was kind of like five years ago — he just reared back and threw it past them."

In 1972, Carlton won 27 games and the Cy Young Award on a Phillies team that won only 59 games and finished in last place.

On other games Sunday, Montreal Expos crushed Atlanta Braves 10-4, San Francisco Giants edged Pittsburgh 5-4, Cincinnati Reds downed New York Mets 5-1, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Chicago Cubs 5-1 and San Diego Padres blanked St. Louis Cardinals 7-0.

Del Unser drove in four runs, including two with his 12th home run of the season, powering Montreal past Atlanta. Unser, who has hit two home runs in two days — his first two in Montreal's Olympic Stadium — drilled his two-run blast in the sixth. Jeff Burroughs homered for Atlanta.

A two-run homer by Darrell Evans snapped a 3-3 tie and lifted San Francisco over Pittsburgh. Evan's 13th homer of the season came after reliever Rich Gossage, 8-8, had walked Rob Andrews with two out. Gary Lavelle, 7-7, got the victory.

The Pirates lost second baseman Rennie Stennett for the season with a fractured bone in his lower right leg. Stennett broke his leg when he slid into second base in an attempt to break up a double play.

Tom Seaver, helped his cause by scoring twice in Cincinnati's victory over New York. The right-hander held the Mets to just six hits and retired the first 11 Mets batters in his first game at Shea Stadium since being traded to Cincinnati by the Mets on June 15.

Dave Kingman smashed the sixth grand-slam homer of his career, capping San Diego's five-run first inning and powering the Padres over St. Louis. Padres left-hander Bob Owchinko, 6-8, was backed by an 11-hit attack in gaining the victory. St. Louis's Lou Brock stole his 888th base, four shy of Ty Cobb's career major league mark of 892.

If Boston Red Sox and Kansas City Royals wind up in the American League playoffs, the home field advantage might be the deciding factor.

"They don't like to play here," Royals outfielder Tom Poquette said Sunday after Kansas City beat the Red Sox 6-4 on Kansas City's artificial turf and swept the three-game series between the division leaders. The two teams split the season series 5-5, with each side holding a 4-1 advantage at home.

"George Scott was saying they just wanted to get out of here," Poquette said. "You can't come close to them in their ballpark. It's unbelievable. You score eight runs and they come back with nine. Maybe it's a mental thing. I don't know."

Meanwhile, Boston's AL East lead diminished to one-half game over New York when the surging Yankees nipped Texas Rangers 2-1 for their eighth consecutive triumph and 13th in the last 14 games and climbed into second place when Baltimore Orioles, who are 1½ games out, lost to Minnesota Twins 9-5.

In the West, the Royals lead Chicago — the White Sox split a doubleheader with the Milwaukee Brewers, losing 7-1 and winning 6-3 — and Minnesota by one game and Texas by 1½.

In other games, California Angels shaded Toronto Blue Jays 3-2, the Cleveland Indians downed Oakland A's 4-1 and Detroit Tigers edged Seattle Mariners 5-4.

The Royals, who have won 16 of their last home games, broke a 3-3 tie by tagging Boston relief ace Bill Campbell for three runs in the eighth inning. Campbell had two victories and a pair of saves in five previous appearances against the Royals.

"We played horrible," said Boston manager Don Zimmer.

"We gave 'em 32 outs and you're only supposed to have 27. You can't give 32 outs to a good team and not lose. We played totally horrible."

Great 'Golden Glove' Heads Into Retirement

BALTIMORE — The playing career of Brooks Robinson, one of the finest third basemen in major leage baseball history, came to an end Sunday.

Hank Peters, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, announced that Robinson is being placed on the voluntarily retired list so that catcher Rick Dempsey can return to the roster.

Peters said the move was made "at the suggestion of and with the consent" of the 23-year veteran who will remain with the team as a coach until the end of this season and then retire completely from baseball.

In his dual capacity as a player-coach this season, the winner of 16 golden gloves awards for his prowess as a fielder, appeared in only 24 games with a batting average of .149 and one home run. But significantly, the home run won a game for the Orioles.

Robinson played in four World Series and was named the Most Valuable Player in the 1970 series when his superlative fielding at third and a .429 batting average led the Orioles to victory against Cincinnati Reds.

He was also the MVP in the 1966 all-star game and the American League's MVP in 1964. His career fielding average at the end of last season was .971 — the highest ever for a major league third baseman appearing in more than 1,000 games played.

Robinson apparently reached the decision to retire last week.

"I want to do what's best for the club. And I think this would be best for the club.

"What am I going to do, stand in the way? I can't help the club doing what I'm doing now. I can't play once a month. The kids have done the job all year and they deserve to keep doing it."

'Insulting' Trade?

DETROIT (AP)— Centre Walt McKechnie says the National Hockey League trade that sent him to Washington Capitals from Detroit Red Wings last week was a give-away.

"They insulted me by giving the draft choices and cash as considerations," McKechnie said. "They made a bad deal." He was traded Wednesday, along with second-and third-round draft choices and cash, to the Capitals for the rights to free-agent goaltender Ron Low and a third-round draft choice.

McKechnie said Red Wings general manager Ted Linday accused him of disgracing the Wings last spring when McKechnie played as a member of Team Canada at the world hockey championships in Vienna.

"Do you think Ted never disgraced the game some of the nights he played?" McKechnie asked. "I don't like some of the things that have been said about me.

McKechnie led the Wings in scoring with 82 and 60 points the last two years.

Lindsay was in Europe and not available for comment.

BARONS TRADE FRIG

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons have traded veteran hockey defenceman Len Frig to St. Louis Blues in exchange for rights to collegiate centre Mike Eaves.

Canadian Girls Break Monopoly

Antoft and Craig, competing in the coxless pairs, won the first heat of their event Saturday, defeating Romania's Marlena Preduscu and Angelica Chertic.

Antoft and Craig became the first Western crew to break the monopoly. They broke the course record in the process with a time of three minutes, 28.05 seconds, giving them an excellent opportunity in the race for the title later this week.

In the men's events heats Sunday, the Canadians finished third in the second heat of the eight with a clocking of 6:18.68.

Representing Canada were Mel LaForme of Hamilton, Tim Storm of St. Catharines, Ond., and Fred Withers, Bob Hartvikson and Rob Catherall of Vancouver, and Ron Burak of Beamsville, Ont., George Tintor of Toronto, Mike Evans of Toronto and cox Dale Bannerman of Victoria.

The Canadian women's eight, which includes Kelly Jacklin and Ina Delure of Victoria, will attempt to earn a berth in the final today after finishing third in a heat Saturday.

Female crews race over a 1,000-metre course on Amsterdam's Bosbaan Course. The men row 2,000 metres in the regatta that ends next Sunday.

Coach for Caps

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Whitecaps have reached an agreement with Tony Waiters to coach the North American Soccer League team for the 1978 and 1979 seasons.

Clean Bill of Health Given Royal Oak Rodeo

The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has given a clean bill of health to Saturday's Royal Oak Lions Club Rodeo.

But both Greater Victoria general manager Don Adams and provincial executive director Bill Leach agree rodeos should be kept out of Victoria because they inflict unnecessary pain on animals.

Leach, who commutes between Victoria and Vancouver, could not be reached for comment today.

Adams, however, said he and Leach have discussed the matter at length and are in agreement that the SPCA opposes rodeos in principle.

"There were no electric prods; the minimum of activity. In fact, at times it was downrigdt boring," Adams said.

Adams said there is a difference between rodeo activities being carried out on a ranch, because of necessity, and being performed for profit.

He said official studies have been carried out that prove unnecessary pain is inflicted on animals in a rodeo.

He said the studies have shown "bruising and bleeding inside a calf's neck after he had been roped . . . There has to be pain," Adams stressed.

Among the events at Saturday's rodeo were bareback riding, steer riding, women's barrel racing, goat tying, team roping and steer "undecorating." The later event calls for competitors on horseback to remove ribbons fastened to the steer's horn or ear.

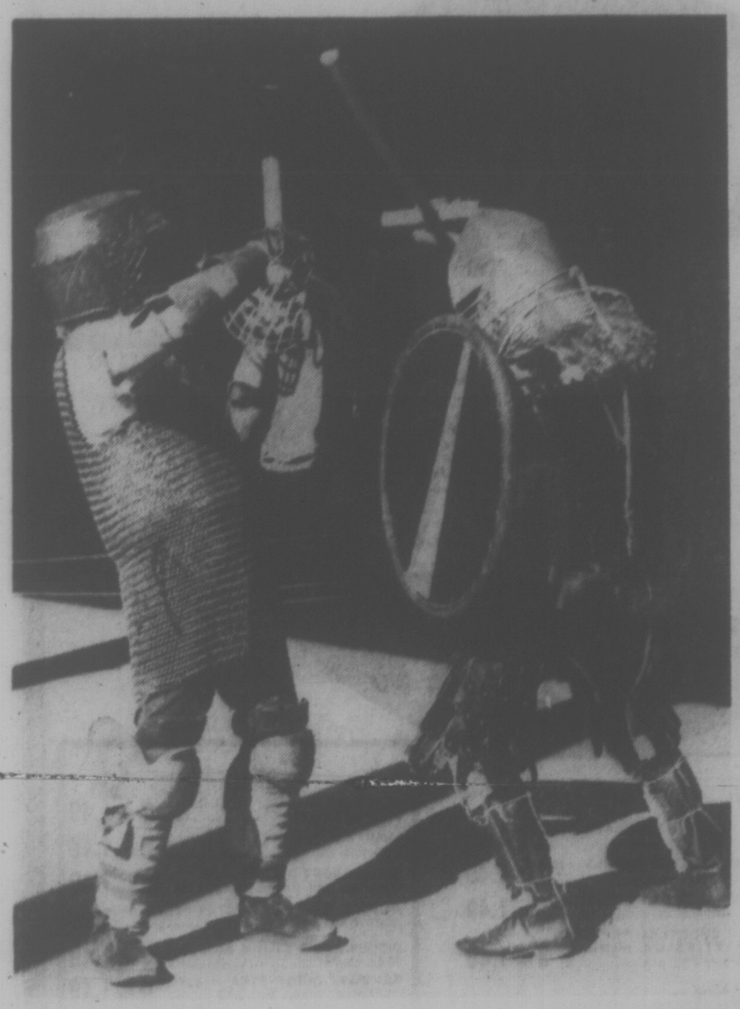
"We are against rodeos, we don't want rodeos in Victoria. We (Leach and himself) are agreed in our opinion there's is a difference between pleasure and a necessity. There are other ways of making money."



Thumping Good Fun

$905,000 Used For 760 Jobs

NANAIMO — Four per cent of the $22.5 million provided in B.C. through the Labor Youth Employment program was used for jobs in the area between Duncan and Port Alberni.

Joyce Bubula, Nanaimo field co-ordinator, said 760 jobs were provided. She said $905,000 was divided among the Cowichan, Nanaimo and Alberni-Clayquot districts.

Country Fun City Style
This Wednesday: a Golden Day for Golden-Agers!
The PNE salutes golden-agers this Wednesday, August 24th, with the first of two special days during the 17-day Fair.
We're featuring free grounds admission for everyone 65 and over, this offer is good the entire day!
There's a special show for golden-agers at 1 p.m. in the Pacific Coliseum. For just $1.00, take a trip down memory lane with MART KENNEY and his orchestra, with special guests THE HAPPY GANG TRIO – Cliff McKay, Jimmy Namaro and Bobby Gimby. Remember them from the good old days of radio?
There will be plenty of other nostalgic moments at PNE '77, too – apart from entertainment.
Because the theme of this year's Fair is "A Salute to B.C.'s Pioneers" and we've got hundreds of indoor and outdoor displays of artifacts harkening to B.C.'s past.
See these displays in the Pepsi Pioneer Plaza, outdoors in the centre of the grounds, and in the centre court of the B.C. Pavilion's Home Showcase.
To help golden-agers to see everything at PNE '77, we've arranged that they can ride the tour trains for just half price – 25 cents – on this special day.
So, golden-agers, c'mon to the Fair! And if you can't make it this Wednesday, try to make it on August 31st, our second Golden-Age Day!

Landscaping for Comfort

By A. J. HAND

We North Americans have become so accustomed to solving our problems through technology that we often overlook simple, natural solutions. For example, to keep our homes comfortable during the summer, we turn to fans, air conditioners, dehumidifiers and so on. During the winter, we turn up our thermostats.

We could keep our homes cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter with a lot less help from hardware. How? Often with commonsense landscaping. Here's what I mean.

Typically, our homes gets hottest late on a summer afternoon. The sun has been shining all day, heating up the home's exterior and grounds around it. Now the sun is low in the western sky, shining in through our west windows and turning the place into a furnace.

Solution? Deciduous shade trees planted to the west of the house. These trees will shade your west windows and the western side of the home. They'll also shade the ground and keep it from heating up. And by picking up water from the ground and passing it out through their leaves, the trees will set up an evaporative cooling cycle.

Planting such trees can lower the temperature around the home by as much as 15 degrees on a hot summer day. They'll also cut down on dust and noise, making it more pleasant to open windows for a natural cooling. During the winter, these trees will drop their leaves and allow the sun to shine through, providing a limited amount of free solar heat.

That's one way to control climate with landscaping. Here's another: During winter, chilling winds and storms blow in out of the north and northwest. Cold winds increase the home's heating load. But a thick planting of evergreens to the north and northwest can buffer these winds. In a Nebraska study, researchers found a windbreak of trees could reduce winter heating costs by as much as 30 percent.

Now shift the scene back to summer. In much of the country, cooling summer breezes come from the southwest. If you want to take advantage of this cooling airflow, don't block its path. Give it a chance to flow in one side of your property and out the other side.

In other words, don't block the southwest and northeast corners of your property with dense planting. If you want to shade the southern face of your home to keep it cool in summer, do so with low shrubs planted close to the house. They can shade the ground and part of the siding without blocking wind traffic.

Back to winter again. If your home has large window areas on its southern exposure, it can gain a useful amount of solar heat during the winter. This is only true, however, when there are no large trees to the south to block the sun.

Remember, the sun is quite low in the sky during the winter. It traces a low arc from east to west in the southern sky. Even short trees can block the winter sun if you plant them close to your home. So avoid planting that will shade your southern windows during the winter.

If you insist on planting trees to the south for aesthetic reasons, make them deciduous. When they lose their leaves in the fall, they'll let through a fair amount of sun.

Several different species of Agave grow over a large part of the desert regions of the Southwestern United States, chiefly in the rocky and mountainous areas at altitudes of 1,500 to 5,000 feet. The Indians referred to the Agave as Mescal and utilized them as a food.

In spring, when the flower buds were just beginning to shoot up from the center of the rosettes, the Indians came in large numbers to the places where the Mescal grows abundantly. They camped for weeks at a time, gathering, cooking, eating and preserving the mescal heads. These heads were collected in huge quantities, and the cooking became a communal project.

The heads were baked. Some were eaten that way, but others were worked into cakes, dried and throughly redried for winter storage. This dried produce was an important article for bartering with the neighboring tribes, as was the very similar article made from Yucca fruits.

Preserved Mescal was eaten dry or recooked and used with other foods. A sweet drink was made by boiling pieces of the cake in water. Nothing went to waste. What wasn't utilized as food was used as fibre for hairbrushes, combs, cords, ropes, bowstrings, carrying nets, baby hammocks and so on. Burned agave was used for tatooing by pricking in the bluish black patterns with a thorn of the Opuntia cactus.

'Just for Today . . .'

During this month of August I've set myself the long overdue task of straightening out my files and getting them into order for the fall and winter season that — calendar-wise — is just around the corner.

The chore, if you can call it that, has uncovered some amazing trivia that I wonder why on earth I've saved, and at the same time, some interesting bits and pieces that I had forgotten were in my files.

A code for living, for instance, that I've had tucked away for over a decade.

It was given me by a young woman with a husband, two small children and a home she proudly said they were in the process of buying.

I remember vaguely that she contended it was a full-time job, planning her day's work around her family and in seeing that husband and children were well fed, well clothed and happy.

Yet, because she liked meeting people and she did need some outside interest beyond home and family, she also maintained active membership in a women's club.

And active membership for her didn't mean sitting on the sidelines. She held office in that club and was taking her share of responsibility there as well as in her home.

I must have asked her then how she managed to crowd so much into her days for I do remember she told me she did it by careful planning and the establishment of a work routine.

Then, very shyly, she added that much credit must go to a code of living passed on to her by an older wiman who had many times proven its worth — and that she tried to follow.

I was interested and she gave me a copy. I used it in brief form at the time — but that was over ten years ago.

Now that it has surfaced in my house-cleaning blitz I've read it again and it's so worthwhile I have no qualms in repeating it in this column today.

"Just for today — I will try to live through this day only, and not tackle my whole life problems at once. I can do something for 12 hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

"Just for today — I will be happy, for as a great humanitarian once said, folks are as happy as they make up their minds to be.

"Just for today — I will adjust myself to what is, and not try to adjust everything to my own desires. I will take my 'luck' as it comes, and fit myself to it.

"Just for today — I will try to strengthen my mind. I will study. I will learn something useful. I will not be a mental loafer. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

"Just for today — I will exercise my soul in three ways: I will do somebody a good turn, and not get found out. If anybody knows of it, it will not count. I will do at least two things I don't want to do, just for exercise. I will not show anyone that my feelings are hurt. They may be hurt, but today I will not show it.

"Just for today — I will be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress becomingly, talk happily, and courteously, criticize not one bit, not find fault with anything and not try to improve or regulate anybody too harshly, except myself.

"Just for today — I will have a programme. I may not follow it exactly but I will have it. I will save myself from two pests — hurry and indecision.

"Just for today — I will have a quiet half hour for myself and relax. During this half-hour, sometime, I will try to get a better perspective of my life.

"Just for today — I will be unafraid. Especially I will not be afraid to enjoy what is beautiful, and to believe that as I give to my family and to others, so they will give to me."

That is the code for living the young woman of over a decade ago was trying to live by.

It wasn't easy, I remember her saying, but she was succeeding a little better, each day.

I must confess that, to my knowledge, I haven't seen her now for some years. Also, that while I remember much that she said, I have almost forgotten what she looked like.

However, I'm certain that wherever she is, she is still living by that code — and she is making it work in her everyday life.

Now that you have read it I hope you will cut it out, pin it up and use it in your daily lives.

After all, it might help to ease some of the uncertainties, erase some of the frustrations and give you a measure of happiness and security as you strive to understand and to cope with this contradictory world in which we live today.

You don't even have to know how to boil water to cook hot dogs and wieners. They're pre-cooked meats and all they need is to be heated through in hot, but not boiling water.

Boiling them causes shrinkage and wastes the fuel to boil the water. And yes, you can freeze hot dogs for about a month. Even bacon can be frozen, but don't drop frozen bacon into the frying pan.

When buying or selling used household items, know that residential auctions bring more money to the seller than a sale at an auction house. Auctioneers say that buyers know the household items are all from one family, and if they are favorably impressed by the setting of the sale, bidders tend to pay more.

Just because you can buy a type of yogurt that is frozen doesn't mean you can freeze all types of yogurt. Freezing and thawing the yogurt you bought unfrozen will ruin the creamy texture, so buy only what you'll eat within three or four days' time. Storing creamy yogurt longer causes it to increase in acidity and have a sharper flavor you may not like.

Slogans on Temple

VIENNA (AP) — Nazi slogans have been found painted on the entrance gate, the ceremonial hall and about 40 gravestones of a Jewish temple here.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked if chickens had teeth, and you said they didn't.

Essentially you were correct, but if you want to get technical, every chicken is born with a single tooth. It's called an "egg tooth," and is located on on the end of the upper beak. This egg tooth is the means by which a chick breaks the eggshell to gain entrance into the world. The tooth falls off in a couple of days after hatching. HENRY HAHN

DEAR HENRY: You certainly laid a new one on me with that story about the egg tooth. Sure it's not a yolk?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I went to a restaurant with my best friend and her husband, who I'll call "Al." The bill came to $35, and the men paid the bill with $60.

The waiter didn't return with the change, so Al called him back and asked for the change. The waiter looked puzzled, but he gave him the change and a dirty look.

Well, this couple asked us to go on vacation with them, and we said we'd go, but that was before we knew that Al didn't believe in tipping. (He says as a matter of principle he refuses to pay somebody else's help.)

We'd really like to vacation with them because we enjoy their company, but my husband isn't sure he can put up with the embarrassment of being with a guy who refuses to tip.

Answer soon because we don't know what to do — STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: If you enjoy their company, go! Your husband can tip for HIS share of the check while Al sticks to his principles.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the bride-to-be who wanted her real father, instead of her stepfather, to give her away, even though she said that her real father had disappeared during the most important years of her life, and her stepfather had been more like a "real" father to her.

I had that decision to make a few years ago, and the circumstances were identical. My parents were divorced when I was 2 years old. (My father left my mother for another woman.) I figured that my real father had already "given me away" once, so when it came time for me to marry, I chose my stepfather to give me away. I have never regretted it. — NO REGRETS

DEAR MIKE: In a recent column, you answered the question, "How much does it really cost to run a car?" You said 29c a mile for full-sized cars. Since salespersons all over the U.S. are now disgruntled because a columnist has told them 29c instead of the 14c-18c their employers pay them, would you please itemize the expenses that total 29c? If you can't itemize them, please retract your figude. — AN EMPLOYER

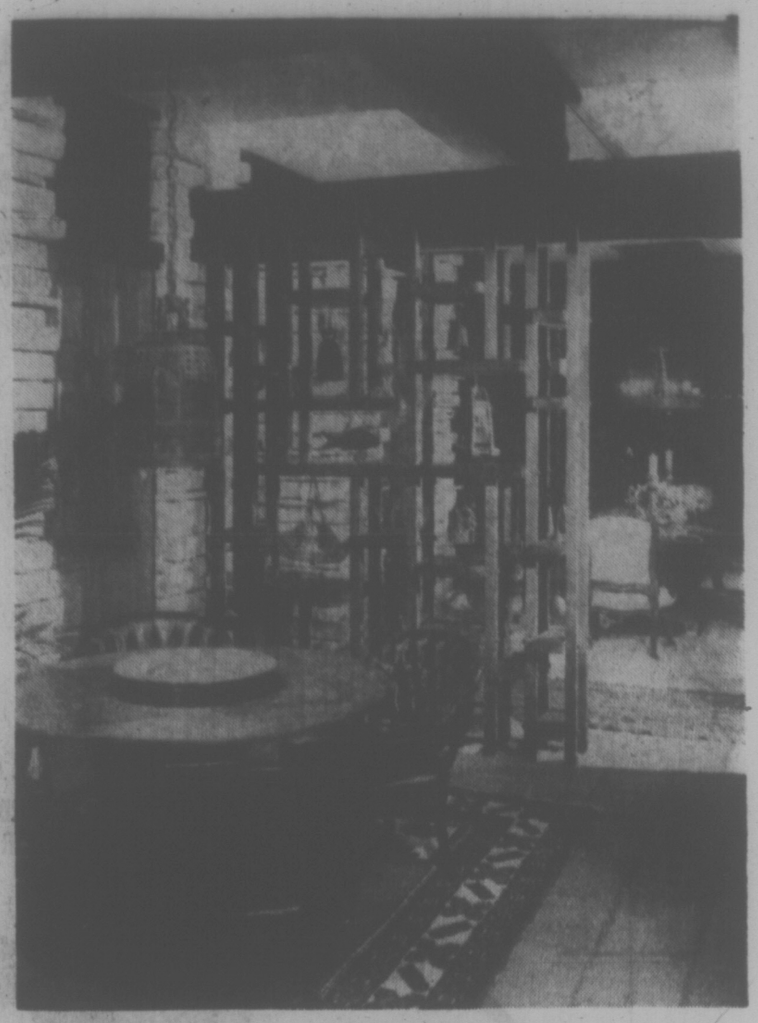
DEAR EMPLOYER: First, note that the 29c figure applies only to new full-sized U.S. cars. Second, to itemize would take up more space than I have here. But a very recent study that just came out sheds more light. It's by Runzheimer & Co., a consulting firm in Wisconsin. Runzheimer bases its study on 1977 cars driven four years at 14,000 miles a year. They say that expensive luxury cars like Mark V's and Eldorados cost about 30c a mile to drive. Tiny subcompacts come out to about 16c a mile. In-between sizes fall in between. Costs include purchase, normal financing, depreciation, insurance, license, taxes, repairs, gas, oil and tires.

DEAR MIKE: After we run the air conditioner in our 1975 Dart for about three hours, it fades on us and only warm air comes out. We've spent over $100 trying to fix this, but it's still doing it. — HOT & COLD.

DEAR HOT: Could be your cooling coils icing up. Try turning your temp setting toward warmer. It might also be that there's moisture in your freon or that the superheat adjustment on your expansion valve is wrong. Or maybe — but a lot less likely — your compressor clutch could start to slip after it's been engaged for some time.

DEAR MIKE: My 1974 Ventura 6 has no power. Passing a car on the road is a major effort, and the car barely makes it up steep hills. The engine idles all right in neutral, but is rough when I put the automatic transmission in gear. When I push down the gas, it spits and holds back two or three times before taking hold. Hope you can help me. — NO SPUNK

DEAR SPUNK: Most likely your carburetor needs work — perhaps an overhaul, a new accelerator pump, or at least adjustment.



SEE-THROUGH WALLS

By PAULINE GRAVES

The open plan, that is, rooms flowing together even though functions differ, serves the good purpose of making rooms seem larger than their true sizes. These days, with land more scare and correspondingly costly, and building costs up, houses and rooms are smaller. They need to appear larger, hence the popularity of the open plan.

However, a room gains by attaining intimacy in some areas, and dividers can do the trick. Shown here is a divider, designed by architect Edward Giddings, which effectively shields the game table from an adjacent passage-way without blocking the view between the two. And whereas a screen is flat, the divider has depth. Ingeniously composed of 2"x10"s used horizontally and 2"x2"s as supporting posts, the divider has a balanced composition in an irregular arrangement of shelves of varying lengths.

In another switch from the conventional, the shelves hold nothing. Instead, hanging objects fill the openings giving a light look to the unit, a direct contrast to the heaviness of the wood. And you can see past them into the adjacent room which maintains the flowing of one area into another.

Since each object hangs in the centre of each space, each becomes framed and has individual importance. You examine each item separately and not in relation one to each other. Too, suspending the objects has the practical advantage of eliminating breakage. They only sway if accidentally bumped.

Blood-Pressure Kits Judged Inaccurate

OTTAWA (CP) — The health department says its tests reveal that many portable blood-pressure measuring devices sold to the public for self-diagnosis give inaccurate or misleading results.

The use of these devices is almost universal in measurement of blood pressure and monitoring of heart disease, the department said in a statement.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, assistant deputy minister of the health protection branch, has proposed in a letter to manufacturers and distributors of more than 30 models of the device that a performance standard be adopted under the medical devices regulations.

The standards would ensure the accuracy of the reading and the range of measurement.

Health officials said the kit has a cuff or band to wrap around the arm, a hose with an air pump and a small meter which records the blood-pressure reading.

The department is concerned not only about faulty readings but also about manufacturers who do not provide adequate instructions on how to use the device properly.

A. K. DasGupta, director of the health protection branch's bureau of medical devices, said in a telephone interview that he is concerned with devices sold to individuals, not with those used in hospitals.

Savile Row: Not for Men Only

By SANDRA SALMANS

LONDON (NYT) — With their shop windows piled high with bolts of pin-striped cloth, few streets here seem more masculine than Savile Row, home of London's bespoke (made-to-order) tailors. Most London tailors would agree with Monty Charkham, a director of Gieves & Hawkes Ltd. at 1 Savile Row, that "a man's tailor is a man's tailor and a woman's tailor is a woman's tailor."

In fact, Savile Row has always turned out riding habits for ladies, including the sportswoman in the royal family, and during the second World War, H. Huntsman & Sons Ltd. made uniforms for women officers. But now, for $350 and up— way up— a woman can acquire a "tailored costume" with a Savile Row label.

Perhaps the leading Savile Row men's tailor for women is Nutters Ltd., bespoke tailors to Bianca Jagger, Diana Ross and Susan Ford, to name a few. For $600, about 10 per cent more than the rate for man, Nutters will produce a three-piece woman's suit with jacket, vest and trousers or skirt. The style of the suits is emphatically masculine but, said Edward Sexton, the owner of Nutters, "Women look very sexy in them."

Women's suits make up only 10 per cent of Nutter's trade, but they are worn in the very best places. The suits, in muted pastel shades, made an appearance on the last day of Wimbledon. With the relaxation of the dresses-even in the royal enclosure at only rule, they were worn Ascot.

Couples are often outfitted by the same tailor. Mick Jagger as well as Bianca has been suited by Nutters; so have Rolling Stone drummer Charlie Watts and his wife. At the other end of the social spectrum, Lord Montagu of Beaulieu and his bride wore white Nutters suits to their wedding in 1974.

A suit from Nutters can be four months in the making. It begins when a woman enters the small, cramped shop to look over swatches of material. "We discuss the cloth, we talk over styling of the suit," said Joseph Morgan, a director of the store. "It's nothing you rush into."

"If a suit is patterned, it becomes a daytime suit only," he said. "When you're spending that much money, you want to get your use out of it."

Once she has chosen her material, the woman tries on some sample jackets to select the lines and the width of the lapels she wants. She can then choose a skirt, culottes or trousers.

From the pattern, a cutter "strikes" the cloth. The pieces, together with a canvas foundation, are basted by hand. About a week after the cloth has been struck, the suit is ready for the first fitting. The second fitting takes place after another week.

All changes are noted on the pattern, which is filed. "We have a record for every client," Sexton said. "That's how we develop our export business. We've trained our foreign clients so that, if they know they're coming to London in a month, they let us know and we send them some batches of cloth. They select the cloth, and we have the first fitting ready for them when they arrive. If they go on from here to Paris or Rome, we can have the second fitting ready for them on their way back home."

LIGHTING THE WAY TO DAY-LONG GLAMOR

By JENNIFER ANDERSON

Have you ever been to a party where your host or hostess planned the lighting effects so well that the guests looked better than you know they really do?

Planned dim lighting of candlelight can create an illusion of glamor. But the real trick is to create your own make-up illusions to get that glamor at the office or in the blazing sunlight.

DEAR JENNIFER: It is often still dark when I apply my make-up early in the morning before going to the office. I look in the mirror (in daylight) at coffee-break time and I'm horrified to see how haggard and pale I look. I might as well not have bothered doing anything. What am I doing wrong? — Yvonne H., Ottawa.

Learning how to use light correctly when you make up, and knowing what colors to use to correct unflattering light you might be in, is a real art.

First, you should learn to make up flawlessly in daylight. If you can do that, you can make any of the other corrections for office or evenings out. (Frequently women will do their daytime make-up leaning over bathroom sink, in the worst possible lighting, and wonder why in the clear light of day their make-up is streaked, blotched and overdone.)

Devote a Saturday afternoon to an experimental make-up session before a window that allows good light. Hold a hand mirror and go through your entire make-up routine step by step. You'll be quite amazed at what you see! Likely, more than you want to!

You'll soon realize that less is better and natural colors like beige, brown, sand and pinks or corals that have a hint of brown in them are the most natural. Sharp, bright blue or acid green eye shadow or any lipsticks with a hint of purple have to go! You might be surprised, too, to find out just how much blending is necessary to do a flawless job.

Now change the lights in your make-up area at home to make the lighting strong and even. Check your daylight make-up job under these lights. That's the effect you'll want to achieve every day. Armed with the right shades of make-up and a new way of looking at your face, you should be able to improve your office appearance by 100 percent.

Remember, too, that most make-up needs touching up after a few hours. If yours is disappearing well before this, then make sure you're not using too much moisturizer under your make-up. Or perhaps you are not letting it "sink in" before you apply your foundation base.

To keep the face looking fresh throughout a day's work, be sure to blot any oil from the nose and chin areas and apply an oil-free pressed powder.

Just What's Portable One Weighty Problem

In a project conducted by the National Bureau of Standards, several agency workers have volunteered to spend time lugging boxes of lead shot around the office.

The study grew out of the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act of 1975, which gives the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) the power to say when a product can be guaranteed as portable.

The definition can be important, since purchasers of goods guaranteed as "portable" can be required to haul them in for repairs before the guarantee does any good.

So what's portable? To the researchers, a television, air conditioner, microwave oven or other product is portable if it can be carried by most consumers at least one city block "without excessive strain or exhaustion" and without using such aids as dollies or carts.

The researchers filled wooden cubes with different weights of lead shot. The volunteers then carried the boxes — some about 11 inches on a side and others about 16 inches — the length of a city block, through a door they had to open and up a flight of stairs.

The researchers said they figured their test requirement equalled the worst route a consumer would be expected to follow in returning a product for repairs.

They concluded that a person's sex and the way he handled a box, rather than age or the size of the container are the biggest determinants of what can be carried comfortably.

The researchers said the average maximum weight considered reasonable by the men taking part in the tests was 44.8 pounds, while for women it was 31.2 pounds.

And Kramer and Meguire aren't finished yet. They now are studying what size products are "acceptable." They then hope to work out a "portability index number" that would combine weight and size to tell a potential customer what he could carry easily.

The index could be attached to a tag or label on products guaranteed as portable. Officials hope to complete their work this fall.

NEW SLINGSHOTS NOT KID STUFF

TOULON, Ill. (AP) — The sling has come a long way since David slew Goliath.

Today's slingshots, costing up to $40, are fancy instruments and go by such names as Pocket Socket, Slingthing, Sidewinder, Falcon, Wham-O, Pocket Rocket, Pack-Along, Scope Shot, and Bobcat.

They are not kid stuff like that forked tree branch with strips of an inner tube to pull back and zing out pebbles. One, called the Wrist Rocket Sling Bow, fires arrows.

"Slingshots have a bad image; when you think of them, you think of broken windows," says Kent Shepard, 38, vice-president of the U.S. National Catapulting Association. Shepard, a grade-school math teacher, has collected 186 slingshots, or, as he prefers, catapults.

Shepard started out in archery then took his first fling with a sling 11 years ago and after three weeks of practice was shooting "as well as I ever had with the bow."

Once a year he teaches his Grade 5 and 6 students the rudiments of catapultry, stressing the correct form and personal safety.

Sometimes Shepard hunts for rabbits or frogs. "I like to plink frogs because I love frog legs," he said.

How Steel Workers Keep Their Cool

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Steel workers who often labor in heat ranging from 100 to 140 degrees, now can keep their cool by wearing ice.

An ice vest designed to cool the body in overheated conditions has been developed by two Kansas State University professors.

"It's not feasible to air condition a steel mill because the process puts heat into the air very rapidly," said Dr. Stephean A. Konz, KSU professor of industrial engineering.

"We wanted to develop a personal cooling device that would cool the individual rather than the whole environment."

Konz and Dr. C. L. Hwang, another industrial engineering professor, developed a garment which contains four large pockets for blocks of dry ice, which is frozen carbon dioxide.

Each pocket holds six small blocks of ice. Fully loaded it weighs about 10 pounds and keeps the wearer cool for four hours.

Help for Natives Urged by United Church Moderator

CALGARY (CP) — The retiring moderator of the United Church of Canada, Rt. Rev. Wilbur Howard, says the well-being of Canada's native Indians and Eskimos must be high on the church's list of priorities.

In a copy of a speech — released in advance and to be delivered today at the first-day of the church's 27th general council — Howard said the church's concern for native people should be reflected in its budget and in staff deployment.

The moderator is chief executive officer of the church, which is Canada's largest Protestant denomination with two million adherents and members.

Howard said the United Church has been actively involved in the North through the native people's listening conference held in May last year at Geneva Park, in Project North — an inter-church organization — and in the Berger commission into a natural gas pipeline in the Mackenzie Valley.

"But we have far to go," Howard said. "We do not have very much visible representation of our native people on our decision-making bodies as presbyteries, conferences and general council." He said he was not satisfied with the follow-up of the 1976 native peoples' conference and suggested another such conference be held in 1978 or 1979.

Referring to problems faced by the church in inner cores of Canada's major cities, Howard said some of these churches, which had provided a special mission to alcoholics, the poor, the hungry and the delinquent, now are empty.

"Some of these were churches whose dreams of redevelopment had crystalized into steel, stone and glass structures of urban witness.

"Some of these were churches wrestling with elusive plans for the future but getting their official board laces tangled up with presbytery lines of authority, government red tape and community purse strings — to say nothing of knotty urban theological implications."

Churches in the inner cores learn how to deal with municipal governments, he said.

"We're in the big league of the large cities have to along with rapid transit systems, downtown merchants, underground parking, high-rise apartments and heritage demolition."

A church-sponsored committee to plan strategy in large cities was formed in June and a start has begun on exchanging information between various Canadian regions, he said.

Exploratory work is being done on the possibility of setting up a United Church Investment Corp. to receive funds from churches and individuals to invest in urban ministries, he added.

On other topics, Howard said the church should continue its efforts to encourage more involvement of lay people.

He said this would mean the sharing of significant tasks by the clergy as well as tasks of lesser importance with the lay members.

Howard said the United Church must nuture its relationship with the Uniting Church in Australia and arrange a visit to Canada by the moderator of the Presbyterian Church in South Korea.

Howard is to retire as moderator later this week with his successor to be inducted in a ceremony on Aug. 23. Balloting is to be held today to choose the moderator's successor.

The nine candidates for the position are: Rev. A. C. Forest, publisher of the United Church Observer; John Andrew Black, a Kingston, Ont., lawyer; Rev. Kenneth Campbell, minister of East Plains United Church in Burlington, Ont.; Rev. Ivan Everett Cumming, director of a lay training centre in Naramata, B.C., Rev. Mary Haggart, minister of a three-point charge in Central Butte, Sask.; Katherine Hockin, a retired missionary; Aubrey Oldham, a retired Bracebridge, Ont., insurance company executive; Rev. Robert L. Rumball, a former professional football player and minister of the Evangelical Church of the Deaf in Toronto, and Rev. George M. Tuttle, principal of St. Stephen's College in Edmonton.

Challenge To Camu

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Anti-Poverty Organization (NAPO) says it is considering launching a legal challenge to Pierre Camu's appointment as chairman of the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) because of what it regards as a conflict of interest.

Executive director Marjorie Hartling said in an interview she fears that Camu, president for the last four years of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters (CAB), may be biased in favor of private broadcasters. The association represents the interests of about 270 privately-owned radio and television stations.

Mrs. Hartling was quick to criticize Camu's appointment, which was confirmed Friday. She said it resembles the case of Marshall Crowe, chairman of the National Energy Board who was forced to step down last year as head of a panel hearing proposals for a northern natural gas pipeline because of his earlier membership on the board of a company involved in one of the applications.

She said she was not criticizing Camu personally, but was attacking the government for selecting a person who served an industry he soon will be expected to regulate.

The Bridge Expert

On occasion, one can bid very well in a duplicate game, arrive at the optimum contract — and get a very poor score because of either brilliance or a lucky guess on the part of the defenders. Such was the case in today's deal, which was played in a duplicate game.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	4 ♡	4 ♠	5 ◇
Pass	5 ♡	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

The deal was replayed some 12 times during the evening, and most North-South pairs purchased the contract for either four or five spades. At all tables but one, West elected to lead a spade, partner's bid suit, at trick one. Declarer had no difficulty now in making 13 tricks (if it were possible to make 16 tricks, he would have made them: one spade, eight diamonds and seven hearts).

But at one table the defense was different. And therein hangs a tale. With South having arrived at a five-heart contract (the bidding is given above), West chose to open the ace of clubs; and despite East's play of the ten, West did not continue clubs. Instead, he led the five of diamonds!

It didn't matter whether declarer won the trick in dummy or with his own singleton queen, for his communication with dummy had just been broken. Actually, he elected to win the diamond lead with dummy's king, after which he played the diamond ace. East ruffed this lead with his five-spot and South overruffed.

Next came the ace of hearts and this was followed by the cashing of the spade ace. South's remaining spade was then ruffed with the board's remaining trump. Now dummy's jack of diamonds was led. If East had started with only two trumps, the jack would have won the trick, with South discarding a losing club. From here in South's only loser would have been a club trick.

As is evident, however, East had been dealt three trumps; and he ruffed dummy's diamond jack. South overruffed, of course, but eventually he had to lose two club tricks. So he incurred a one-trick set.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, August 23

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you don't know in which direction to go — wait, listen, observe. Postpone journey, if possible — and plausible. Cycle is such that directions, instructions tend to be garbled. Older individual means well but you do have your own life to live. Much of this will crystallize. You'll see!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money pressure is temporary Good news is on horizon. Now you sense it — gloom will be chased. Key is to ride with tide, to blueprint goal, to socialize, to entertain and be entertained. Gemini has idea that is workable. Give it a try!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Activity accented in areas dealing with joint efforts, public offerings, publicity, building bridges of goodwill. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio could be involved. You may be asked to sign agreement which, in actuality, is a contract for your services. It could be very good!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What you seek is within reach, but not quite available. You need to do more homework, additional checking — be analytical, ask quesions, be willing to make some significant changes. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons could be part of yor personal scenario.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your romantic nature is fulfilled. You feel warm, loving and loved. Taurus, Libra persons could be in picture. Accent on speculation, children, entertainment, creative endeavors. You get "rave notices!"

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Land, property, security — these are emphasized. You want to know where you are going — why you are here. What you reach for could be elusive. Key is to heed inner voice, to be patient with yourself, to clarify personal dilemma. Another Virgo could be in picture. Pisces also figures prominently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Plans are ready — but you may not be quite prepared. Time is on your side. Relatives tend to disagree with each other. Stand tall for your own principles. You have more strength on your side than might be immediately apparent. Yes you do have right to be confident!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money, personal possessions are highlighted. Key is to streamline, to be rid of superfluous material. Refuse to be bogged down with burden not your own. Take step to add future — leave "security blanket" behind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be confident enough to be original. Be yourself — imprint your own style, set a personal policy and follow it. Cycle is high — be independent, dynamic, direct, creative. Popularity increases. One who had been envious now becomes a major ally. Yes, Leo is in picture!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What was a barrier to enlightenment is removed You gain backstage glimpse — you now have access to files, reference material previously unobtainable. Separate fact from fantasy — be realistic about property, basic values, security. Cancer individual figures prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friendly persuasion may be insufficient. Mount facts, figures — get presentation in order. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play roles in your personal scenario. Wish comes true — and you will want more — and don't feel guilty about it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may feel confined — key is to reinforce plans, renew contacts, gain older individual as an ally. Accent on authority, standing in community, prestige, acceptance of civic duties. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio individuals are part of scenario.

IF AUGUST 23rd IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are active, attractive, a fine teacher — reporter — you are analytical, creative, capable of winning your way through the written word. Gemini, Sagittarious persons play important roles in your life. You began a new project in 1977 — July was outstanding — in September you know you did the right thing. You'll be fulfilled.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"It's nice having dinner with candles, but there's something funny about the two we've got tonight," said Carol. "They were the same length when you first lit them. Look at them now."

John chuckled. "When I bought them the man did say one would burn for 4 hours and the other for 5," he told her. "Now one is just twice as long as the other."

They had been burning the same time, of course. How long was that?

(Answer tomorrow)

When's the Best Time to Pick?

Questions of when to pick apples are already puzzling home gardeners. Usually no thought is given the problem until fruits are found laying on the ground.

If the fallen fruits are of normal size for the variety, it is safe to say all those of full size on the tree may be picked.

Let us take the early MacIntosh as an example. This is a rather small apple, of perfect eating quality with its characteristic flavor and sweetness, a crispness and juiciness that is just right and an aroma when ready to pick that becomes a symbol of early apple goodness.

Early Macs do not keep. Fallers should be gathered promptly, for some are likely to have insect damage which caused them to be discarded by the tree. If allowed to rot on the ground in the sun, the grub will be released to continue its life cycle.

The ideal situation is to have enough robins and other orchard birds around to feed on the softened fallen fruits complete with the grubs they contain. At present birds are very few.

Fallen MacIntosh apples are no hardship to use. Raw they are fine thirst quenchers and a salad maker to go with summer cabbage and zucchini.

The good flavor carries over into applesauce since it is only the insect damaged portion that needs to be cut off for discarding. Add a little sugar after quick cooking.

Tree fruits ripen in succession during a period of days corresponding to the succession of days the flowers opened and were pollinated in the spring.

This gives the home gardener a chance to pick and use fruits at perfection. Go over the tree frequently, lifting the full size and ripening fruits to see if they part readily from the fruit spur.

These early varieties are not keepers. Use now, process some if possible, give the surplus to those who have no trees of their own — but don't let fruit of any kind go to waste. At today's high commercial prices, and the need for good food, see that your surpluses are used.

By the end of August this year, it is likely that Bartlett pears will be ripe enough to drop. These may be eaten at once. Most people like them and get through several at one time.

Perhaps not well known is that pears unlike apples, almost always lose quality when allowed to ripen fully on the tree even though they do not fall.

The best time to pick pears of any variety is considered to be when they reach full size and before they begin to to color. This critical point is indicated when the pear, lifted gently upward in the hand, parts readily from the fruit spur.

In the cool dry air of the house, Bartletts ripen within a week and it is believed will have much less grittiness in their texture than those which ripen before falling from the tree.

Peaches and apricots need to be fully grown and colored before picking, for most varieties do little coloring later. A gentle pressure on the side of the fruits results in a a certain springy feeling that denotes full ripening. Fallen peaches are spoiled by easily bruising.

All home garden fruits repay care in handling. Indeed it pays to handle each tree fruit as though it were the only one in the world.

Thousands Attracted To 'Airy Nest'

BROADSTAIRS, England (CP) — Above this Kentish town, on a steep cliff overlooking the grey North Sea, stands Bleak House, once the country home of England's most famous novelist.

Here in a smallish study, with a large bay window surveying the seascape, Charles Dickens wrote the major part of his best-known novel, largely the story of his own life, David Copperfield.

He entertained many of his friends and associates at Bleak House which, in his day (1812-70) was called Port House.

A west wing has been added, but the old house he and his family occupied still stands. Every year thousands of visitors inspect the little study he called "my airy nest," his large bedroom overlooking Viking Bay and the dining room where he and his friends feasted in the style of jolly old Samuel Pickwick.

This year celebrations at the big Dickens Festival, which started in June, will continue all summer as Broadstair's contribution to Queen Elizabeth's jubilee. A garden party will be held similar to Mrs. Leo Hunter's fancy-dress breakfast in Pickwick Papers—and Mrs. Hunter will recite her famous poem, Ode to an Expiring Frog.

Pickwick and his friends—Snodgrass, Tupman, Winkle and Weller—will ride through the streets on an old-fashioned stage coach and will be greeted at various inns by leather-legged ostlers and pretty barmaids.

"It's really fascinating," said Arthur Gorman of Vancouver. "I've never been a great reader of Dickens, but I did enjoy the films of Pickwick Papers, Great Expectations and the musical Oliver, and the characters he created are as real as ever."

Vladimir Petrovich from Moscow said, "My wife and I have always loved Dickens. His world is far removed from ours, but the conditions in Russia at one time were as bad for the poor people there as they were here."

One good turn deserves another . . . as the saying goes and so Irma Fredericksen, 68, tries to match the hula-hooping technique of Kenny Kowalski, behind. Phillipines' Curfew Lifts

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand Marcos told a conference on human rights today he will ease martial law by granting amnesty for subversives, lifting a curfew in effect throughout the Philippines and ending a ban on foreign travel.

He also promised to hold local elections next year and to set an election date in 1978 for all other government positions. There have been no elections since Marcos imposed martial law on Sept. 23, 1972.

Marcos's announcements received prolonged applause from about 5,000 lawyers and judges attending the Manila World Law Conference, whose theme this year is human rights in international law.

Marcos was elected president in November, 1965, and re-elected in 1969. He dissolved the National Assembly and imposed martial law three years later to check widespread violence resulting from poverty, unemployment inflation and government corruption, and to prevent election of a political foe as his successor.

Marcos gave few details of his new program and government officials said they have not received any new orders.

Executive Assistant Jacob Clave said degrees have been signed but will not be made public immediately.

The president said amnesty will be granted to persons "deemd guilty of subversion." However, the government's policy has been to offer amnesty only to those dissidents who admit their guilt of the charges against them.

"Some of those people don't want to say they're guilty, because many aren't," said lawyer Jovito Salonga, a leading critic of the president who represents a number of dissidents.

Marcos indicated the lifting of the travel ban and the termination of the curfew may be only temporary.

"We will test the effect of these moves on our economy and on our situation in the matter of peace and order," the president said.

Marcos said he will hold elections for local officials "not later than next year" and will lift "the effects of martial law and martial law itself" during the campaign.

Toyota Recall

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Motor Industries Ltd. announced today the recall of about 8,000 Corona and Mark II model cars produced in 1970 and 1971 to replace the neutral start switch.

The company, distributor of the Japanese-made Toyota vehicles in Canada, said the switch on the floor-mounted automatic transmission shift lever could cause a short circuit producing smoke and "in extreme cases an electrical fire."

BUILD BETTER BIKE RACK . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — When the metal bicycle shed in the backyard of Terry and Noreen Smith's home began to bulge with their family's fleet of bicycles three years ago, Smith's brain went to work to solve the problem.

He headed down to his basement workshop, took a short hunk of metal and extended it into what may become one of the hottest selling bicycle racks on the market.

Smith's invention, called Bike-Up, is both simple and versatile in its design and construction. It can be attached to a wall, pole or ceiling, in corners or on flat or rounded surfaces.

Basically, the Bike-Up consists of two metal troughs or u-channels, each measuring 35½ inches, weighing in total 4½ pounds, that fit together and can be extended to varying lengths.

The top channel has five holes on each side and, depending on the length of the extension, two round wooden blisters can be inserted through any two to brace the wheel in the channel. Two holes on each side of the bottom channel perform the same function for the rear wheel.

The channels come in three widths that cover most standard sizes of bicycle tires and can be attached to a surface with either bolts or adhesive pads.

Through inquiries, contacts and friends, he found two firms interested in helping him build up Bike-Up production.

Ketchum Manufacturing in Ottawa makes and paints the racks, then ships them to ARC Industries, a business operated by the Association for the Mentally Retarded where the decal and accessories are added.

ARC Industries then sends them back to Smith's home from where the inventor takes them to six retail stores in the Ottawa area or to the homes of interested individuals.

Bike-Up has been endorsed by the Canadian Cycling Association, the Ontario Cycle Association and the Ottawa-Carleton Safety Council.

A Bike-Up costs $5 to make, wholesales at $7 and retails at $9.98. Smith said he feels this is a reasonable price.

"If you overprice something, especially when it's not very well known, it just won't sell.

"I'm telling the stores that when it gets more popular and we can manufacture in greater volume, they'll be able to sell the rack at a cheaper price."

At present, the sales returns from Bike-Up sales aren't exactly rocketing Smith to Rockefeller status. Only 500 racks of an order of 1,000 have been sold and Smith said he loses at least a dollar on each one that is made.

"It will take an order of 10,000 before I can make a dollar on each one."

Smith has a full-time job editing operational manuals for the RCMP. Before that he was an RCMP officer for 26 years and now collects a pension from the force.

"My pension pays for the losses on the racks," he said.

15 CASUALTIES IN ARAB CLASH

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Arab peace-keeping troops have occupied a central hill town and made house-to-house searches to stop one of the worst clashes since the end of Lebanon's 19-month civil war.

Christian rightists and leftist Druze Moslem followers of the late Kamal Jumblatt fought Sunday in Brieh, 30 miles from Beirut. The Arab force said the clash left at least 15 persons dead or wounded "on both sides."

A spokesman for the predominantly Syrian peace-keeping troops said they "intervened" to stop the fighting and will "strike hard at all those who try to hinder the march" toward peace in Lebanon.

The Arab soldiers launched a house-to-house weapons search in a bid to root out unidentified "instigators" of the third most serious outbreak of fighting since the civil war.

The rightists said Jumblatt's followers triggered the fighting when they opened fire on a group of Christians — "mostly women and old people" — who emerged from a Requim Mass to investigate a sudden power cut.

Jumblatt's party said extreme rightist "infiltrators" had sparked the incident by using the traditional shooting into the air after Requiem services as a cover for sniping on Druze sections of the town.

But late Sunday both sides vowed vigilance to prevent a possible renewal of the violence, expressed deep regret at the fighting and said they hoped things would return to normal.

Statue Stolen

AGANA, Guam (Reuter) — A Buddhist memorial to 3,000 Japanese soldiers who committed mass suicide on the Pacific island of Saipan in 1944 has been stolen. The bronze statue of Kannon, a goddess of mercy, was erected in 1972 by a group of Japanese on top of "Banzai Cliff," from which the soldiers flung themselves to avoid capture by United States forces.

Soviets Leave Pole

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet nuclear-powered icebreaker Arktika, which las week became the first surface vessel ever to reach the North Pole, cut its way back out of the ice and reached clear water Sunday, Tass reported.

After a seven-day run through 1,200 miles of dense accumulations of ice, the Arktika sailed free into the waters of the Barents Sea, near Franz Josef Land, the official news agency reported.

Emerging from the ice, the Arktika set its course for the northern Soviet port of Murmansk, where it will discharge its staff of scientists. It will then return to routine icebreaking chores on Soviet shipping lanes along the northern Soviet coast.

In an earlier interview on board the icebreaker, the Soviet merchant marine minister, Tomifei Guzhenko, predicted that these lanes would be replaced soon by more direct ones through the ice of the Arctic circle.

Press Dispute Ends After 29 Months

PARIS (Reuter) — The longest labor dispute in the history of the French press has ended with both sides expressing satisfaction at the final outcome.

The strike by Communist-led printers at the conservative tabloid Parisien Libere had lasted 29 months and shook the French press.

Paris and provincial newspapers were paralyzed a dozen times by sympathy stoppages during the dispute, which began after the management announced a major modernization program involving sweeping layoffs.

The paper's fiercely determined owner, 67-year-old Emilien Amaury, had repeatedly refused to negotiate with the Syndicat du Livre, apparently determined to break its virtual control over printing operations in the Paris press.

On July 11, the union announced an agreement had been reached and it had won a victory for the 500 strikers.

The deal, however, hinged on agreement by the government to foot a major part of the compensation bill, and this was not forthcoming until this month.

Labor Minister Christian Beullac said the government is ready to contribute about $1.7 million to the print union's pension scheme.

The package provides for 112 strikers to be rehired by the paper, more than 200 more to be retained for other Paris press jobs and 110 to take $12,000 golden handshakes.

Tax Change Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Construction Association has added its voice to the protests against recent United States tax law amendments that deny tax deductions to Americans attending conventions outside the U.S.

In a letter to Trade Minister Jean Chretien, association president Henry de Puyjalon called upon the Canadian government to request exemptions for conventions held in Canada so that Americans can deduct convention expenses incurred in this country.

He said the direct cost of lost convention business has been about $25 million, and the impact is spreading to other sectors of the economy.

EATON'S

"The Size Shop" Eaton's new extra-size boutique proves that good things don't always come in small packages

Or small sizes, either. In fact, The Size Shop doesn't begin until size 38. Because fashions for the extra-size lady is the only thing we carry. Why did we decide to devote The Size Shop entirely to extra-size fashions? Simple.

Because at Eaton's we've always known that good fashion taste has nothing to do with size. But you'd be surprised how many other stores don't feel that way.

Our buyer never loses interest at size 14. As far as she is concerned, that's just the beginning. So there is now a shop of sportswear and separates that offers the extra-size woman real freedom of choice. And Eaton's got it. The Size Shop.

Where you'll find the finest names in sportswear and dresses anywhere. Tops, bottoms, shirts, skirts, blazers and pants plus much, much more. With the emphasis on fabric and style. Not size. The Size Shop — now at Eaton's for sizes 38 to 44.

Dog Days Over

Sane dogs and Victorians will be able to venture out safely in the mid-day sun.

Announcing the official end of the area's heat wave-cum-drought, weatherman Bob Morris said today: "The high ridge just went, bingo."

But Morris said there's a good chance that more will follow.

"We're now back in the flow of upper westerlies and the weather will be more like normal. A new system will come through, it'll clear up for a douple of days and then another will move in."

OMBUDSMAN TAKING OVER

Bennett Ends Funding Of City Action Group

Premier Bill Bennett today told the Victoria Community Action Group it will no longer be funded by the provincial government because B.C.'s ombudsman — soon to be appointed — will look after people in trouble.

The group had received a grant of $36,000 for the fiscal year which ended March 31.

Bennett's announcement brought protests from community workers who said one ombudsman cannot possibly give personal help to hundreds of Victorians simultaneously.

The Community Action Group last year had 50 full-time and volunteer workers helping people in trouble because of alcohol, marriage break-up or mental breakdowns. The group will now shrink to five people working part-time because of the lack of funding.

The Victoria Council of Churches and the Community Action Group had jointly asked the premier to overrule Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm's decision to end the CAG grant.

Vander Zalm said he would not authorize funds for any group that advocated changes in government policies. The CAG had campaigned for increases in provincial welfare rates.

Bennett, in a letter to CAG worker Sharon MacBain, said he supports Vander Zalm's decision to end funding.

The premier said legislation has been introduced to set up an ombudsman and the appointment will be made soon.

"I am confident the all-party committee (of the legislature) will have the new ombudsman in place to carry out the important functions you suggested were carried out by your group," the premier's letter said.

William Mundy, chairman of social action for Victoria Council of Churches, said: "I regret very much that this important community group is being plowed under and I am uneasy about the control being centralized in (Vander Zalm's) department."

He said he is skeptical an ombudsman could begin to handle all the problems that come into the Victoria community office.

The CAG had a peak caseload of 350 clients and was answering more than 1,000 telephone calls per month.

Mundy said the council will make new representations to the premier unless it can be demonstrated that the ombudsman will be granted a large enough staff to handle a Victoria caseload of that size.

Meanwhile, MacBain said the premier's decision against funding "Is another case of putting bucks before human needs, which is becoming typical of the Social Credit government."

She said social workers had praised the services of the group because the CAG took time to talk to people in trouble and referred them to agencies where they could get additional help.

MacBain said the Social Credit government has adopted a policy of "sweeping the poor and afflicted under the carpet because these problems are offensive to the wealthy, who are Social Credit supporters."

She said the group will try to carry on at its office upstairs from 551 Fisgard from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekdays with a small volunteer staff.

SPORTS

Victoria Shamrocks have been following a perilous pattern in the Western Lacrosse Association final, building up a comfortable lead and then having to fight for survival in the closing stages. They did it again at Memorial Arena Sunday night before grabbing a 10-8 triumph over Vancouver Burrards for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series. Page 12.

Victoria Bates have added pitching strength for their bid to retain the national men's softball championship, picking up Glen Langset, a former Victorian who now resides in Trail. Page 14.

★

SALISBURY (AP) — Security forces are hunting a band of black-nationalist guerrillas that attacked the black living quarters on a farm in eastern Rhodesia and slaughtered 16 men, women and children.

Some of the victims were herded into a circle and shot, others bayoneted, and one was burned to death when the guerrillas set fire to the compound, officials reported.

Another 15 to 20 persons were injured in the raid Saturday night.

"It was a terrible sight," said the white owner of the farm, Marius Sleigh. "There were men, women and children lying in the bushes nearby — some of them dead and some were screaming with pain."

A pregnant woman was among those killed.

Sleigh said a security fence around the compound was to have been completed by today.

"I rather think they were after the fencing gang," he said.

A spokesman for the security forces said the guerrilla band numbered about 26, carried automatic weapons and apparently planned simultaneous raids on Sleigh's residence and the black quarters about one-quarter of a mile away.

Sleigh said he had gone to bed when the guerrillas arrived at the black compound during a beer party and demanded to see the black foreman. When one of the farmhands told them the foreman was away, the guerrillas started beating him with sticks.

"The rest of the people in the compound, mainly women and children, obviously panicked and tried to run away," Sleigh continued. "It was then that the terrorists opened up on them from behind with the women and children screaming to get away."

On the political front, meanwhile, Elliott Gabellah became the fifth leading black nationalist to resign from the United African National Council led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa. Informed sources said Gabellah will join forces with Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole of the African National Council, who returned to Salisbury last month after two years in exile.

Both Muzorewa and Sithole are considered moderates and are jockeying to be recognized by Smith in negotiations for the transfer of power to the country's black majority. But neither they nor their associates have any influence with the black guerrillas.

S. Africa N-Bomb Set

PARIS (UPI) — French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud said today France has information that South Africa is preparing a nuclear explosion.

"We have warned South Africa that such an explosion could have grave consequences on the relaeions of our two countries," he added.

$200,000 Yates Blaze

Three pumpers and two aerial ladders from Victoria and an aerial ladder from Oak Bay were called in to quell the flames which burst out at 2:45 a.m.

Gusts of wind caused some problems prompting fire and police officials to evacuate the Kings Hotel and a discoteque on Johnson Street as a safety measure.

Flames shot up the exhaust duct system of the Meatmarket Restaurant and spread to the fourth floor and roof of the building after a torch used by a construction worker on the exhaust duct system caught residual grease in the duct work, deputy Chief Mike Heppell said today.

The renovations were being carried out late at night so business at the restaurant would not be interrupted.

Loss is estimated at $200,000, and Heppell said no estimate has been made for the loss of its contents.

The restaurant and other lower floor businesses suffered heavy water damage.

Later Sunday, View Royal firefighters responded to a barn fire on Cheltenham Road in which the barn and about four tons of hay were destroyed.

U.K. Air Controllers To Stage 4-Day Strike

LONDON (AP) — Assistant air traffic controllers demanding a pay raise voted overwhelmingly today to begin a four-day strike at midnight Thursday night, threatening a total shutdown of all British airports.

The British Airports Authority, the government agency that manages London's Heathrow and Gatwick and five other major airports, said more than one million passengers would be affected by the walkout of 850 controllers.

The strike would continue through a Bank Holiday weekend, one of the busiest travel periods for Britons. The Bank Holiday is Monday and the strike would end at midnight Monday night.

"The strike will bring the airports in this country to an absolute standstill," said Ken Thomas, general secretary of the controllers' union.

The air traffic control assistants work at Britain's two major air control centres—at West Drayton just outside London and at Prestwick, Scotland. Their control areas cover all airports in the country.

For the last week, 220 union members at Heathrow and Gatwick have engaged in a work-by-rule slowdown to press the pay demands.

The Civil Aviation Authority, which governs all civilian flying, said it has drown up contingency plans to get as many planes in the air as possible.

Union members, whose average annual pay is the equivalent of $4,250, are demanding that the government lift its anti-inflation curb on pay increases so they can get an $850 raise agreed on in June, 1975. The union said the agreement was reached before the wage ceilings went into effect.

ANTIQUE CRASHES, COUPLE INJURED

Mel Price is in intensive care with a broken jaw and other facial injuries and shoulder injuries. His wife, Mary, received minor injuries when their 1929 Monocoach stalled while circling a field for an emergency landing and crashed through the trees.

The Prices, of 1695 Ean Park, were en route to the Evergreen Air Show for antique planes in Portland, Ore.

The crash occurred as the plane was being brought in for an attempted landing at the small Apex Airport about 10 miles north of Bremerton.

Dave Brophy, a mechanic at the airport and a longtime friend of Price, said there was low fog and drizzle at the time.

He said he thinks Price lost the airstrip and was trying to make a landing on the beach about three-quarters of a mile from the strip when he saw a wide-open field.

CUPW WANTS TALKS

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) has written to the federal government about resuming contract negotiations, but contents of the union's letter are being kept secret.

The 22,000-member union said in a news release today executives of CUPW "decided last week to contact the employer in writing on this issue and will wait for the employer's reply before taking further action."

"We decided not to make a public declaration concerning our decision so that the employer can carefully weigh the implications of his reply," said CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrot.

New CUPW leaders, elected in July at the union's national policy convention in Halifax, met all last week to decide bargaining strategy.

At the convention, delegates dug in for a long, tough battle with the government by giving CUPW leaders authority to call a country-wide strike if union demands are not met.

A key demand is that the government withdraw all disciplinary action taken against CUPW members for union-related activity.

Pets Blamed for Spreading MS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rover and Tabby may be causing multiple sclerosis in their masters, a study reported today in the Journal of the American Medical Association indicates.

Dr. Seymore Jotkowitz of Hackensack, N.J., reported a study of 50 multiple sclerosis patients found 46 of them — or 92 per cent — had been in close contact with a household pet prior to the onset of the illness.

"The incidence of the contact with sick dogs in the multiple sclerosis series was impressive," he said. "Several patients reported that a diagnosis of distemper was acutally made for their dog within several years of the onset of their illness."

Jotkowitz said his findings are similar to those reported earlier this year by two British doctors.

In that study, he said, 26 of 29 individuals with multiple sclerosis owned small dogs and two others owned cats, he said.

In both studies, he said, large dogs which spent a significant amount of the time out of doors appeared to have no relationship to the disease. Only small, indoor dogs were implicated.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the nervous system, which produces loss of muscular co-ordination, speech defects and other symptoms.

35 Drivers In Bus Tests

It was rodeo time Saturday for 35 B.C. Hydro bus drivers who had to drive as close as possible to traffic cones without hitting them.

The event, open to bus drivers who have not had an accident during the past 12 months, measured skill and safety techniques in a test situation. Winner was Ray Rombough, who will go to the B.C. Hydro provincial finals next month.

All participants also took a written quiz and were tested on inspection skills.

B.C. Hydro drivers must make a thorough inspection of a bus before taking it on a run and, in the test situation, some defect was deliberately created to check the driver's concentration to detail. The defects included making a clearance light inoperative or removing one of the tiny licence plates on the vehicle.

A feature of the rodeo was a sharp turn in crowded quarters.

The drivers also had to bring the bus correctly into a simulated bus stop and points were lost if the bus was too far from the curb or stopped outside the stop area.

The tests were conducted on B.C. Hydro property at the Garbally Road depot.—(John McKay photos.)

Yachtsman Girdles Globe Despite Loss of a Leg

Losing a leg in the Second World War hasn't stopped Lawrence Nathan from doing what he likes to do best — sailing.

On Friday the boat reached Victoria, the third major stop in a trip that so far has covered more than 7,000 miles. The other two stops were Tahiti and Hawaii.

Nathan plans to remain here until Tuesday, then begin a month-long tour of the Gulf Islands before sailing south to San Francisco to visit a daughter. Then he heads through the Panama to the West Indies and on to the Mediterranean to visit another daughter in Italy. He hopes to end the trip by sailing via Australia where—you guessed it — he has a third daughter.

He estimates the odessey will take two years. He's in no hurry, he says.

Nathan, who owns a large family business including hotels and grocery stores in New Zealand, says the biggest problem in organizing the trip was finding a compatible crew with sailing experience and time to spare.

He found it, he says, in the four he selected Wally Stuhlman, 39, a boat builder; Simon Gundry, 25, a concrete contractor; Doug Black, 21, a butcher, and Penny Whiting, 27, a sailing instructor.

Only Penny has been in Victoria before. She raced in the Swiftsure a couple of years ago crewing on the 12-meter Endless Summer.

Stuhlman is skipper, navigator and cook; Gundry is deck and watch captain; Whiting is quartermaster and sailmaker and Black is engine mechanic.

To his crew, Nathan is the PBO, the Poor Bloody Owner. But despite having only one leg — he disdains using an artificial leg — he still handles his share of the chores and takes a six-hour watch at the helm each day when at sea.

The Kahurangi (it's a Mauri word meaning precious possession) was built for Nathan 25 years ago. He has raced it extensively in races off New Zealand, Australia, New Coledonia and Fiji.

Modelled after a 12-metre sailboat, the vessel's mast is 72 feet high and can put our nearly 9,000 square feet of sail. The largest spinnaker is 4,500 square feet. The boat weighs 25 tons, including nine tons of lead in the keel, and draws nine feet, three inches.

Made entirely of native New Zealand wood, mainly kauri, it has a top speed of 11 knots under sail, nine knots under motor power.

Stuhlman says there are enough supplies to last one month, ample considering it took only 14 days to cover the 2,400 miles between New Zealand and Tahiti, 16 days for the 2,500 miles to Hawaii, and 15 days, 10 hours for the 2,700 mile crossing from Honolulu to Victoria.

"We're doing what so many people dream about but never do," Nathan says, adding there's only one word for it . . . fulfilling."

Power Cut By Fires On Poles

Three pole-top fires caused some Saanich and Oak Bay residents to be without electricity up to three hours on Sunday.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said today the fires were triggered by Sunday morning's light rainfall causing arcs in insulators which spread to the poles.

There were two pole-top fires on Beach Drive and another at Shelbourne and Feltham.

Mortgage Called Worth $1½ Million

The holder of the first mortgage on a redevelopment project at Bay and Government has successfully brought a $1.5 million foreclosure action to a conclusion.

The means in effect Westcoast Savings Credit Union now owns the former B.C. Hydro electrical substation renovated for offices by Victoria developer J. A. Mace, Westcoast lawyer Dean Wilson said today.

The foreclosure action was initiated last fall and six months ago the B.C. Supreme Court gave Mace Homes and Investments Ltd., Bay Village Ltd. and Victoria Centre Ltd. six months to square financial problems with the mortgage holder.

The mortgage was not redeemed within this time period and the Supreme Court granted the final foreclosure order 10 days ago.

But We've Never Run Out of Children

One of these evenings, I hope to accept an invitation from a friend. Michael has decided that my chances of catching a fish will be improved if he rows me a few yards out from the home beach in his Dad's dingy.

Naturally, Michael will require parental permission for this venture into guiding. I've been informed, too, that we both must wear lifejackets — a concession to smallboat safety that I haven't the slightest intention of protesting.

We'll have a fine time. We may even catch a fish. Whether we do or not, we can count on a later glass of milk or mug of coffee, according to our tastes, with the women folk on the shore.

Michael is six years old, brown as a hazelnut from a summer's sun, and looking forward with mixed feelings to starting Grade One in September. To Win and me, he and his sister, Karen, represent one of nature's happier dispensations to the couple whose own children have insisted on growing up.

They are the most recent additions to that elastic, growing, changing, company which has paced our years, and without whose lively presence, life would be less interesting than we find it.

These are the Kids Next Door.

Even if you like children and want them, parenthood is a form of slavery. It imposes duties and a swarm of responsibilities. Parents are anxious people, especially those who make conscientious efforts to do a sound job of child-rearing.

I won't claim that it's impossible to enjoy the friendship of your own child or children. They may be the occasional paragon among parents, all-wise, superhumanly worry-proof, calm and tolerant., who makes the grade.

But friendship is a state based on freedom of choice and on equality, and the parent-child relationship that assumed equal status on the part of those caught up in it would be in trouble before you can say, 'Go clean up that bedroom!'

Somebody has to be the boss . . . and well for the family if it's the parent.

Luckily, no such strictures exist when it comes to our dealings with Kids-Next-Door. Even if we were so inclined — which no one with a grain of sense would be! — they are not ours too to order about. We are free merely to enjoy those casual and fleeting associations that children may choose to bestow on grownups outside their family groups.

Looking back along the lengthy file of Kids Next Door whose visitations we've enjoyed, names and faces emerge. I can claim with pride that a young man who is now one of Canada's most brilliant athletes shared the freedom of Win's cooky-jar, and helped me with a project that absorbed us for a number of summer hours.

Between us, we reconstructed an ailing outboard motor. It was a fine, greasy job, one that involved endless consultations and experiments, disappointments and triumps. I would like to claim that the shared venture contributed to Tommy's later success. But it didn't: it merely taught me that some tasks are better left to the experts.

Another of the Kids Next Door demonstrated that these transient companionships between child and adult may be remembered on both sides by looking us up a few months ago.

Now grown to man's estate, he was far removed from the harum-scarum little boy we remembered . . . the kid who would have forgotten his head if it weren't fastened on tight.

Or so we thought until the visit ended, and the boy transformed by time into a man of presence and dignity turned to his car.

The key was in the ignition switch. The engine was purring softly, as it had been for the past several hours. And the doors and windows were locked.

It occured to me while we went to work with pliers and a coathook that though much had changed, nothing had changed. Chuckle-headed Ken was in a jam again, and it was up to his friend the Guy Next Door to help him out!

A Drink of Water Anything but Easy

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

If you've ever tried to get a group of people involved in a project and found it hard going, consider Dr. Myer Cohen.

His job is to get countries involved.

For three years he's been trying to get underdeveloped countries interested in improving the quality of drinking water and sanitation in rural areas.

Even though he's operating under the umbrella of the prestigious Canadian International Development Research Centre (IDRC), the task has been anything but easy.

Frustrating is the way Cohen puts it. Downright frustrating.

Not that the 59-year-old New York economist expects it any other way.

He has worked on the international scene for more than 33 years, mostly with the United Nations Development Program. There you learn it takes a while to get things done.

Progress comes slowly no matter how important the issue, Cohen said in an interview. He's in town vacationing — his first visit here — and meeting old friends like Dr. Hugh Keenleyside.

Take the problem of water, he says.

It's an established fact that 80 per cent of the people who live in rural areas of Third World nations don't have safe drinking water, let alone adequate sewage facilities.

The rub is convincing people to do something about the problem.

"It's tough to get people excited. The subject is so . . . undramatic," he says. "It just doesn't have much news appeal."

There's another difficulty, too — politics, not only the politics of the countries concerned but that of the international bodies set up to deal with such problems, he says.

The bigger the group, the greater the interference of political views over matters of primary economic or social concern.

Cohen says the IDRC, which is funded by the Canadian International Development Agency, became interested in the water problem and asked him to head a special committee that would act as a catalyst to get action.

The committee comprises experts from the World Health Organization, the World Bank, the UN Environment Program, the UN Development Program, UNICEF, and the Food and Agriculture Organization.

But ever since its inception three years ago, the committee hasn't quiet worked out how the various agencies and countries should co-ordinate their efforts.

The concept of working together is a difficult one to foster, Cohen says.

He points to the world water conference held in Argentina last March, as an example.

"All we got from that were some resolutions and good intentions, but nothing really got off the ground."

Cohen says the committee will meet in Geneva next month. He expects members will agree to establishing a secretariat to co-ordinate the study of safe drinking water problems around the world. The secretariat will be attached to one of the agencies, probably WHO.

He says he doesn't expect any immediate results. You never do working on the international scene.

WEEKEND BLAZES kept firemen busy. Barn fire off Cheltenham Road being mopped up, bottom, destroyed four tons of hay while firemen suspect blaze that his Bastion Arcade building, 535 Yates, (right) was started by sparks from cutting torch. Both fires occurred Sunday.

EATON'S

"The Size Shop" Eaton's new extra-size boutique proves that good things don't always come in small packages

Or small sizes, either. In fact, The Size Shop doesn't begin until size 38. Because fashions for the extra-size lady is the only thing we carry. Why did we decide to devote The Size Shop entirely to extra-size fashions? Simple.

Because at Eaton's we've always known that good fashion taste has nothing to do with size. But you'd be surprised how many other stores don't feel that way.

Our buyer never loses interest at size 14. As far as she is concerned, that's just the beginning. So there is now a shop of sportswear and separates that offers the extra-size woman real freedom of choice. And Eaton's got it. The Size Shop.

Where you'll find the finest names in sportswear and dresses anywhere. Tops, bottoms, shirts, skirts, blazers and pants plus much, much more. With the emphasis on fabric and style. Not size. The Size Shop — now at Eaton's for sizes 38 to 44.
